ERDA Report Criticized

By Carl Graham

KINGSTON
The Ulster County Planning Board Wednesday night deferred voting on the master plan recently released by the Energy Research and Development Agency for development of a nuclear energy generating site in the towns of Lloyd and Esopus.

The board decided to hold up comment to give members more time to study the ERDA plan, acting after Planning Director Herbert Hekler said he was disturbed about certain aspects of the report.

Hekler noted that ERDA had published voluminous studies of the ecological, meteorological, biological and aquatic effects of the proposed nuclear site, but had done little or nothing about the economic and social aspects.

"ERDA published only a small memorandum on the economic and social effects but they made several profound judgments," Hekler told planners. "I do not feel that they have substantiated them."

Hekler said that ERDA had ignored the board's suggestions for full consideration of the economic and social aspects of the nuclear site.

Economic, social aspects played down says County Planning Director Herbert Hekler.

"These recommendations have been ignored except for superficial and possibly misleading conclusions made without any of the careful study given to the other aspects of the study program," he noted.

"Without facts to support their conclusions, we find it hard to believe that 1,500 workers who will be employed for more than 13 months will not have a significant impact on the housing market in New Paltz, where college students already have difficulty in finding decent and affordable accommodations, or that an influx of mobile homes will not occur, that cost of other construction in the county will not be affected, or that no more than 200 new families would relocate to Ulster County. These impacts are very important for local communities but were unsubstantiated in the ERDA study."

The board approved a statement on the proposal to develop Stewart Field at Newburgh into a regional airport, saying it saw no undue noise or environmental impact on Ulster County. The board said that the airport would be a convenience and could aid future industrial development as well as provide employment.

On the negative side, the board noted that the state still had no master plan under which the plan could be evaluated, and noted that the $50 million cost could possibly affect such other state financed projects as development of facilities at the State University College at New Paltz, development of Minnewaska State Park, or construction of new sections of Route 209.

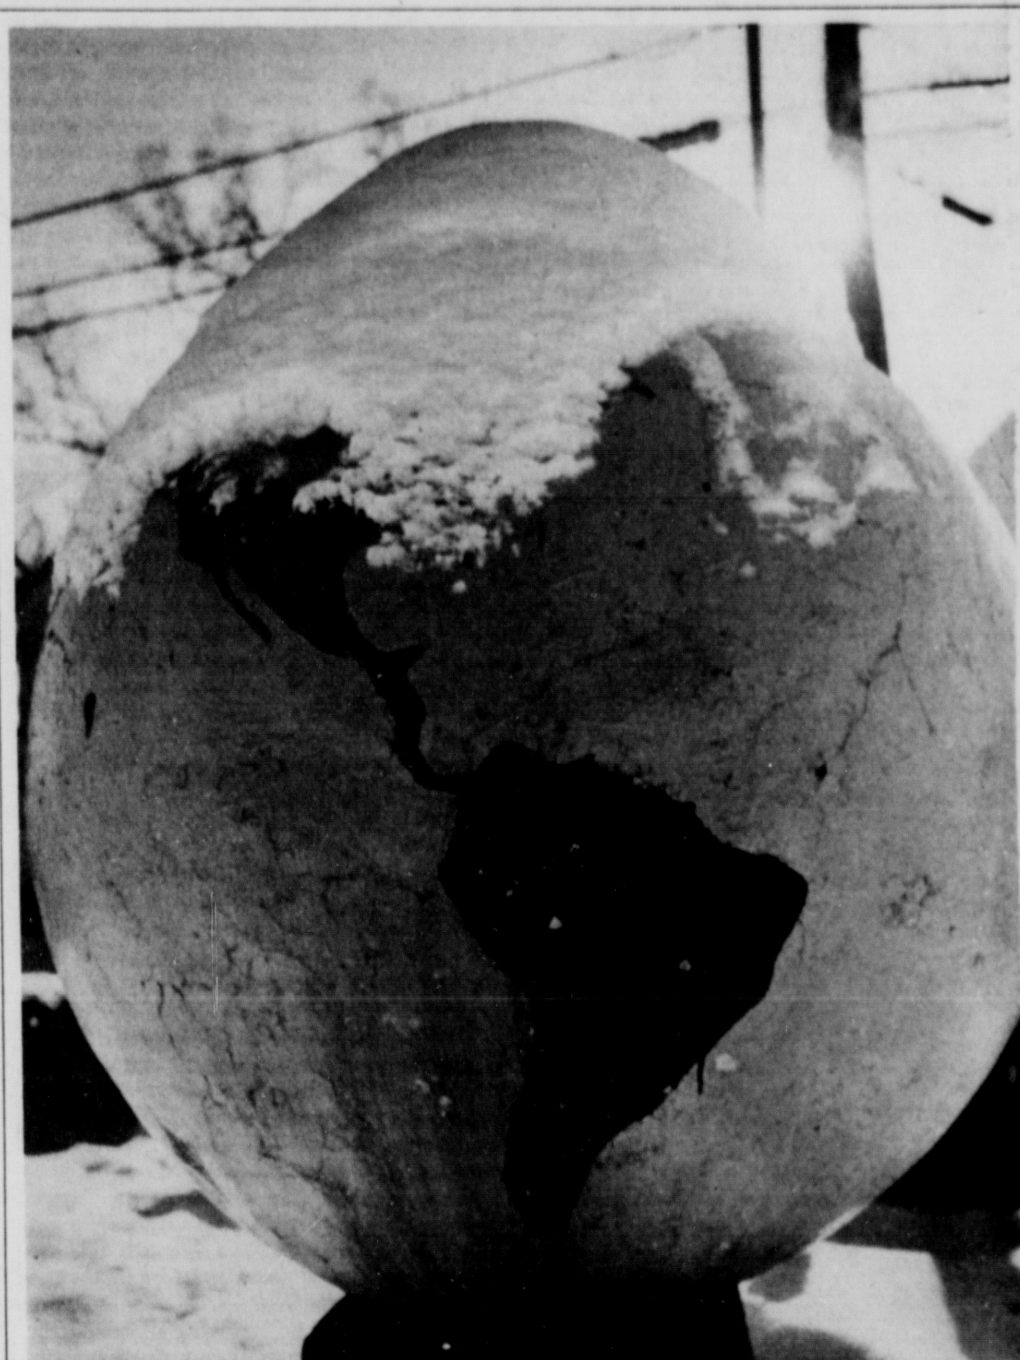

"We believe it is imperative to know what the costs and benefits are in a total capital budget before we can either recommend or advise against this project," the board's statement said.

The board, with only one dissenting vote, disapproved a proposal by the Rochester Planning Board to rezone most of Route 209 within the town for business use and to extend depth of the business zone from the present 300 feet to 600 feet. The proposal would make 6.3 of the 8 miles of Route 209 within the town into a business zone.

Board members felt that such a proposal would have an adverse effect on existing business areas in Accord and just across the Wawarsing town line in Kerhonkson. The Rochester Planning Board, if it tries to overrule the county planners' decision, must now muster a majority plus one instead of a simple majority vote.

The board, acting on the recommendation of the two Kingston hospitals, the Ulster County Board of Health and the Ulster County Medical Society, voted to favor the Hudson Valley Health System Agency Task Force over the Northern Metropolitan Health Planning Council as the administrative agency for federal health funds in Orange, Dutchess, Putnam, Sullivan, Ulster and Westchester Counties.

Watch Out For That Ice Cap!

This graphic depiction of weather conditions in our region of the globe offers its testimony at the corner of Clifton and Highland Avenues, Kingston. Freeman photographer Alan Carey summed up his impression as "North Pole." While George Sands may worry about the snows of yesteryear, more snow for this year is forecast for Friday in the Hudson Valley, with lows tonight projected at 0-10 degrees and high temperatures seen for tomorrow in the 30s.

Dyson Favors PCB Compromise

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State Commerce Commissioner John S. Dyson says state officials should compromise rather than take such a hard line against chemical discharges from two General Electric plants that they close.

The Environmental Conservation Department is seeking to force the company to completely end the discharge of polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCB's, into the Hudson from plants at Fort Edward and Hudson Falls by Sept. 30.

En Con Commissioner Ogden R. Reid has charged that the emissions were "a hazard to human health" and "likely to cause irreparable damage to the Hudson."

"It's time to moderate things a bit," Dyson said Wednesday, adding that if "environmental zealots" insist on the total elimination of the discharges GE says it could be forced to close the plants and eliminate 1,800 jobs.

Dyson, formerly state agriculture commissioner, said he was attempting to persuade Reid to negotiate a settlement rather than continue with formal proceedings against the company.

"I had lunch with him yesterday," Dyson said. "I'm trying to get him to begin negotiations but I haven't succeeded yet. What I think we ought to do — Reid, myself, the federal Environmental Protection Agency and GE — is sit down" to discuss the matter.

An En Con spokesman said Columbia Law School professor Abraham D. Sofaer who conducted hearings last fall in the dispute, was expected to give his report to Reid by the end of the month.

After he receives the report, the spokesman said, Reid will issue a final ruling in the case. In addition to a complete elimination of PCB discharges, En Con is seeking a $2 million performance bond from GE and clean-up of the river. Reid has charged that samples of fish taken from the Hudson show levels of PCB's far above the maximum recommended for human consumption. The chemical is used in manufacturing electric capacitors and transformers.

He said the company has already reduced the discharge of PCB's to a level of about 3 pounds a day, and said the company has indicated it could trim that amount to 3 ounces daily by the end of the year.

"If it's a difference between zero ounces and zero jobs and 3 ounces and 1,800 jobs, this state is in such a state that we're damn well better off with the 1,800 jobs," Dyson said.

While saying he realized the harmful effects PCB discharge may have, Dyson added, "They use 35,000 pounds of PCB's a day. To have only 3 ounces of discharge is not bad. I think that is a pretty good faith effort."

He said GE officials claim substitutes for PCB's are more expensive and less marketable and that discharge below 3 ounces would be nearly impossible to achieve in the immediate future.

"I'm unconvinced that it's technically possible and I'm unconvinced that the company would be able to compete" if forced to end its discharge completely.

He said that closing the plants would throw 1,800 workers, about one-third of whom are currently laid off, out of jobs, boosting the unemployment rate in Warren and Washington counties from 12 to 15 per cent.

Earlier Wednesday Dyson received a petition from workers at the plant who were seeking a compromise in the dispute.

Mother Is Fighting Ontario Busing Policy

By Jon Powers

SHOKAN

The mother of a five-year-old kindergarten student has threatened to withhold her child from the Woodstock Elementary School unless the Ontario Central School District revises its policy that requires the boy to walk three-tenths of a mile from his home to the nearest busstop.

But a spokesman for the Ontario Board of Education says that financial factors make it impossible to alter, or ignore, the rule.

Mrs. Russell Oakes of Boice Road in Glenford has been fighting since September to persuade the school district to have a bus pick up her son, Robert, in front of the Oakes home. As matters now stand, Robert is required to walk from his home to a busstop on the Wittenberg-Glenford Road, three-tenths of a mile away.

It's apparently not so much the distance involved that bothers Mr. and Mrs. Oakes, but rather that the area is heavily wooded, that the road is narrow and twisting, and that there are no sidewalks in that neighborhood.

"I'd be scared to death to send him to the busstop alone," Mrs. Oakes told the Freeman. "I'd have no way of knowing if he got there safely."

Her husband is currently unemployed, so he has lately been escorting the child to the busstop, a practice that may be slightly inconvenient, but at least eliminates the family's concern for their son's safety. Oakes, however, has enrolled in Spring courses at Ulster County Community College, and his tentative schedule doesn't coincide with the daily

12:20 p.m. arrival of Robert's school bus.

That leaves Mrs. Oakes. Earlier this year, when her husband was working, she accompanied Robert, on foot, to the busstop. But she gave birth to another child in September, and now isn't about to carry her baby to and from the busstop in the middle of winter along an icy, hilly road. She dismisses one school district suggestion that she hire a baby sitter for a half-hour every afternoon as economically prohibitive.

So, when her husband is unavailable, Mrs. Oakes simply refuses to send Robert to school, a decision her son neither understands or enjoys. So far, he's missed 13 days of school since September, and Mrs. Oakes says she'll continue the practice until she gets some satisfaction from the school board.

In her quest for some action, Mrs. Oakes has touched just about every base. She first approached the principal of the Woodstock School, as well as Carlton Buley, the district's transportation supervisor. Neither, however, had the authority to change the policy.

She then contacted Superintendent of Schools Dr. Frank M. Marlow. He was suspended by the board of education a short time later. She next called Acting Superintendent Carl T. Brown, who examined the site personally and, according to Mrs. Oakes, seemed optimistic that something could be done. But Brown was replaced in late November and Dr. John Keough was appointed new acting superintendent.

So Mrs. Oakes called Keough, who suggested she contact John Mower, vice-president of the school board. She did.

Mower told the Freeman that the board is sympathetic, but that district policy expressly prohibits bus transportation for elementary students who live within one-half mile of the nearest bus-stop. To make an exception in the Oakes case, he said, would morally obligate the district to make exceptions for other families as well.

"This is a matter that comes up all the time," said Mower. "I know of four families on Trevor Road who are in the same situation. We're not talking about one little bus for Mrs. Oakes' child, we're talking about a lot of little buses all over the school district."

Mower also noted that the state minimum is currently two miles; in other words, the state has said that any elementary student who lives less than two miles from school or busstop need not be given transportation. Apparently believing that minimum to be unreasonable, Ontario set its own minimum at one-half mile.

There is another point the district feels it must consider. If the minimum is lowered to, say, three-tenths of a mile, the people who fall just short of that level could ask for special treatment. Either establish a minimum and stick to it, said Mower, or provide full transportation for every student in the district. For a district that covers 400 square miles, that second alternative would mean financial suicide.

Right now, Mrs. Oakes is only concerned with her own family's peculiar hardship, and she says she will seek the services of an attorney to file suit against the district.

Vatican Code on Sex

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican said today premarital sex, homosexual relations and masturbation are sins that can never be condoned, but only God can judge the degree of guilt of each sinner.

An unprecedented contemporary sexual code for Roman Catholics condemned modern society's "unbridled exaltation of sex" and said there was no acceptable sexual activity outside marriage.

The document, published today, said some present-day theologians erred in saying there could be no mortal sin in sex.

NATO Steps Into Dispute

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — The Secretary General of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization planned a meeting today with the Icelandic cabinet in an effort to solve a fishing rights dispute that threatens diplomatic relations between Iceland and Britain.

Secretary General Joseph Luns was scheduled to meet Prime Minister Geir Hall-Gremsson's cabinet at an unspecified morning session, and government officials said he would have later talks with opposition party leaders.

Luns stepped in to try to find an acceptable formula to end what he called "this deplorable conflict" after Iceland threatened to sever relations with its NATO ally if British warships did not leave Icelandic waters immediately.

Death Bogs Down Probe

NEW YORK — A grand jury investigation of Bronx politicians by special anti-corruption prosecutor Maurice Nadjari has bogged down temporarily due to the death of State Supreme Court Justice John M. Murtagh.

The judge had been expected to rule this week on motions by Democratic State Chairman Patrick J. Cunningham and three other Bronx politicians seeking to quash Nadjari subpoenas.

Aides to Gov. Hugh Carey spent Wednesday conferring on Murtagh's successor and other legal issues involved in the case.

Assault Stepped Up

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Moslem and Palestinian forces shelled Christian positions south of Beirut today and pushed north through the capital to cut off supply routes to beleaguered Christians in the seaside hotel district.

Initial reports from the Christian stronghold of Damour, 25 miles south of the capital, said casualties among the 15,000 residents were running high and the wounded were being evacuated by sea.

The stepped-up assault was in retaliation for the seizure of a Palestinian refugee camp in the fiercest fighting of the nine-month-old civil war.

Bomb Blast in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO — A powerful bomb meant for the Iranian consulate exploded in a downtown highrise office building Wednesday night, injuring two persons and causing $200,000 damage.

A message from the underground Red Guerrilla Family was received by United Press International two hours after the blast. It said the explosion was "in support of the Iranian people's struggle to rid themselves of the CIA-backed Shah."

The consulate, located on the 13th floor of the 41-story Embarcadero Center, was only slightly damaged but the nearby offices of a chemical firm suffered extensive damage.

THE SENATOR AND MARION JAVITS

'I See Nothing Wrong'

(UPI)

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., says he sees nothing wrong in his wife's working as a foreign agent for Iran.

Javits, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was commenting on a story appearing in Wednesday's Village Voice newspaper which pegged his wife Marion as a registered agent for the oil-rich country.

Javits said, "In our private lives, we are husband and wife. But when it comes to our professional obligations, we pursue independent lives and make independent judgments. That's the way it has been for most of 28 years, and that's the way it will continue to be." Marvin Frankel, president of Ruder & Finn International where Mrs. Javits works, confirmed she was registered as a foreign agent for Iran in connection with her $67,500 a year job.

Persons representing foreign governments, corporations or individuals in the United States are required to register with the federal government under the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938.

Frankel said the 50-year-old wife of New York's senior senator has worked on a promotional campaign for Iran Air since September. He said the Iran Air project currently was her only account.

She previously had been employed as a consultant for the firm, primarily in the arts field, Frankel said.

According to Frankel, Mrs. Javits registered six months ago as a foreign agent.

Iran, second largest oil-producing nation in the Middle East, is a Moslem nation, but its people are not Arabs. Iran has sold oil to Israel.

KINGSTON

Richard L. Treat, publisher of the Daily Freeman, announced today that this paper will act as sponsor of the world famous Dale Carnegie Course soon to begin in Kingston.

"We are bringing the course again to our community because we feel it is in the interest of public service," Treat said.

entitled "I Will Prepare Myself."

The organization of this class will be under the direction of Paul Jernigan, class manager for Dale Carnegie Institute of Albany.

"The Dale Carnegie Course, for more than a half century, has been helping men and women to live happier, richer and more successful lives through the discovery and development of their hidden talents and potential abilities," said Jernigan, "such as the development of greater self confidence, a keen memory and more effective powers of communication." He added that many people take the course primarily because they want a broader understanding of human relations. They want to know how to get along even more graciously with people whether it be in a business or social situation or at home.

Jernigan reported that during its 65 years of operation, the course has graduated more than a million men and women and is offered in 50 states and in many foreign countries. Those interested in more information may write or call the Daily Freeman, 331-5000.

Murtagh Rites Friday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Funeral services will be held at St. Patrick's Cathedral Friday for State Supreme Court Justice John M. Murtagh, the judge designated to preside over cases developed by special state prosecutor Maurice Nadjari.

Murtagh died of a heart attack Tuesday at the age of 64.

By a tragic coincidence, the foreman of one of Nadjari's grand juries died of a heart attack at about the same time as Murtagh, a spokesman for Nadjari said Wednesday.

He said foreman Shirley Smith died in his Manhattan home.

The spokesman said Smith's death will not delay grand jury proceedings.

"We'll just have to select another foreman," he said.

Murtagh had been working on several legal matters, including the politically explosive charge that Democratic State Chairman Patrick J. Cunningham has been selling judgeships in the Bronx.

Murtagh was to have ruled this week on Cunningham's motion to throw out a subpoena filed in the case, which has involved top officials of both major parties, including Gov. Hugh Carey.

Tourism Program

KINGSTON Ulster County and three other counties which are members of the Catskill Region Information Association (CRIA) will be participating in seven vacation and travel vehicle shows this year, according to Albert J. Cawein, association president and Ulster County public relations director.

The first show being participated in by Ulster, Greene, Sullivan and Delaware counties will be the Long Island Recreational Vehicle and Camping Show at the Nassau Coliseum in Hempstead, which is open until Jan. 18.

Also scheduled is the New England Recreational Vehicle Show at Hartford, Conn., Feb. 5-8. Others scheduled in the four-county cooperative tourism venture are the New England Sportsmen's and Travel Show in Boston, Mass.; Eastern Sports, Boat, Camping and Travel Show in Harrisburg, Pa.; shows in Quebec and Ottawa, Can., and one other show to be scheduled at a later date.

The show sites selected were chosen in order to make the greatest impact on prospective tourism trade during the Bicentennial year, according to Cawein.

Newspaper and magazine coupon responses indicate there is considerable interest among families in Long Island, Connecticut and Pennsylvania to vacation in the historic Mid-Hudson Valley and Ulster County in particular, he said.

County Pupil $$ Below Average

ALBANY An audit of the financial operations of New York State school districts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1974, showed Ulster County per-pupil spending 16 per cent below the statewide average of $1,767.

The report from State Comptroller Arthur Levitt showed that neighboring counties were all below the statewide average, with Dutchess County 12 per cent under, Greene County 23 per cent under, Orange County 15 per cent under and Sullivan County 12 per cent under.

A closer look at statistics from Levitt's office shows that spending in this area might not be as much out of line as indicated from the above figures. Only New York City and five counties are above the statewide average, with a sixth (Suffolk) almost exactly on the average. The counties include Nassau, Westchester, Rockland and Putnam, all in the New York metropolitan orbit, above the statewide average, with rural Hamilton County in central New York the only upstate county with a spending figure above the average. The other 51 counties in the state are all below.

Removing New York City alone, with its $1,996 per-pupil expenditure, would lower the statewide average considerably and put the figures for Ulster County and its neighbors considerably nearer the average.

School tax rates per $1,000 of full value showed a much wider range with Ulster County three per cent below the state wide average, ranking 21st highest in the table of 57 counties and New York City. Dutchess County was 12 per cent above, ranking sixth; Greene County 21 per cent below (53rd), Orange County two per cent above (15th) and Sullivan County eight per cent below (32nd).

An examination of school district expenditures as a percentage of all local government expenditures showed Ulster County with 52.8 per cent, higher than the statewide average of slightly more than 45 per cent. A different picture emerges when New York City, with its low 20.5 per cent is included, brings the statewide average down to 33 per cent.

Other figures show that Dutchess County school expenditures were 54.3 per cent of all local government spending. The corresponding percentages for other neighboring counties were: Greene, 40.1; Orange, 50.3; and Sullivan, 39. Statewide, percentages varied from Hamilton County's low of 31.5 to Tioga County's high of 65.6.

Figures for 1974 show Ulster County receiving one per cent less than the statewide average of $758 per pupil in state aid. Other county figures: Dutchess, 7 per cent above; Greene, two per cent below; Orange, 13 per cent above, and Sullivan, 14 per cent below.

Across the state, real property taxes continued as the main financial support of schools, having furnished 50 per cent of revenues for 1974, with state aid providing 38 per cent, federal aid six per cent, and charges for services (summer school and adult education fees, tuition charges, etc.) interest on deposits, rentals, athletic receipts, delinquent tax collections, sales of surplus materials and property and other miscellaneous items making up the remaining six per cent.

A breakdown of the nine school districts in Ulster County shows a wide variation in real property school taxes as a percentage of full value, ranging from Highland's top 2.588 per cent down to Marlboro's low of 1.221 per cent. The Marlboro figure, substantially below other districts, reflects the presence of the Danskammer and Roseton Point electrical generating plants of Central Hudson within its borders, properties that contribute substantially to the district's tax receipts. Other figures include Kingston, 2.197 per cent; Ellenville, 1.192 per cent; New Paltz, 2.329 per cent; Onteora, 1.873 per cent; Rondout Valley, 1.883 per cent; Saugerties, 1.809 per cent; and Walkill, 2.218 per cent.

Wallkill 'Family' Plan Nears

ALBANY State officials in the Department of Corrections are placing the finishing touches on the family visitation pilot program now scheduled to begin at Wallkill Correctional Facility in mid-March.

That new target date (the one announced last September was the beginning of this year) was arrived at Wednesday during a top level executive staff meeting in Albany.

The holdup now is simply a matter of setting up criteria for selection of prisoners to participate in the visitation program in five new mobile homes on the Wallkill grounds and deciding on details of that operation.

The primary background information source for prison visitation programs is the California state system, in operation for about eight years, according to Albany spokesmen.

The California system, in use at all state prisons including maximum security, gives the prisoner the choice in his or her application of a 19 or 43-hour visitation. It was explained that some inmates have difficulty in dealing with their wives and families for too long a period at first.

Part of the choice, of course, of participants is based on their record of behavior and the visitation thus takes on some of the characteristics of reward, or possibly punishment.

In order to give the most inmates possible a chance to meet with their families and hopefully be stimulated more toward "reintegration" with society (to use psychological jargon), the California system carries on continuously through the week.

The Wallkill program has been held up slightly behind the mechanical work of hooking up water and sewerage lines to the five mobile homes and getting them physically ready for occupancy.

The family itself may receive some aid from the Department of Corrections in the New York program, according to the ministerial service, which will maintain a component of the chaplain's staff in New York City for liaison work. The largest number of inmates at Wallkill come from the metropolitan area.

Ridge Man Sentenced

KINGSTON A young Stone Ridge man who previously pleaded guilty to first degree burglary in connection with a Town of Ulster break-in last June was sentenced Wednesday by County Judge Raymond J. Mono to a prison term with a maximum of six years.

Jeffrey Brown, 21, of Atwood Road, Stone Ridge, had entered the guilty plea during a court appearance last month.

Brown was arrested last June after allegedly breaking into the home of James Price of Vista Drive, Town of Ulster. At the time authorities said Price arrived home and was confronted by Brown, who was carrying a knife. Ulster County Sheriff's deputies said Price was able to keep Brown in the house until their arrival.

In a plea for leniency, defense attorney Charles Saccoman said Brown's problems stemmed from his involvement with drugs and noted that incarceration was "not really the answer to this problem."

Judge Mino, noting that a prison term was mandated by law on the charge, which is a Class B felony, handed out the six year sentence. Brown faced a possible maximum sentence of 25 years on the charge. Brown was additionally sentenced to a concurrent prison term with a maximum of two years on a previous drug possession charge.

Assistant District Attorney John Modjeska represented the People during sentencing.

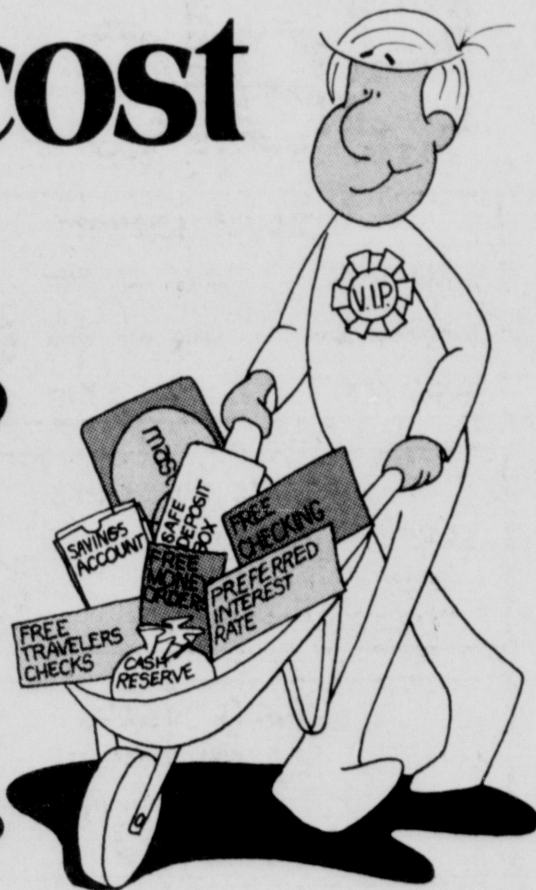

Also in county court on Wednesday, Daniel Green, 35, pleaded guilty to one count of second degree grand larceny. Green had allegedly defrauded five area residents out of more than $8,000, police said after returning him from Portland, Ore., last October.

Green had been indicted on five counts of second degree grand larceny and one count of second degree forgery in connection with the case.

During Green's court appearance Wednesday it was noted that the district attorney's office had previously agreed to a stipulation that Green would receive a maximum one-year jail sentence on the charge assuming he has not prior felony convictions and if he makes restitution.

Sentencing of Green, who was represented by Attorney William Pretsch, was put over until a later date.

Big Strides in Quake Alerts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The late Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai viewed the devastation of a great earthquake that killed tens of thousands of people near Hsing'ai in 1966 and said: "We must predict earthquakes."

China thus gave high priority to earthquake research and, after a five-year interruption from the Cultural Revolution, has made major strides in developing the science of predicting when and where tremors will occur.

The Chinese claim to have predicted 11 earthquakes so far and it is believed that one forecast warned the residents of Liaoning Province in time to avoid widespread deaths from a destructive tremor that struck Feb. 4, 1975.

"There can be no doubt that China's program is significant and merits international attention," said a team of American geophysicists who spent a month visiting major Chinese research institutes and field stations in late 1974. "Their program in terms of commitment and technology ranks with the best," the 13 U.S. scientists said in a report published in a recent issue of EOS, the journal of the American Geophysical Union.

"To the Chinese, earthquake prediction manifests the concept of science for the people," the report said. "Like the elimination of disease, protecting the people from the great scourge of earthquakes that has afflicted them for centuries is seen as an appropriate concern of the state."

China has a long history of catastrophic earthquakes. Close to a million people died in the Huahsein quake of 1556 and 180,000 were killed in the 1920 Kansu earthquake.

Because housing in rural areas of China is so susceptible to earthquake damage, the report said the nation's best strategy is to develop accurate ways of predicting imminent tremors to evacuate the people rather than attempt to strengthen the present housing.

Several hundred scientists and thousands of technicians are now involved in the Chinese program. There are 250 seismic stations in the vast nation and 5,000 observation points.

The report said the Chinese program suffers from the lack of modern computers and lacks some of the sophisticated instruments in use in the United States.

But Chinese scientists have considerable numbers of modern instruments. The report said when the Chinese were rebuffed from buying some sophisticated magnetometers from the United States, they built the instruments themselves.

"Their recent progress is amazing and bodes well for the future," said Dr. Frank Press, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in an introductory section of the report.

Press said "considerable benefit might be derived if the Chinese and the Americans were to launch a cooperative earthquake research effort."

"If a pooling of the knowledge and expertise of international scientific communities could be accomplished, there is little doubt that accurate earthquake prediction would become a reality in the foreseeable future."

Bad Egg Word for Some

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Family-sized egg producing farms eventually may be driven out of business by factory-type operators unless they are willing to accept lower returns, an Agriculture Department study warns.

The agency's Farmer Cooperative Service said in the study that some experts have suggested farmers could compete with the integrated "egg complexes" by setting up cooperatives to coordinate production and marketing. But, even this may not be enough, the FCS said.

An economic analysis of hypothetical units turning out 21 million dozen eggs annually showed production costs for a co-op owned by family farmers would be 1.6 cents a dozen higher than costs for an owner-integrated complex, officials said.

Experts said a farmer-owned co-op could compete with egg factories if it could develop greater efficiencies than the owner-integrated unit. If the co-op is no more efficient than the owner-operated factory, however, its survival would depend on what returns the farmer-members would accept.

"If it (a co-op) is to be viable, the participants...probably will have to accept somewhat lower returns on their resources than owner-integrators would receive," the report said.

Experts estimated, for example, that if a 21 million dozen-a-year complex owned by an individual or single company earned 15 per cent on its investment, a similar-sized coop would be paying its members only 9.9 per cent if they also allowed themselves $3 an hour for their labor.

If the producers allotted $5 an hour for their own labor, their investment return under the same circumstances would be down to 7 per cent. At a labor allocation of $7 an hour, capital returns would be 4.1 per cent for the co-op compared to 15 per cent for the owner-operated complex.

Economists said integration of production and marketing has not gone as far yet in egg production as in the broiler industry where nearly all chickens are produced by integrated firms using "contract growers" to raise their birds.

But, integration of egg production has been making rapid strides in recent years. One recently constructed new facility at Bethune, S.C., the report noted, includes under single ownership a feed mill, brooding and rearing facilities for hens, 16 laying houses for 1.1 million birds and an egg processing plant.

Just a Slight Change of Script

LONDON (UPI) — Upstairs was the lovely Countess of Carrick, wife of the Earl of Carrick, mother of his two children and mistress of his mansion.

Downstairs was Roy Holder, the chauffeur who drove the family Rolls Royce, married to a working housewife with a job in a government department.

In the Edwardian England in which the television series "Upstairs, Downstairs" was set, the upper and lower classes never mingled socially.

But this is a different era and the Countess of Carrick and the chauffeur fell in love.

Last September the Earl, a distinguished businessman, returned from one of his frequent trips abroad to find his wife had left home and was living in a small apartment with his chauffeur.

Throughout the affair which stirred British society — but was not nearly the sensation it might have been in less liberated days — he maintained he would be content with whatever made his 44-year-old wife happy.

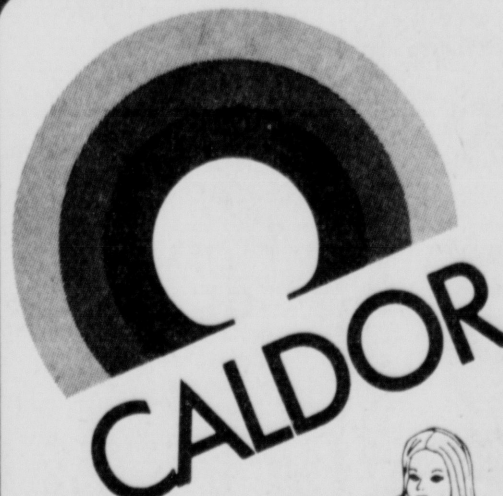

Three days after the Earl obtained his divorce, the Countess and Holder, 44, made their first appearance in public since they left their homes to move in together four months ago.

They were recognized drinking beer and munching potato chips at a pub in Hanscombe, Surrey, not far from the great Carrick country house where they met. The Earl sold the mansion after his wife left.

Holder and the Countess said their affair had stood "the test of love."

"We are lovers," said the chauffeur, "with the misfortune of a title, the difference between a servant and the gentry and a wide gap in our social backgrounds."

"All sorts of things have been said about us, particularly about me, and how I was supposed to have made a pass at the lady in the back seat. The truth is that Belinda preferred me to her husband and I wanted her more than my wife. That's how the affair began and now we are together."

Railroad Town Target of Angola Push

LUSO, Angola (UPI) — Soviet-backed troops supported by heavy artillery and front-line Cuban soldiers headed toward Angola's eastern front today to capture this railroad town from pro-Western rivals, a military spokesman reported.

Col. Samuel Chiwale, army commander of the pro-Western Total Independence of Angola, said the rival Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola and its support units numbered at least 1,000 and included Russian advisers and Cuban troops.

Earlier this week, the force bombarded National Union positions with long-range artillery about 50 miles north of Lusó, paving the way for an imminent assault.

This reporter, on a visit to the front, saw South African troop movements in the immediate rear area, strongly suggesting they were aiding National Union troops in this sector near the Zaire border for the first time.

Chiwale said he was confident his forces could withstand any Popular Movement attack but would not discuss possible counter-offensives by the National Union and its ally, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola.

National Union president Jonas Savimbi toured the eastern front Wednesday on his return from the Organization of African Unity meeting in Ethiopia.

The OAU emergency summit failed to find a peace formula for the ravaged nation, leading to predictions an all-out civil war would engulf the former Portuguese colony.

National Union officials said the war would be settled on the battlefield and not at a conference table.

Lusó is a railroad town straddling the Benguela line, which slices across Angola from east to west and is a vital pipeline for Zambian and Zaire copper exports to the railroad harbor, Benguela, on the Atlantic coast.

Most of the line is already in National Union hands except for Teixeira de Sousa, on the Zaire border, which pro-Western sources said they expected to take soon.

The pro-Western forces have received severe setbacks in the north, where the Popular Movement overran the National Front strongholds of Ambriz, Ambrizete and Toto airbase.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has warned continued Soviet action in Angola could undermine detente, but said he would visit Moscow Jan. 20-23 to clarify U.S.-Soviet exchanges on Angola and to try to break a deadlock on strategic arms limitation negotiations.

During his first news conference of the new year Kissinger tied Angola and the SALT talks together and said Soviet actions in Angola were "incompatible with a genuine relaxation of tensions."

"I am saying that Soviet actions in Angola, if continued, are bound to affect the general relationship with the United States, (and) that a substantial deterioration of that relationship can also over time affect the strategic arms talks," Kissinger said.

Kissinger said Moscow had "sent close to $200 million worth of military equipment to Angola in the last nine months, which equals the total amount of all military equipment sent to all the rest of sub-Saharan Africa by all other countries."

"So that is not a minor infusion of military force."

Claiming 7,000 Cuban troops are in Angola, Kissinger said: "The fighting in the northern front in Angola is conducted almost entirely by Cuban forces and without even a pretense of any significant MPLA participation."

The MPLA is the Soviet-backed Communist Angolan faction.

He added, "We believe that this is a wholly unnecessary setback to the constructive trends in U.S.-Soviet relations which we cannot believe is ultimately in the Soviet or the world interest."

Judy: JFK, Sam Lovers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Judith Campbell Exner says she maintained sexual relationships with both President John Kennedy and the Chicago Mafia leader Sam Giancana during the early 1960s but insists she did not discuss government or crime with her lovers.

In an outline of her forthcoming book, Mrs. Exner also said Kennedy told her his marriage was in bad shape and she had intended to divorce him, but the Kennedy family made Jackie realize "that a divorced Catholic from Boston stood small chance of gaining the nomination, let alone the presidency."

Mrs. Exner, 41, said she was introduced to both Kennedy and Giancana by Frank Sinatra, with whom she earlier had an affair.

Scott Meredith, Mrs. Exner's literary agent, said Wednesday he expected her ghost written book, to be published in about three months, to "earn upwards of $2 million worldwide."

The outline, submitted to several publishers for bids, said Mrs. Exner began her affair with Kennedy in March, 1960, with a four-day tryst at the Plaza Hotel in New York.

She said Sinatra introduced her to Kennedy Feb. 7, 1960, at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas and she took "an immediate liking to Jack Kennedy" who asked her to lunch the next day. She said Ted Kennedy, who also was in Las Vegas, asked her to accompany him on a campaign trip to Denver the next day, but she refused.

Mrs. Exner said her sexual liaison with Kennedy continued through the fall of 1962 and included about 20 meetings in the White House in mid-1961.

She said they parted on a friendly basis because it "simply had become too difficult to maintain the relationship with the constant need for secrecy and the pressures and demands Kennedy had to meet."

About two weeks after she began her affair with Kennedy, the outline said, she was introduced to Giancana by Sinatra at the Fountainbleu Hotel in Miami Beach and they, too, became lovers.

The outline said, "Judith has absolutely no knowledge of having been used as a connection between the Mafia and the White House." She said neither Kennedy nor Giancana discussed business with her.

Mrs. Exner's relationship became public when she was subpoenaed before a Senate committee investigating alleged ties between the CIA and the Mafia in connection with a reported plot to assassinate Cuban premier Fidel Castro. Her testimony has not been made public.

Giancana also was sub-

A Call For Jobs Marks King Date

Charging the Nixon and Ford administrations with forcing the poor to bear the brunt of inflation, Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. issued a call today for full employment in one of many ceremonies around the nation marking the 47th anniversary of her late husband's birth.

"The poor, minorities, and average working people have been deliberately chosen by the immediate past and current administration to bear the brunt of our economic policy," said Mrs. King in Atlanta.

A massive march from Ebenezer Baptist Church, where the slain civil rights leader preached, to the Federal Reserve Bank in downtown Atlanta was held to dramatize the need for jobs.

Mrs. King also planned to place a wreath at the King gravesite.

A petition asking Congress to investigate the King slaying was signed by 888 persons, circulated in Milwaukee and sent to Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis.

In a letter to Mrs. King, President Ford pledged renewed dedication to the achievement of equality for all Americans, citing King's "eloquent commitment to the cause of civil rights" and his forceful leadership.

Observances also were planned in other cities. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference sponsored a march in Louisville, Ky., designed to counter strong anti-busing sentiment in the area stemming from a court-ordered school desegregation plan.

The Skala Censure

In a previous editorial, the Freeman supported Kingston School Consolidated Board of Education member Richard Skala after he was censured by the board.

An article submitted by WHITA earlier in the week supported Mr. Skala, despite the censure. That same WHITA article also disclosed an attack by Skala on School Superintendent Salzmann and school board members for a trip to Dallas, Tex.

Skala said that the school system would have been just as well served had only two representatives attended the convention instead of six. The Freeman's editorial was in error. We reported that Mr. Skala was censured for criticizing the board about the Texas junket.

Actually, the board's action in censuring Mr. Skala was justified. He attempted to stop Mr. Salzmann from speaking on board matters at a public meeting on Dec. 11. Mr. Skala took exception to those statements made by Mr. Salzmann.

The Superintendent of Schools, has, by law, the right to speak on any public matter concerning the board.

We disagree with Mr. Skala's attempt to silence Mr. Salzmann. His action could be misinterpreted by some as a personal attack on Mr. Salzmann.

We hope never to see the day when officials cannot openly discuss issues concerning our community.

The Freeman apologizes to school board members for the previous editorial.

As for the Texas junket, however, we still would like the board to explain why six representatives were sent to an out-of-state meeting half way across the country.

Impartial Board Sought

Editor, The Freeman:

(Open Letter to the Ontario Board of Education)

I am quite concerned with both recent and pending actions of the Board of Education. These concerns relate not to the guilt or innocence of Dr. Marlow or the published charges against him, but rather the effects of the Board's actions on both the schools and the taxpayer.

At the October 21 special meeting of the Board, Mr. Lawson stated that $5000 had been set aside for legal expenses in conjunction with the charges against Dr. Marlow and "Mr. Matthews knows that is the limit he has to work with." When Mrs. Motrie asked—"suppose it isn't resolved within the $5000 limit"—it was reiterated by Mr. Lawson that $5000 was the limit.

At the December meeting, the Board affirmed that the $5000 maximum applied to both attorneys. (After Mr. Donoghue's bill of about $800, Mr. Matthews has the remaining $4200 as his maximum.) I also asked as to the scope of the services to be covered by this maximum:

- drawing of charges,
- drawing of charges plus services at the hearing, or
- both of the above plus any follow-on legal activity. This question was not answered; however, Mr. Lawson did state that if more money was required than was already allotted, then more money would be appropriated.

This last statement is in direct conflict with the answer Mr. Lawson gave to Mrs. Motrie's question at the October meeting. Evidently Mr. Lawson has now changed his mind. What will the limit be?

In a personal meeting one of the Board members told me that "if the costs exceed the $5000 maximum it will be Dr. Marlow's fault because he chooses to escalate" the issue.

Just what is the potential sequence of events? I believe that as a result of the pending public hearing on the charges, the Board could take any of three actions: dismiss the charges, dismiss Dr. Marlow, or re-structure his job. If he wishes, Dr. Marlow could then appeal to the Commissioner of Education. If either the Board or Dr. Marlow still feels aggrieved, the case could be taken to the courts. This could cost the taxpayers many thousands of dollars. (and has in other districts) and would be Dr. Marlow's "fault" only if the Commissioner upholds the Board and Marlow appeals. Otherwise the "fault" would be squarely with the Board.

As a taxpayer, I do not appreciate my tax money being spent pursuing the type of charges so far presented. It can be spent in much better ways!! Many of the people (including teachers) I come in contact with feel the same way. I propose either that legal action be terminated at the expenditure of $5000 or a public referendum be held before any additional money is appropriated.

In his December 8 request for a public hearing on the charges against him, Dr. Marlow requested that the Board disqualify itself and an impartial arbiter or panel sit in judgement at the hearing.

It is public knowledge that the Board tried to get the superintendent to leave his job and that when he refused, the Board decided to bring charges against him. It is also known that at least one Board member has been active in recruiting people to testify against him. In addition, one of the charges involves a Board member who, it is reasonable to assume, will testify against him.

Under conditions such as these, it is difficult to understand how the Board can sit in fair and impartial judgment in this case. The Board should disqualify itself and arrange for an impartial judge or jury. Anything less will lower the credibility of the Board of Education.

Wants More Answers

Editor, The Freeman:

I went to the recent meeting at Highland High School to obtain information about the question of nuclear power in my town. What happens is Mr. Gifford Beal, moderator and claims manager for Centran Hudson, "opens" the meeting with a 45 minute introduction, of which I remember only his saying he has lived in the area for many years and on three occasions complimenting ERDA for their openness and honesty in dealing with the community regarding the Lloyd site. If ERDA is so sincere then let their actions speak for themselves. That is not the role of an impartial moderator. I also wonder about Mr. Beal's logic in limiting questions for the first half of the question and answer period to town of Lloyd and Esopus residents only. The scope and range of a nuclear plant certainly involves people in New Paltz and Poughkeepsie. The plant in reality concerns people who would have to be evacuated in case of a major disaster at the Lloyd site. This area covers a forty mile radius from the plant, not the towns of Lloyd and Esopus but Newburgh, Beacon, Millbrook and many, many more towns.

The most disagreeable portion of the evening however, was the attempt by Mr. Robertson of ERDA to prevent questions concerning health and safety features of the intended power plant. There are too many aspects of nuclear power that need to be discussed at open meetings to tell 500 hundred citizens that, no, tonight we will not deal with these aspects of the Lloyd site. Mr. Robertson you are a part of an organization that is attempting to site a nuclear power in our community, yet you shy away from talking about the most important parts of the issue. Are you being as open and honest as Mr. Beal described you at the beginning of your "informational" meeting?

Not An Engineer

Editor, The Freeman:

Thank you for publication of the problems with Route 28, but there is one error. Any reference to me and highway engineering was over the telephone and there seems to be some misunderstanding. I was NOT a highway engineer, but was in partnership with one (he is now Chief Engineer of the Brazos River Authority in Texas). Our partnership was in operating an airport for the city of Mineral Wells, not building or designing highways. Civil engineering projects that I had design functions were limited to airports. I have had, however, a long time interest in all branches of Civil Engineering.

Friends, such as my partner and Dr. G. W. Clemons, recently retired Chief Scientist for DOT's department of Highways, have educated me in highway design as improvements were incorporated in both projects and designs. Dr. Clemons was generous enough to furnish me with Federal publications as they were released. I do not, however, have a formal civil engineering education, nor have I ever been a highway engineer.

I would appreciate your publicizing these facts.

More on the CIA

Have you noticed that although there is a great deal of talk about a new morality that issues from the arrival of a nuclear age, some of the conclusions one would expect from the acceptance of that proposition are resisted? It is easy enough to find a politician or a poet who will tell you that war has become unthinkable in a nuclear age; but almost impossible to find anyone who will suggest that from that proposition, it follows that any extra-conventional step necessary to prevent nuclear war is admissible.

The CIA is in general disrepute primarily because—or so the Senate report informs us—a division of the CIA recommended the assassination of two heads of state, Patrice Lumumba, and Fidel Castro. Concerning Lumumba, I cannot conceive of the reasoning behind the recommendation, and therefore tend to join the critics. Concerning Fidel Castro, one would think that certain points should be meditated.

1. Except for the fact of the nuclear age, the United States would certainly have declared war against Castro's Cuba. The provocations far exceeded those that conventionally precede a declaration of war. Castro had invited our principal enemy into his country, to arm that country with destructive weapons aimed at American population centers; Castro had confiscated the property of American citizens; Castro was sending out platoons of revolutionaries to disturb the peace of the continent; Castro had violated the Monroe Doctrine which was the basis of our hemispheric policy.

2. But Congress did not declare war, any more than it did in Korea, or in Vietnam, and for much the same reason. War suggests the commitment of all your resources; and our resources, in a nuclear age, are sufficient to make the island of Cuba disappear from the face of the earth.

3. Under the circumstances, that which is traditionally unthinkable arises as a possible alternative. If it becomes necessary to remove the threat posed by a single leader who has a handle on nuclear weapons, does one prefer the sniper or a massive amphibious military operation?

During the Japanese war we took great pride in tracking the airplane of Admiral Yamamoto, and blasting it out of the air. That was the equivalent of an assassination, of sorts; though he was not the leader. If we had been able to track the building in which Hitler squatted, we'd have gleefully sent a bomber zoned in on those august coordinates.

The ethical question becomes: is it hypothetically possible that the sniper can avoid a nuclear devastation? And the answer is not so much that, viewed in retrospect, such a situation didn't obtain in Cuba in 1962 and 1963; but that ethical men might have considered that it obtained and might therefore, in good conscience, have recommended the elimination of a single individual.

I have used the image before, but it is enduringly useful because practically everybody agrees that General Amin is quite mad. Moreover, everyone agrees that the looming threat is of atom bombs in the hands of madmen: science is making the atom bomb a bargain basement item. Most people agree that the fanatical opposition of Amin to Israel could bring him, if he had the necessary equipment, to load an atom bomb into one of his wheezy airplanes and send it over to Israel with instructions to drop it over Tel Aviv. Our CIA finds out about it. Tipping off Israel is one thing; but Israel has no ABM system that is proof against that kind of thing.

Does the Israeli version of the CIA have the right to send a sniper down to Uganda?

The point is that it is all much more difficult than we make it out to be in routine denunciations of assassinations. Murder is a terrible instrument. And tyrannicide is, traditionally, held to be the exclusive prerogative of the indigenous oppressed. But again, the logic of the nuclear age extends these old ethical boundaries, and there is no point in keeping this from ourselves.

The Machiavelli Political Plan

WASHINGTON—The question of whether or not the United States should finance political parties abroad through the CIA doesn't seem to be a problem to the Administration. The only debate is about what parties should receive the money. Rumor has it that the CIA plans to give $6 million to the Christian Democrats in Italy to make sure the Communists don't get elected. But there are some people in Washington who feel that now that the cat is out of the bag, the contribution could be counterproductive. One of them is my friend Giulio Machiavelli who knows the political situation in Italy as well as anybody. "I think we should give money to a political party in Italy only if we're certain it will produce results." "You mean to the Christian Democrats?" I said. "No, I mean to the Italian Communist Party." "Have you gone mad?" I said to Machiavelli. "Why would we give money to the Italian Communist Party?"

"It's very simple. If the CIA hands over the funds to the Italian Communist Party, everyone will say the Communists in Italy work for the CIA and the center parties will win the election."

"But that's Machiavellian," I told my friend. "The American people would never stand for it."

"Neither would the Italians," Machiavelli said. "Look, right now every political party but the Communists are tainted in Italy because it is widely believed their politicians are on the CIA payroll. The only way we can reverse this is by putting the Communists on the payroll and cutting off everyone else."

"But you can't cut off non-Communist politicians from CIA funds," I protested. "The Right, the Center and the Non-Communist Left depend on that money for their own personal expenses. They have villas to pay off, new cars to buy, Swiss bank accounts to keep up. You can't take money out of their pockets just

Justice Department Against Gov. Shapp

WASHINGTON—Pennsylvania's Gov. Milton Shapp called on us several weeks ago to complain that the Justice Department was hounding him. He was the victim he alleged, of a "political investigation" directed by Assistant Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh.

Before Thornburgh came to Washington, he was the U.S. attorney in Pittsburgh. He campaigned against Shapp and accused him of improprieties worse than Watergate. Now Thornburgh is using his new powers in the Justice Department, Shapp charged, to try to make the charges come true.

These were serious allegations coming, as they did, from a powerful governor and presidential contender. At first, Shapp appeared to be the darkest horse in the Democratic presidential race. But in a poll taken at a Democratic convention in the key state of Florida, Shapp placed second to Georgia's ex-Gov. Jimmy Carter and beat out Alabama's Gov. George Wallace.

Therefore, we sent out reporter Marc Smolonsky to Pennsylvania to check into Shapp's complaints. Smolonsky has spent more than a month on the investigation. He has interviewed a host of state officials and government investigators from Harrisburg to Washington. Here are our conclusions:

—We found systematic corruption, including organized crime links throughout the Shapp Administration. During his two terms, 57 state officials have been indicted by grand juries. Except for an allegation of perjury in a complex contracts case, however, no wrongdoing has been attributed directly to the Governor.

—Another grand jury indictment, which should shake up the Shapp Administration, is expected within 10 days. Sources close to the investigation say Edgalio "Gene" Cerilli, chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, will be indicted on federal kickback charges.

Cerilli told us he was unaware of the possible indictment, had no idea what the charges could be based on and, in any event, had taken no kickbacks. Shapp said he couldn't believe Cerilli was guilty of the charges.

—Reliable eyewitnesses have seen state officials sitting at the same restaurant table with Joseph Scalet who, according to the Pennsylvania Crime Commission, is a Pennsylvania underworld boss. He has a regular table and telephone set up at Lombardo's restaurant near the capitol building in Harrisburg.

Among the high officials who have been spotted at his table are Lt. Gov. Ernest Klein and the Liquor Control Board's chief counsel, Harry Bowtitz. Both Klein and Bowtitz admitted seeing Scalet at Lombardo's but denied meeting with him.

—George Greenblat, vice chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, formerly owned an interest in Luv Motors, an American Motors dealership in Allentown, Pa. He also became a paid consultant for American Motors in 1971-74 while he was a turnpike official. During this same period, Pennsylvania suddenly began buying American Motors cars.

Greenblat is also part owner of a Chrysler-Plymouth dealership in Allentown. Curiously enough, the state also began purchasing Chrysler-Plymouth cars after Greenblat became a state official.

Governor Shapp admitted this didn't look good but expressed confidence in Greenblat. Federal authorities, meanwhile, are investigating. Greenblat denied any conflict of interest.

—The Philadelphia Strike Force is investigating alleged violations of the Pennsylvania liquor code by the Thrifty Beverage Company. The task force is also attempting to untangle some alleged mobster and political ties to the beverage firm.

—Federal investigators are also looking into charges that Pennsylvania's Attorney General Robert Kane wrongly granted immunity to at least one prominent politician who had been accused of taking kickbacks. Since we couldn't reach the politician for comment, we will withhold his name. Kane denied any wrongdoing.

—Shapp himself has been accused of lying to the State Contract Practice Committee on Oct. 8, 1974. His testimony dealt with the complex, controversial sale of a cable television franchise. Shapp was a pioneer in cable television and founded the Williamsport, Pa., Cable TV Company.

This is not the end of the story. We counted at least 21 separate state and federal investigations into the Pennsylvania government. However, the details tend to be repetitious.

OPPRESSION IN PARAGUAY: Paraguay has arrested a famed anthropologist, Prof. Miguel Chase Sardi, who dared to oppose President Alfredo Stroessner's genocide policies against the Ache Indians. Arrested with the professor but released, was Marilyn Renhfieldt, who also had sought civil rights for the Indians.

In the past, Stroessner actually permitted wealthy Paraguayans and freight "sportsmen" to hunt the Ache like animals, competent sources have told us. Now the genocide takes the form of slave labor and starvation. The distinguished archaeologist was charged with "subversion," which covers any opposition to veteran despot Stroessner.

munists in Italy are being financed by the Central Intelligence Agency."

"How would you publicize something like that?"

"We'd get Director William Colby to brief a congressional watchdog committee in secret session that the CIA was going to give $6 million to the Italian Communist Party. He would make them all swear that they wouldn't reveal a word of it to anyone."

"Five minutes after the briefing was over, every newspaper bureau in Washington would know about it. The day after the story was printed the White House would deny it. As soon as the denial came out, everyone in Italy would believe it was true."

"It's brilliant," I told Machiavelli. "But if the CIA starts supporting Communist parties in other countries, won't it hurt détente?"

"It might," he replied, "but what better way to show the Soviets that we mean business?"

to defeat the Communists."

"Ah, but that's just the point," Machiavelli said. "They won't be cut off. When the Soviets find out the CIA is supporting the Communist Party in Italy, the KGB will have no choice but to support the Christian Democrats. If we're to believe our government, the Soviets pour in a lot more money for an election in a foreign country than the Americans do and, therefore, the Christian Democrats will have more funds to salt away for themselves than when they were financed by the CIA."

"It's an interesting proposal," I said. "But what happens if the CIA financing is so successful the Communists win in Italy?"

"There is very little chance of that happening. In almost all cases whichever side the CIA supports in an election loses. But we must make sure that there is a great deal of publicity that the Com-

One GOP Voter in Four Favors 'Independent-Republican' Label

By George Gallup

With surveys showing Republican party affiliation at an all-time low, some GOP leaders have debated the merits of changing the name of the party in an effort to attract new voters.

The Republican party in Minnesota, as a matter of fact, recently officially changed its name to the Independent-Republican party, with the hope of drawing the support of the growing number of independents. The proportion of independents, nationwide, in fact, is at an all-time high, now far outnumbering Republicans.

Gallup Poll

When the question of changing the name of the national Republican party to the Independent-Republican party was recently asked of a sample of the nation's GOP voters, one in six voted in favor. The proportion is one in four when only the views of those expressing an opinion are considered.

Of equal significance, a similar proportion of independent voters in the survey believe a name change is in order for the GOP.

Here is the survey question: "The Republican party in Minnesota has officially changed its name to 'Independent-Republicans of Minnesota.' Do you think it would be a good idea or a poor idea for the national Republican party to add the word 'Independent' to its name, making it the Independent-Republican party?"

Following are the results based on the total sample (including the "no opinion" group):

He Lifted the Bamboo Curtain

By Don Oakley

(NEA)

Only the departure of Mao Tse-tung himself to join his ancestors would have generated a greater of more "un-Chinese" outpouring of official mourning and eulogizing than did the death of Chou En-lai.

It was a final remarkable tribute to a remarkable man.

For years it was taken for granted by China-watchers, and presumably by the Chinese themselves, that Chou — premier and No. 2 man in the Chinese Communist hierarchy, who at one time seemed to run China virtually single-handed on a day-to-day basis — would inherit the aging Mao's mantle. Few observers anticipated that he might predecease Mao.

But Chou himself was aging and was, as we now know, stricken by cancer. For the last few years of his life he was continuously hospitalized. Even so, to the outside world Chou continued to represent the semblance if not the actuality of power in China. Whatever subtle realignments and shifting of authority his long incapacity must have occasioned remain as yet unclear.

Mao Tse-tung, that semi-mythical, deified figure, now remains alone as the last of the original Chinese communists. All the rest are gone, either through death or defection or purge. The passing of Chou En-lai now makes more obvious than anything else could the great void of leadership that exists between Mao and the masses.

First Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, whose name most Americans never heard until President Ford's trip to China last fall, gives more the impression of being an interim of caretaker administrator than the new heir to Mao.

Again unlike most other Chinese Communists, Chou En-lai was well known outside his country long before President Nixon's historic visit in March, 1972 — that dramatic parting of the bamboo curtain for which Chou was so greatly responsible. For nine years before and during World War II, he had been liaison man between the Communists, Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists and Western representatives in Chungking.

He was named premier and foreign minister of the people's republic at its founding in 1949, and was the only premier it has ever had. In 1954, he represented China at the Geneva conference on Vietnam, at which was laid the ground for America's later tragic involvement in that country.

It was in 1972, however, that Chou attained something almost like popularity in the United States as host and toastmaster to the American presidential and press entourage.

The face of China that Chou presented to Americans via satellite television was an attractive one. Surely, one thought, if this urbane, gracious and obviously highly intelligent man was typical of the "new Chinese", there was no reason in the world why our two countries could not resolve their differences, initiate a mutually beneficial trade relationship and cooperated in coming years to preserve the peace in at least half the world.

Not all these great expectations have been realized. But while nothing that can be called warm relations has developed between the United States and China, there has been no relapse into the pre-1972 freeze. The presence of the Russian bear on China's northern border alone insures there will not be.

For his role in making China a world power to be reckoned with and in bringing about a new era in Chinese-American relations, Chou En-lai has earned a unique place in the history of both countries.

Holy Year Great Success

VATICAN CITY

Far from being the flop that everybody had expected — and even the Pope had feared — the Holy Year has turned out to be a roaring success. An estimated 8.4 million pilgrims had clocked in at St. Peter's basilica and three other major Roman churches by midnight on Christmas Eve, when the Pope sealed the special Holy Year bronze door at St. Peter's and thus officially closed this Roman Catholic fixture that has been going on at intervals since 1300.

That was far more than anybody in the Vatican had expected, and more than three times the result in 1950, the last Holy Year, when some 2.5 million people came.

The Pope says that, numbers apart, it will take a long time to evaluate the impact of the Holy Year on the world's 700 million Catholics. It is fairly certain (and not denied in Rome) that a few of these ostensible Catholic pilgrims were in fact staunch Protestant ladies from Britain, Jewish professors from the United States and other non-Catholics, or even non-believers, who took advantage of the many cheap Holy Year charter flights to see the sights of Rome.

Nevertheless, the Vatican is visibly bucked up by the statistics, and especially the fact that a large proportion of the pilgrims were young people. And, whatever its spiritual benefits to the next generation of Catholics, it was certainly welcomed by the Italian tourist industry, which made an estimated extra $630 million this year, a much-needed shot in the arm after a two-year recession.

It looks as if, with papal doubts now dispelled, there will be another Holy Year in 2000.

Old Soap But a Good One
Is Still on the Market

By Michael J. Conlon
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here's a question from Brownsville, Tex.:

"Whatever happened to Fels Naptha Soap, the yellow bar soap? Maybe some people find the scent of it objectionable, but to me it has a good clean smell — I can remember my grandmother used it."

"I've lived in Brownsville for almost three years now and have never seen it in the stores here. I used to live in Indianapolis, and some stores there had it."

"With all our expensive sprays, etc., that are being sold now, in my opinion nothing is superior for getting rid of stains than Fels Naptha."

The Purex Corp. says the soap still is distributed nationally, but there may be local exceptions.

A company spokesman said it disappeared in some parts of Texas because the A and P stores, which handled the product, closed. Efforts now are being made to get the soap back into distribution there. The spokesman said he will let you know if, and where, it might be available.

The same reader adds this complaint:

"Since so many companies make child-proof medicine bottles, why don't they give some thought to the adults whose eyes are not so good?"

Sometimes I have to get a magnifying glass in order to see the small mark on the bottle where the cap is supposed to be turned in order to open it.

"Also, since I do art work I need to buy gum turpentine to clean my brushes. The cap is secured so tight that I actually had to use pliers in order to open it. This in my opinion makes no sense at all."

"At least the companies should give the consumer an option and if a person prefers to buy a nonchild-proof bottle of medicine or aspirin, etc., then they should be able to."

"Also, in talking to people regarding this problem, many of them laughingly tell me they get their children to open the so-called child-proof bottle."

I also had to use pliers to get the cap off a turpentine can a couple of weeks ago. On the whole, though, tight caps are worth whatever inconvenience they may cause if they help prevent accidental poisonings.

As for the medicine bottles, you might consider transferring their contents to nonchild-proof bottles if you think no children are liable to get into them. Or ask your pharmacist for a bottle with a regular cap.

An opinion from Salem, Mo.:

"I'm a very concerned citizen about the American drinking problem. TV soap operas, as well as the evening shows, are showing the bottle as a consolation or solution to helping face problems, celebrate good news, or as a social way of life."

"Nowadays pre-school children are exposed to all the shows, and they 'catch on' to these things very young, which can lead to lifetime impressions as drinking as a way of life."

"My four and a half year old granddaughter was watching a soap opera with me, and an actress rushed to her bar for a bottle when a family crisis came up. The young granddaughter said 'Look, grandma, she's hitting the bottle.'"

"The Congress, parents, teachers and many organizations are for abolishing so much violence on TV. OK, but what about the drinking?"

My limited exposure to soap operas would seem to indicate that alcohol is one of the lesser evils portrayed, but thanks for raising the point.

Tricks for Signatures

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Robert Colbert, who collects autographs of famous persons by telling them he's named his baby after them, has a new gimmick.

Colbert, of the city's Manayunk section, recently sent a letter to Georgia state Sen. Julian Bond asking him to send a congratulatory letter to his great-grandmother on her 100th birthday.

The letter was signed Mr. and Mrs. Ira Strouse. But that's not what tipped off Bond.

The last line of the note read: "She cannot read typing so would you please handwrite only."

The grandmother doesn't exist.

"It's just a gimmick to collect some autographs," Colbert said. "No harm."

One of Colbert's earlier endeavors to collect famous signatures had international implications.

He sent a letter to Yasir Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, asking him to send an autograph to his baby. The baby, Colbert wrote, was named after the Arab leader.

Arafat didn't know it at the time, but he was one of many persons who received such a letter.

The baby didn't exist either. The Colberts' son is 13 years old.

A spokesman for the district attorney's office in Philadelphia said a "crime might exist" in Colbert's actions but "the chances of a successful prosecution are slim."

Colbert, an unemployed paper cutter, said he has been collecting autographs for the past eight years and has accumulated several hundred.

He Never Reaped Inspiration's Reward

TAKOMA PARK, Md. (UPI) — Helping his mother sweep out a theater in Chattanooga, Tenn., 45 years ago, Cleavant Derricks found a $5 bill and the inspiration to write one of the nation's most famous gospel songs, "Just a Little Talk With Jesus."

The song has been recorded again and again by at least 300 singers, including Tennessee Ernie Ford and Loretta Lynn.

But Derricks, now 65 and stricken with cancer, never received a cent in royalties.

The $5 he found paid for a music lesson at Chattanooga's Cadek Conservatory of Music, one of the first such Southern schools to admit blacks. He swapped his song for 50 songbooks he sold at churches and gospel meetings for 10 cents each — another $5 at most.

His songs became famous but Derricks was almost forgotten. Still, he is not bitter despite major medical bills and life in a suburban Washington apartment that, while comfortable, is far from the luxury enjoyed by many music stars.

"It was the work of the Devil, but God let it happen," Derricks said. "I'm not responsible for my being known in the gospel music field. Folks stole from me and put me out. I got the exposure that others didn't."

In the Depression South, there were no big record contracts for black musicians. Few blacks received copyrights for their work.

"We didn't know about the laws," said Derricks. Nashville producer Aaron Brown believes the Baptist preacher would have earned up to $250,000 if he had owned the copyrights to "Just a Little Talk With Jesus" and some 325 other songs he wrote.

Last January the need for money brought Derricks to Nashville where he hoped to sell a few songs.

"The old man came into my office a year ago and said he hadn't written in many years," Brown said. "He was gunshy about who he was. He said he'd written a famous song. We documented it and it was true."

"He's still a tremendous writer, I signed him and am promoting him," Brown said.

Brown's promotion led to a top-selling gospel music album, "The Reverend Cleavant Derricks and Family Singing 'Just a Little Talk With Jesus'" and a spot on an NBC television show, taped in September in Nashville.

Derricks performed with a 105-degree temperature which he thought was a cold. Instead, his illness was diagnosed as cancer of the colon.

Although Derricks' illness is causing a memory loss, he still recalls traveling the gospel road of the 1930s, from black shanty towns in Georgia to Chicago's tenement slums, his companions singers such as Mahalia Jackson and Roberta Martin.

Tired of travel after World War II, Derricks settled in Knoxville, Tenn., gave up his music and became a minister, founding churches throughout the country, never losing his faith in a God he says never allowed him to fall into bitterness.

"You've got to love people in spite of themselves," he said.

Employees Exceed United Way Goal

KINGSTON Employees of Benedictine Hospital have exceeded their 1976 United Way goal of $3,200 by pledging a total of $4,567. The 142 per cent response made them the second highest employee group in the county to exceed its total.

Richard Wagner, associate campaign chairman for Ulster County and coordinator for the hospital's drive, said he was "gratified at the wonderful response from everyone at Benedictine. It points up their serious commitment and sense of community responsibility."

Patricia Zentner, Elizabeth Craig and Dorothy Rodrigues were winners of $100 Savings Bond as a hospital promotion connected with the campaign. Eligible were employees who had pledged at least $2 to each of the 17 United Way agencies.

Aides Training Program Set

They will also have a class with Richard Morone, director of physical therapy.

Classes will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Interested persons are asked to contact Mrs. Brooks at the hospital weekdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Car Sales Gain

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. automakers recorded their highest year-to-year new car sales gain in 3 1/2 years with a year-opening 46 per cent jump over the disastrous 1975 performance that triggered costly cash rebates.

But despite a 10th straight 10-day period in which sales topped a year-ago level, the sales reports from the four U.S. automakers Wednesday didn't live up to analysts' expectations of a 50 to 55 per cent gain.

The 136,008 cars sold fell just over 2,000 cars short of even matching the 1974 level when sales were depressed by the Arab oil embargo-inspired energy crisis. The latest figures were 28 per cent below the same period in 1973, before the start of the oil embargo.

Analysts for the auto companies had expected the Jan. 1-10 sales to be the best since 1973, before the start of the industry's deep two-year slump.

General Motors, with its Cadillac and Oldsmobile divisions setting sales records, reported the biggest gain over 1975 with an 80 per cent increase over last year's early January sales which were the worst since 1953. Chrysler recorded a 39 per cent gain, American Motors was up 36 per cent and the Ford Motor Co. 7 per cent.

Detroit automakers have sold 2,163,871 cars since the 1976 models were introduced last October, up 31 per cent from the year-ago period.

While the early January sales continue the momentum that began with the introduction of the 1976-model cars in October, they are only strong in comparison with last year.

Emergency Treatment

The Gardiner Fire Department and Council 5800, Knights of Columbus, will sponsor a film program showing how emergency coronary treatment can save up to 100,000 lives a year.

The program will be held at the Gardiner Fire House at 8 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 19. Dr. Herbert Weinman will give a demonstration of basic cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Usery Heads List

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Dunlop's resignation as labor secretary leaves a gap in the Cabinet that many labor and government leaders expect to be filled by chief federal mediator W.J. Usery.

Usery's was the primary name mentioned as a likely successor Wednesday after Dunlop announced his decision to quit. But sources said National Mediation Board member George Ives and Labor Undersecretary Robert Aders also were under consideration.

Dunlop, 61, a economist and mediator who intends to return to his Harvard teaching post after Feb. 1, said he resigned because President Ford's veto of a controversial construction industry bill destroyed his hopes for labor-management cooperation in 1976.

He said his departure was not intended as a "protest" of Ford's veto nor as "any reflection over my inner feelings," but motivated by a "sober conclusion" that the veto destroyed the "communications, confidence and trust" needed for cooperation between labor and management.

"Maybe there is somebody else — not me — who can heal the breaches in a short period of time," he said.

At the White House, the Labor Department, AFL-CIO headquarters and on Capitol Hill, the conclusion was that Usery might be that "somebody else."

A strapping, white-haired Georgian known for his flashy clothes and country manner, Usery is an expert mediator who nonetheless lacks Dunlop's stature as an economist. The onetime welder has been head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service since 1973 and a presidential assistant since 1974.

Usery, who was unavailable for comment, indicated previously he would jump at a change to be labor secretary. Some top labor sources even expect him to resign if he is passed over again, as he was a year ago when Ford tapped Dunlop.

Usery stood with Dunlop in supporting the vetoed bill known as "common situs picketing." The bill, which Ford vetoed under conservative political pressure, would have allowed building trades pickets to shut down an entire construction site in a dispute with one subcontractor.

Morton Move Scored

By UPI

President Ford has come under pressure from the Federal Election Commission and others to remove political adviser Rogers C.B. Morton from the White House staff and the public payroll.

FEC chairman Thomas Curtis, a Ford appointee and former GOP congressman, said Wednesday the President probably acted illegally by putting Morton on the White House payroll as domestic affairs and economics adviser because of Morton's acknowledged side chores as a political adviser.

"I think it's contrary to the law," Curtis said in an interview. "It's dangerous and he is treading on very thin ice with the law — it really is a question of law."

A question of law also concerned Democratic contender George Wallace, who has built a career on battling federal judges. At a news conference Wednesday to announce the state's appeal of a federal court ruling that Alabama must upgrade a "barbaric and inhumane" prison system, the governor said:

"We're living in a society in which thugs and federal judges have just about taken charge. I don't know but what a good vote for George Wallace might give a political barbed wire enema to some of these federal judges, and it might be good for the country."

Curtis suggested Ford "voluntarily" move Morton to the campaign payroll and virtually invited a legal challenge.

The White House had no immediate comment but Democratic presidential candidate Fred Harris sent Curtis a telegram asking for a ruling. Democratic party chairman Robert Strauss said he was thinking of doing the same.

Woman Is Arrested On Forged Rx Charge

Police Beat

KINGSTON
A young Highland woman was arrested by Kingston Police on Wednesday after she allegedly attempted to obtain drugs at a Kingston pharmacy using a forged (stolen) prescription.

Police charged Patricia Bass, 21, of 338A Lily Lake Road with two counts of criminal possession of a forged instrument, second degree forgery, criminal possession of a controlled substance in the fifth degree and third degree criminal possession of stolen property.

According to authorities, 50 blank prescriptions and a quantity of tuinal, a barbiturate, were discovered during a search of the woman following her arrest.

The prescription blanks were from the Medical Associates of New Paltz, according to police, Miss Bass was jailed pending court action.

Honors Majestic

ALBANY
A New York State Assembly resolution honoring the late Gardiner Supervisor George Majestic has been passed in Albany. Majestic died suddenly Nov. 4 at the age of 59.

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, who sponsored the measure, personally delivered the document recently to Irene Majestic, widow of the former State Senate and Assembly Democratic Party nominee.

Recognizing that Majestic, who had been supervisor for 18 years, was the first Democrat named to that position in 50 years, the Assembly noted that he was a staunch partisan and fighter for the people of Ulster County and the Town of Gardiner most of his life.

He was a member of Gardiner Fire Department, Ulster County Board of Supervisors, past-president of Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, Adonai Lodge 718 F&AM, Gardiner Rod and Gun Club, Gardiner Homeowner's Association and American Legion.

The resolution lauds Majestic for "continually exhibiting unflinching responsibility toward civic betterment."

they learned of the accident three hours after it occurred from a parent of one of the injured children. None of the four children was reported seriously injured in the 7:20 a.m. crash.

Police identified the driver who was issued the summons as Margaret Siergrist, 49, of Hyde Park.

Plea for Clothing

A plea has gone out for clothing for a family of 10 whose Marlboro home was destroyed by fire on Wednesday.

Marlboro Fire Chief Calvin Cosman said the blaze at the Andy Casciano home on Bingham Road was already well advanced when firemen reached the scene. Efforts to put down the flames were

Bus Driver Charged

A Hyde Park school district bus driver was charged with leaving the scene of an accident without reporting the mishap after a bus ran off Mills Cross Road in the Town of Hyde Park Wednesday morning and slammed into a tree, resulting in injuries to four children on the bus.

NEAL WALK WITH A HOOK
... over Kevin Kunnert

into a first place Atlantic Division tie with the Boston Celtics.

Collins, the sparkplug of the 76ers, and Maravich, the Pistol in New Orleans' run-and-gun offense, are among the best young guards in pro basketball, certainly the best white guards to play since Jerry West. Next month, the pair could be teammates on the NBA Eastern Conference All-Star squad.

Collins, 6-6, and Maravich, 6-5, are both tall for backcourtmen, though just as lean as West was at 6-4. Each has a deadly jump shot, quick legs, excellent passing ability, flashy moves and a propensity toward injury. When they meet, however, there's more than just a game at stake. Their reputations are on the line.

Wednesday night's round went to Collins, who scored 24 points while holding Maravich to 17, six less than his average, as Philadelphia halted New Orleans' five-game winning streak, 100-95.

"When I play 'Pistol' (Maravich), I front him and try to make him shoot long jump shots," said Collins, who, along with Steve Mix and Joe Bryant combined for seven foul shots in the last nine seconds of play to clinch the game.

"He makes the jump shots as well as anybody in the game," Collins said. "He's a very positive force for this team. They have won six out of seven since his return."

Mix, who had 20 points, had given the Sixers a 97-92 lead with nine seconds to play, but Ron Behagen of the Jazz scored and was fouled by George McGinnis. He made the foul shot and the Jazz trailed by only two points.

On the inbound play, Collins was fouled away from the basket and sank both free throws. Bryant added one more for the final score.

The Sixers stretched their lead to as many as 15 points in the third quarter, but the Jazz came back to tie the game, 71-71, going into the final period.

Bud Stallworth led the Jazz scoring with 20 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Washington beat Cleveland, 92-88; Seattle edged Atlanta, 121-110, and Kansas City stopped Boston 106-101.

In the ABA, Indiana whipped Virginia, 115-99, and Kentucky topped San Antonio, 121-115.

Bullets 92, Cavs 88

Back-to-back baskets by Elvin Hayes and Wes Unseld in the final 1½ minutes gave the Bullets the victory and moved them 1½ games ahead of Cleveland in the Central Division. Dave Bing then iced the win with a free throw to cap a 20-point performance. Washington's Phil Chenier returned to action after being sidelined with an ankle injury, but was ejected late in the second quarter when assessed with his second technical foul for arguing with official Paul Mihalak.

Sonic's 112, Hawks 110
Fred Brown scored 33 points to help Seattle hand Atlanta its fourth straight loss despite 39 points by John Drew, who started for the first time this season.

Kings 106, Celtics 101
Nate Archibald scored 29 points and Scott Wedman added 25 to lead Kansas City. Sam Lacey scored 14 points and grabbed 19 rebounds. Boston's Dave Cowens committed his sixth foul with 2:04 to play and the score tied at 99-99. Lacey hit a free throw and Ollie Johnson contributed a driving layup to give the Kings to a 102-99 advantage. Paul Silas dropped two free throws to make it 102-101, but Wedman hit a 12-foot jumper with 29 seconds left to take Kansas City out of danger. Lacey added two free throws for the final count.

Pacers 115, Squires 99
Billy Keller scored 22 points, including five three-point field goals, to lead the Pacers to their 10th straight win over Virginia. Mike Jackson paced the Squires with a game-high 30 points.

Colonels 121, Spurs 115
Marv Roberts scored 25 points, 15 of them in a third quarter Kentucky blitz, to spark the Colonels to a come-from-behind win.

Would Bar Scouting

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Delegates to the third annual special NCAA convention Wednesday approved only three items and defeated a plan to distribute television profits to all football-playing members.

The delegates completed business on the agenda of the special convention, which was a continuation of the summer meeting called to deal with economic troubles. The 70th annual NCAA convention opened today.

The special session approved a proposal eliminating scouting, except in basketball in Division I, where one scouting trip per opponent will be allowed. The delegates also eliminated Division III spring football unless the Executive Council grants an exemption. Finally, they prohibited schools from providing travel clothing for athletes.

Among the items defeated was the addition of a 12th football game. Most of the 79 items on the agenda were tabled.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, said, "Measures are being tabled because I feel many members feel there are too many regulations on a national level, and there just isn't enough dollar savings to warrant additions ones."

Stephen Horn, president of Long Beach State who sponsored the television plan, also sponsored a proposal to divide profits from postseason football games to all NCAA institutions, but the plan for the bowl money was ruled out of order. NCAA President Dr. John Fuzak of Michigan State said the association does not have the power to control the income from football games which are merely sanctioned by the NCAA but not operated by it.

Horn's television plan, overwhelmingly defeated in a show of hands, would have provided that teams in televised games would receive 15 per cent of the net proceeds with Division I football schools dividing 50 per cent of the remaining proceeds and Divisions II and III getting 25 per cent each. The NCAA television committee, represented by Seaver Peters of Dartmouth, opposed the plan.

Wallkill, Ellenville Tie

KINGSTON Wallkill High salvaged a 27-27 tie with Ellenville, and Pine Bush rolled over Fallsburgh, 54-3 in a pair of Ulster County Athletic League wrestling matches Wednesday.

The Panthers needed a pin from heavyweight Stan Bruno in the last bout of the day to avoid defeat. Bruno did the job, stopping Ron Wilhelm of the Ellies in 1:02. That capped a big comeback by Wallkill after Ellenville had won four of the first six weights.

Pine Bush gave the Comets no quarter as only Franklin Bell, with a decision in 157, could score for the losers. The Bushmen took four bouts by fall, and the fastest victory was Gene English's 1:27 of Steve Goldstein in 114.

New Expansion Program For Junior Football

KINGSTON Commissioner Harvey Semilof of the Kingston Exchange Club Junior Football League, today announced the club's new expansion program.

For the first time in its six-year old program, the league will be accepting participants on an individual basis from schools outside the Kingston Consolidated School District, Semilof said. The league is for boys from 10 to 13 years of age.

Boys from Saugerties, Onteora, Marletown and Rosendale school districts can now register on an equal basis. Application forms will be distributed in the near future at locations to be announced.

"We feel that this is another step forward in the Exchange Club's program for the youth in our area," said Semilof. He indicated the league might expand to eight teams if there is sufficient response from the surrounding areas.

Liberty Holds Second Place

KINGSTON If you're wondering why Liberty High isn't No. 1 small school basketball team in New York State, just think about the folks from Lackawanna Baker, Bronxville, and Portville.

Liberty is No. 2 in the ratings behind Kendall. Both teams are unbeaten. But those other three clubs, the numbers three through five in the State Sports Writers Association poll, are similarly unscathed.

No. 5 Portville after 10 games.

Kendall has an 8-0 record and a 41-game winning streak, longest currently alive in New York.

Babylon is top large school with 7-0 mark.

Honorable mention teams locally are Beacon, Poughkeepsie, Ellenville, Fallsburgh, Coleman, and Marlboro. The poll was compiled prior to Tuesday night's action.

He's Got Lots of Heart

Professional bowler Dick Battista, who successfully underwent a heart transplant October 9, 1975, is shown in action during the Showboat Hotel Invitational Wednesday. Battista, 44, of Astoria, N.Y., began participating on the PBA tour again this month. He has been a pro since 1964. A team of surgeons under the direction of Dr. Norman Shumway operated on Battista at Stanford University. He thinks it will take him another month to get his game back to normal. (UPI)

Foreman Readies for Lyle

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — George Foreman sparred four rounds with a pair of New York City heavyweights Wednesday in his first workout in Las Vegas for his Jan. 24 12-round bout with Ron Lyle of Denver.

The fight will be staged at a 5,000-seat pavilion built for tennis matches at Caesars Palace hotel-casino.

Foreman will be making his first start since he lost the heavyweight title to Muhammad Ali in Zaire 14 months ago. It is his only defeat in 41 fights.

His new trainer Gil Clancy said he was pleased with Foreman's crisp punches. "We're sharpening his tools, shortening his punches, and trying to eliminate the wide swinging," said Clancy who handled former welterweight king Emile Griffith.

Hudson Leads Showboat Pins

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Tommy Hudson averaged 233 Wednesday to take the third-round lead in the $100,000 Showboat Invitational Bowling Tournament that has a nationally-televised windup Saturday.

Hudson, a two-time Professional Bowlers Association champion from Akron, Ohio, fired the high block of the tournament, 1,870, to bring his total pinfall to 5,287 at the end of 24 games. That moved him 114 pins ahead of Earl Anthony, Tacoma, Wash., who was at 5,173.

Rounding out the top five were Gary Mage, Bellevue, Wash., 5,145; Jim Stefanich, Joliet, Ill., 5,142, and Bobby Jacks, New Orleans, La., 5,102.

Hudson, who had been tied for seventh after the first two rounds, moved up by firing scores of 221, 242, 188, 267, 247, 256, 235, 214, bringing his overall average to 220.

Mage had been the second-round leader by averaging 219 in each of the first two rounds, but fell to third when he could average only 204 Wednesday.

Among the leaders was Roy Buckley, the Columbus, Ohio, pro who won the Alameda Open last Saturday. Thirty-second entering the day's round, Buckley leaped into seventh with the help of a 290 game, high for the tournament. Bill Beach, Sharon, Pa., also rolled a 290.

With the field now trimmed from a record 288, the 96 survivors bowl another eight-game block today. Then the top 24 advance to match play tonight and Friday. The top five then advance to the nationally-televised finals Saturday 3:30 p.m. EST where $14,000 will go to the winner.

You Can Cure Your Own Porkless 'Hams'

Can you substitute a lean meat for the traditional ham or bacon entree in your breakfast each morning and not lose that tremendous country ham flavor? Sure — and chances are you may not even be able to tell the difference.

Mother reader Ken Joens and his family needed a way to satisfy their taste buds and still stick to lean meat. After a lot of experimentation, he's devised a way to make "smoked ham" — from venison!

Joens claims the end product is ham-like, but far superior to the real thing. It resembles Canadian bacon in texture, and the flavor, he says, will fool the majority of hard-core pork eaters.

This "ham" is perfect for those who are forbidden to eat pork or who want an alternative to the usual fatty ham. His process is based on venison, but you might want to substitute any good lean meat. Here's how he did it:

The hindquarters and backstrap — about 50 per cent of the animal — is all that can be cured. All bone and fat is removed. The end result is lean strips of backstrap and chunks of leg muscle from three to five inches in diameter.

A brine solution is prepared in a container large enough to allow the immersion of all the meat. Special attention must be paid to how the solution is mixed. You should add water very slowly to the salt in the container. Float a fresh egg on top of the solution, and keep adding water and stirring until the egg sinks slowly and barely makes it back to the top.

Why the hocus pocus? The "egg" method will tell you when the solution is at the proper density. Don't reverse the procedure; if you add varying amounts of salt to water in the container and stop when the egg floats at the top, the solution will be far too salty. Though the egg will float, there will be a layer of undissolved salt at the bottom, ready to make trouble later on. With the first method, you're more likely to get an even distribution.

Completely immerse the venison in the brine and let it soak in a cool place for 48 to 60 hours, depending upon desired flavor. The longer the stay, the saltier the taste.

After soaking, immerse each piece in boiling water just long enough to cause a whitish tinge to form on the surface. Then hang the chunks in the smoker until they're thoroughly dry — from three to five days depending on the intensity of the smoke and the temperature in the smokehouse.

It's the smoking that gives the "ham" its fine flavor, and the results will be tremendous if three things are taken into consideration:

(a) Only wood of good quality should be burned in the firebox of the smokehouse.

Don't use softwood scraps from a lumberyard unless you like the taste of pine tar.

(b) The objective is smoke, not heat. Too high a temperature will bake the meat before it can be properly cured.

(c) The meat must be kept constantly surrounded by smoke. Smokeless intervals will show up as pale rings interspersed through the meat.

Joens made his smoker from a discarded water tank by cutting a door in the front and suspending racks from the top. These racks hold the mop handles from which he hangs the meat. A six-inch hole in the side allows the entrance of a stovepipe which, in turn, runs six feet away to a firebox made from an old washtub. A damper in the pipe further controls the smoke and heat.

Operation of the smoker is quite simple. When a good blaze is going, the firebox is covered, and the damper is opened to allow smoke to flow into the water tank. Every eight hours or so, a new chunk of firewood is added to the blaze and the tub is covered again. The firebox and pipe become hot during the process, but the smokehouse remains just slightly warm so the ham cures without baking.

hunters might do well to give his idea a try.

Positive Thinking for Separated Women

By Joanne Koch

"Suddenly one cold night in January I awoke to find myself all alone. I had no friends or neighbors. No car, no phone, and thanks to a good old-fashioned welfare screwup, no money or food for my kids. I lay down on my bed and cried like a baby and could feel what must be insanity coming on and decided I was better off dead."

So said Freda, one of the millions of separated or divorced women who suddenly found she had to fend for herself with little money, experience, or moral support. Fortunately, Freda was able to overcome the enormous odds against her by choosing anger instead of guilt, action instead of self-pity, collective support instead of isolation. Her story is one of the hundreds of pieces of personal testimony, poetry, and above all factual survival information which comprise a new feminist handbook on separation and divorce called "Women in Transition" (Scribner's, $6.95 paperback, $12.95 hardbound).

Is this book always fair, balanced and profound? No. When you're filled with guilt and a sense of failure, what you need is not fairness but a way to save face. What you need is not balance but an outlet to get rid of bitterness that paralyzes the mind and spirit. A woman who is trying to cope with disappointed children and insufficient income doesn't need continued pressure to keep seeing the other guy's point of view.

She feels she's been forced to think of her husband's and children's welfare before her own all her life. Now she wants to put her own needs first.

So don't look to this feminist handbook for reasons not to get a divorce. Look to it to find out how to get the most money from a divorce action. Don't expect to find a balanced discussion of the importance of the mother's presence to the young child. Expect to find information on day care centers and a positive discussion of giving over custody to the father so that mother can do her own thing.

Publications like "Women in Transition" do for the lonely, helpless woman what Norman Vincent Peale's Positive Thinking and W. Clement Stone's Positive Mental Attitude has done for thousands of self-styled losers. They provide a powerful dose of optimism. They tell people who are down, "Don't give up; there are golden opportunities waiting for you."

They don't tell the total, many-sided truths about human nature — male and female. They don't include the dark side of feminism, divorce, giving up the custody of one's children. Did Stone include the latest unemployment statistics? Does Peale dwell on failure? Feminist handbooks, of which "Women in Transition" is an excellent example, are expedient and useful. They give women deep in the slough of despair a new lease on life.

Freda sums up the feminist version of positive mental attitude best: "... Something happened. It wasn't a ray of light like in the movies. It was pure anger. Anger at the way life treated me, anger at the welfare system but most of all, anger at myself for lying there and letting it happen and not doing anything about it. Now you can ask, what could you do in that situation? And the answer is only one thing. Change your whole attitude and make something worthwhile living for ... As you slowly move up you'll feel a tremendous sense of satisfaction and self-worth 'cause you've done it on your own and you know you must be 'some kind of great' to be making it with the odds stacked against you."

Let the disgruntled males and the anti-equality forces debate the merits of the aggressive female, the importance of fairness and balance. Mean-time the power of positive feminist thinking gets results like these.

Dear Abby

Wife Sick of Bad Hospital Jokes

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has had a lot of back surgery, which required several long stays in the hospital. While there, a couple we were friendly with sent him get-well cards regularly, which we both appreciated, but all their cards had the same theme: "The male patient was fooling around with his nurses."

After my husband came home, this couple visited him, and their conversation was full of teasing about the nurses giving him massages, backrubs and baths. I was even asked point blank if I wasn't afraid my husband would run off with a pretty young nurse.

Whenever we are with this couple now, they get back on the pretty young nurse subject until I am sick of hearing it.

Perhaps because I am neither young nor pretty and have such a meager quotient of self-esteem. I'm depressed for days about these remarks, especially when they are made in the presence of others, which is often the case.

My husband never stands up for me, which may indicate that he enjoys the talk.

What can I do to put an end to this? I've tried to avoid being with this couple, but I can't do that forever.

HURT
DEAR HURT: Bring your feelings out in the open and tell them exactly what you've told me. After that they wouldn't dare "kid" you in that vein again.

DEAR ABBY: This problem has me upset. My husband and I must attend classes one evening a week, and we have one child who is deaf.

A young woman who lives in our apartment building has two small children, and she is willing to babysit for us, but she refuses to take any money.

Her husband is unemployed, and I know they could use the money, but I gave her a check once, and she tore it up.

Things would be okay if I could sit with her kids in return, but they can't afford to go any place.

I threatened to find another sitter, but she looked so hurt. Should I accept it as a blessing in disguise?

Any suggestions will be appreciated.

BEWILDERED
DEAR BE: Put a ribbon on a basket and fill it with fresh fruit, canned foods and other goodies, and present it to your generous, hard-to-repay neighbor.

DEAR ABBY: In a column, some time ago, you said that some airlines offered a course designed to help persons overcome their fear of flying.

I have a daughter-in-law who is terrified of flying, so I immediately telephoned American Airlines, TWA and United, and none of these airlines could help me.

Where do I go from here? NEEDS HELP IN L.A.
DEAR NEEDS: My researchers advise me that such programs did at one time exist, but they seem to have disappeared into thin air. However, if someone out there knows of a course available in the Los Angeles area, please let me know.

In the meantime, phobias are best treated by psychologists and psychiatrists.

Looking for a new look for your denims? Take the western trail and embroider bands of rickrack to your shirts and jeans.

This is the easiest original needlework you'll ever do. The points of the rickrack are your guide for needle placement, so your stitches are always evenly spaced. Use embroidery floss or yarn and pick the wildest colors you can find.

To make a shirt design baste the rickrack in place across the yoke and down the sleeves, pick bright colors and turn the ends of the rickrack under.

Use only four embroidery stitches for the shirt: the diagonal overcast, the her-ringbone, the French knot and the lattice stitch.

Take the easy way to denim-decor and add pattern and color with embroidered rickrack.

Perfect Vacation For a Weekend Sailor

Up a Lazy River — in Britain

KINGSTON The mighty Hudson River affords Ulster residents a chance to indulge the 'salt' that dwells in many of us. In summer, the waterway buzzes with activity, both power and sail.

A vacation that would make these weekend sailors feel at home while away is offered by Britain canals.

Britain's 18th and 19th century freight canals still exist — to transport the vacationer through magnificent country far from the din of traffic, provide an unhurried view of historic towns and time for lazing in the summer sun.

The 2,000 mile network of canals in England, Scotland and Wales was built to carry coal and heavy machinery. Nowadays, it rarely does that. Instead the canals transport happy travelers.

They link the Thames, Severn, Avon and other rivers with towns, cities. Hundreds of miles of shipping canals have been restored for boating, fishing, tow-path walking, and lackadaisical study of waterway architecture and engineering.

In the city of Birmingham, 120 miles of canals form an intricate, network more extensive than those of Venice. A row of 18th century canal cottages has been refurbished and converted into small shops and private homes. There's also a pub where boaters can have a pint on balconies overlooking the waterway.

Another project is trans-huge water-sport park for sailing, canoeing and waterskiing. Canal and river boating can provide a pleasant break of a few days or a week. You can rent a canoe, punt, skiff, cruiser or converted narrow-boat.

The narrow-boats are the traditional craft of the canals, built long and narrow to enable them to slide through locks ten feet wide or less. They are a wild splash of color, liberally decorated with paintings of castles and wreaths of flowers, a form of folk-art said to go back to the days when gypsies crewed such boats. Though it's possible to rent a narrow-boat and do your own skippering, most vacationers prefer the ease of a floating "hotel" — two narrow-boats in tandem offering amenities such as a bar, dining salon, library and private cabins. Cost of such a cruise runs about $80 a week per person.

Self-drive cruisers, accommodating from two to ten persons, are popular. They come fully equipped, including "fridge," stove, dishes, blankets and frequently, even linens and towels. You pay for your fuel and canal tolls, in addition to the cruiser rental. That may range from about $20 to $50 a person per week, in season. Rates are lower in forming 30 miles of the River Lea, north of London, into a the spring and fall.

A variety of companies rent such craft. If you're not much of a sailor, they will teach you how to run the boat, suggest a route and supply you with maps. One advantage for the beginner is that water traffic, unlike traffic on British roads, keeps to the right.

Choosing a route may be more difficult than deciding on the right boat. One route promises to be more spectacular than the next. The Welsh section of the Shropshire Union Canal, has been called the most beautiful canal in Britain. It passes through the Ellesmere Lake District and the Vale of Llangollen and over two great viaducts. One of them has a span of 1,000 feet and is 121 feet high. From that height you get a lofty view of rolling countryside, from a boat. That's not an everyday occurrence.

The Mersey Canal takes you through green valleys and wooded hills — through a tunnel a mile and a half long. The Crick Tunnel, which forms part of the Grand Union Canal, is said to be haunted.

The master engineers who built these canals had a penchant for elaboration. On one stretch of the Macclesfield Canal there are 118 bridges, all of different design.

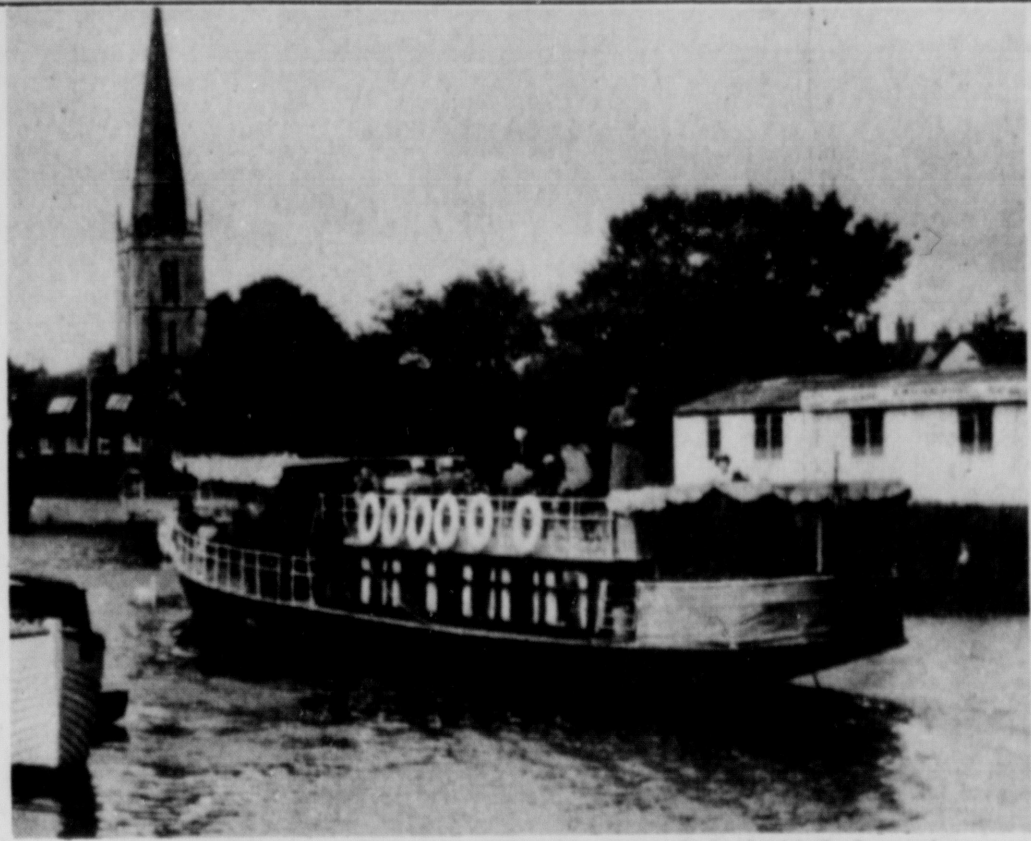

You can take a relaxing 125-mile trip on the Thames. At Oxford, where the river is known as the Isis, you may see the ornately carved College barges moored off Christ church Meadows. Many towns worth a days visit — such as Henley (of Regatta fame) and Dorchester with its fine Abbey — are found along this route. Excellent old inns, like the Kings Arms at Cookham and the Compleat Angler at Marlow, offer the weary sailor good food and drink.

The 60-mile Caledonian Canal joins two coasts of Northern Scotland and runs through spectacular scenery in the Highlands. Loch Ness, home of the fabled monster, is connected to this waterway. The Caledonian has 29 locks, arranged in steps, but all easy to navigate.

The most inexpensive boats to rent are the canoe and the punt, a shell that's propelled by means of a pole. A punt that accommodates four persons rents for about $25 a week. Gaining in popularity are lightweight boats that can be carried on the roof of your car, ready to be popped into the first inviting canal or river you come to. Rental for such a boat with capacity for four comes to about $40 a week — and that includes an outboard motor.

Britain's waterways are a prime attraction. Last year more than two million people took to Britain's fens, rivers and canals to spend their vacation.

Lazy cruising along Britain's 2,000 miles of canals is the kind of vacation that would appeal to weekend sailors of the Hudson Valley. The picture above was taken at Abingdon Berkshire on the Thames where boats can tie up for a night of sightseeing.

Half a Billion Americans Toured Greece

ATHENS (UPI) — Nearly three million tourists visited Greece in the first 10 months of 1975, bringing more than $500 million of foreign exchange into the country, according to the statistical service.

American tourists headed the list with 409,747 arrivals, followed by 376,851 West Germans. The figures marked an increase of 43 per cent over 1974, the year of the Cyprus crisis.

Peter Vlachos to Serve on Colby Project

HIGH FALLS Dreyfus Leverage Fund President Peter A. Vlachos of High Falls has been named to a special task force to help Colby College, Waterville, Me., raise $4.5 million for new science facilities.

Colby President Robert E.L. Strider announced in December that after three years of study the college was beginning a campaign "to strengthen an already vigorous program in the sciences through the provision of vastly improved facilities." The project includes construction of a new building and renovation of two existing buildings.

A 1958 Colby graduate,

Vlachos is a trustee of Outward Bound. The local resident is a visiting lecturer at Yale University on organization and management. He will also serve as chairman of the New York task force which will augment the central campaign committee.

The central campaign task force, chaired by motel owner Robert Sage of Newton, Mass., also includes Colby Board of Trustees Chairman Albert C. Palmer, '30, of Stoneham, Mass.; Gordon B. Jones, '40, Needham, Mass.; Thomas J. Watson III, '69, Medfield, Mass.; Robert S. Lee, '51, Beverly Farms, Mass.; Mrs. Michael Szostak, '72, Woonsocket, R.I.; Prof. Miriam Bennett of Waterville, chairman of the college's biology department; and Mrs. Frederic E. Camp, East Blue Hill.

Mrs. Briggs to be Honored by Dutchess Planned Parenthood

POUGHKEEPSIE A special tribute to Mrs. Lois Briggs, who retired recently from her position as affiliate supervisor of Planned Parenthood League of Dutchess County, Inc. will be paid to her Friday, Jan. 16 at 6 p.m. at the Hellenic Center in Poughkeepsie, by the league's board of directors and membership.

The annual meeting, at which she will be honored, is being arranged by Mrs. Beverly Wick who said that while Mrs. Briggs has retired as supervisor, she will continue to remain on the staff as a clinic nurse.

It is expected that the organization will undergo a name change at the meeting, acquiring the corporate designation of Planned Parenthood of Dutchess-Ulster Inc. The clinics presently operate in Poughkeepsie, Amenia, Beacon and Rhinebeck in Dutchess County and New Paltz and Kingston in Ulster County. They offer medical contraceptive services as well as education, counseling and referral for other family planning related matters.

Kingston Trust Awards $80 Grant For Laurel Garden Club Planting

KINGSTON The Laurel Garden Club was awarded an $80 grant from the Kingston Trust Company's "We The People" program for the club's Bicentennial project of planting trees and shrubs at the entrance to and along the Col. Chandler Drive leading into Kingston.

The grant helped with the purchase of pink and white flowering crabapples, white dogwood and a hedge of dwarf-winged Euonymus. Since Kingston is one of the gateways to the Catskills as well as to the Mid-Hudson River, this area is sure to see an influx of visitors, as well as increased use by residents, not only in 1976 but in the years to come. The Laurel Garden Club felt that to beautify one of the boulevards leading into the historic area of Kingston would be a Bicentennial gift of lasting value.

The Regional Landscape Architects of the New York State Department of Transportation under Ed Newhard's direction drew up the detailed plans for the site. Jim Pierson, resident engineer of the Ulster County Division of the N.Y.S. Transportation Dept., coordinated the site preparations and the planting.

As a part of its civic beautification program, the Laurel Garden Club also plants and maintains the North Front Street Mini-Park in uptown Kingston.

Local Council Hear VFW State Commander

KINGSTON James Kinsella of Staten Island, state commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars, paid an official visit to the January meeting of Hudson Valley Counties Council (Ulster County) which took place at Joyce-Schirick Post 1386 in Kingston. He was welcomed by Albert T. DeLuca, County Council commander.

Commander Kinsella stressed the importance of being well informed about what is taking place in the nation at all levels: "On this our 200th anniversary, freedom is under attack from both within and without our country. We, as veterans, have a grave responsibility to see that the freedom we know is passed on to future generations."

Also attending the meeting were Joseph Straub, District 2, VFW, membership chairman; James Longendyke, District 2 chief of staff; commanders from all the Posts and their delegates.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An awkward situation may pit you with outsiders against your loved ones. Don't forget, what happens today is fleeting. Your family is with you always.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your strong opinion may reflect the minority viewpoint today. The problem is temporary. Don't aggravate friends by arguing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is not a good time to assume cumbersome obligations. Weigh your wants against your means.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your desires and aims today are likely to conflict with those whose support is essential. Some tactful maneuvering is necessary.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's wonderful to help others to lighten their burdens, but be careful not to add too greatly to your own load.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you know is a super salesman, but he has a poor track record in the quality of things he promotes. Don't let him sell you a pig in a poke today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you're willing to weigh another's point of view. Today, you'll be a bit too insistent that things be done your way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be wary today. Don't try to sell something of which you have very little knowledge to one who's an expert.

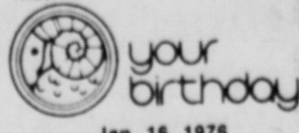

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're still on very shaky

ground businesswise. Don't make any substantial commitments you haven't really checked out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Dealings with close associates may be sensitive today. Don't impose your opinion. At least listen to the other guy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guard against overindulgence today, whether it be in eating, drinking, working or just having fun.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may find you have some very extravagant whims to wrestle with today. For future peace of mind, pin them to the mat.

Friends may bring you a great number of propositions this coming year. There may be some gold nuggets in all that sand, but they must be sifted carefully.

without at least one king) South bid the grand slam in spades. He might just as well have bid seven notrump for the extra 10 points since he could count to 13 tricks if the spade suit ran.

Suppose North had held just three spades to the ace-king. He might not have raised to four spades, but if he did have that holding, the queen of spades would still be likely to drop.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

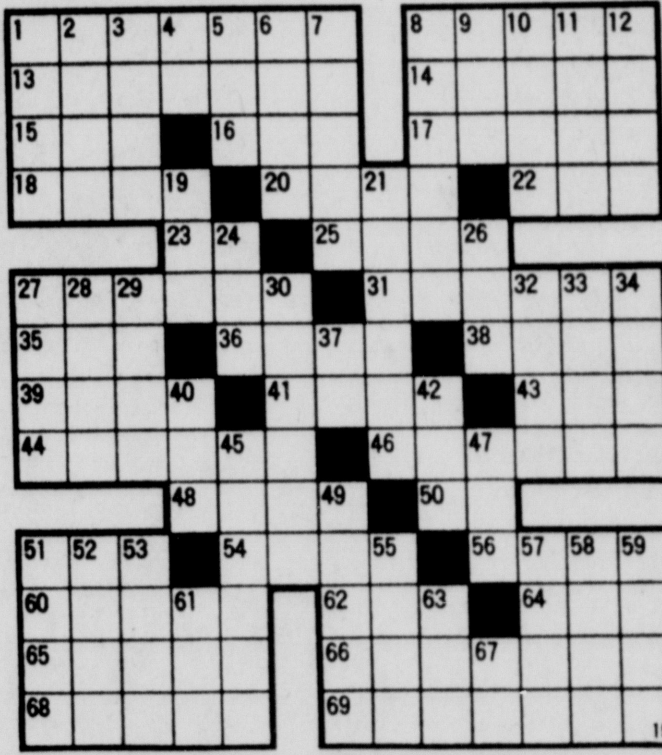

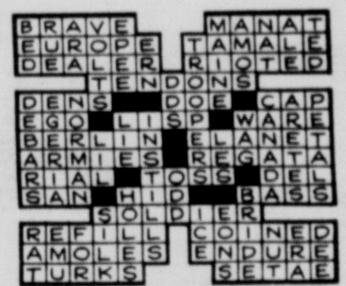

Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt, 26th and 32nd presidents of the United States respectively, were cousins. An ancestor of both men, Claes Martenszan van Rosenvelt, came to New Amsterdam from Holland about 1650. The World Almanac notes, Claes' son Nicholas, a New York alderman in 1700 and 1715, had a son Johannes, from whom Theodore Roosevelt was descended, and a son Jacobus, from whom F.D.R. was descended.

'75 Bridge Traffic Reaches Record Level

KINGSTON Traffic on the five spans operated by the New York State Bridge Authority — including the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge — reached record levels in 1975.

According to figures released by the authority, traffic on all five spans was about five per cent higher in 1975 than 1974. For the year, 23.5 million vehicles crossed the five spans, compared to 22.4 million in 1974.

The Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge experienced a 4.47 per cent increase in traffic in 1975. More than 2,750,000 vehicles used the bridge last year, compared to 2,640,000 in 1974.

The busiest of the five Mid-Hudson spans was the Newburgh-Beacon Bridge, which experienced more than nine million crossings in 1975, a six per cent jump over 1974. The Rip Van Winkle Bridge was last in traffic with 2,300,000 crossings, although that figure was still six per cent higher than 1974.

Revenues also increased in 1975. The five bridges generated $6.9 million in revenues during the year compared to $6.6 million in 1974. That was an increase of $227,000, or about four per cent.

The Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge accounted for almost $712,000 of that revenue total, a three per cent increase over 1974 revenues of $690,000. The Newburgh-Beacon Bridge accounted for about 33 per cent of total revenues for all five bridges.

Those 12-month increases in bridge traffic and revenues were accomplished despite declines experienced in December. Traffic on the five spans totaled 1.8 million in December, about 10,000 less than December, 1974 traffic totals.

The statistics show that 882 fewer vehicles crossed the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge in December, 1975 as compared to December, 1974. A spokesman for the bridge authority attributed that decline to the fact that IBM was closed on Dec. 28 last year, and that the last day of the Thanksgiving weekend, traditionally a heavy traffic day, fell in December in 1975, in November in 1974.

Although overall traffic declined in December, total revenues for the five spans showed a two per cent increase. The Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge showed a $559 revenue dip from December, 1974.

'A Call to Arms'

KINGSTON King George III is in big trouble now. The Kingston Bicentennial Commission has called for volunteers to serve in the local militia of the Continental Army.

The "call to arms" has gone out to all Kingston-area residents. Openings are available for associators, militia members, captains, majors and colonels. Enlistments will begin early in the spring.

Each enlistee will receive an appropriate, limited-edition memento commemorating his (or her) dedication to the principles of independence. Mementos will range from blazer buttons to an authentically styled replica of a flintlock rifle, depending upon the rank to which one aspires.

Each enlistment must be accompanied by a cash donation, which will help finance the local Bicentennial celebration.

Social Security Record

KINGSTON A record $6.33 billion in social security benefits was paid out to New York State residents during 1975, according to George Habernig, Kingston social security district manager.

The record payments were about $500 million higher than payments in 1974, an increased number of people on the social security rolls and benefits paid based on high-average earnings all contributed to the increase.

Of the social security benefits paid to New Yorkers, more than $4 billion went to retired workers and their dependents and more than $1 billion went to survivors of workers who died.

Nationally, social security benefits in 1975 totaled $67 billion, about $8.4 billion higher than in the previous year. At the end of December 1975, about 32 million persons were receiving monthly social security benefits. Retired workers and their dependents account for about 64 per cent of all those receiving payments.

School Program

KINGSTON In an effort to aid persons who wish to obtain New York State High School Equivalency Diploma, the Continuing Education Department of Kingston City Schools will be offering a program for out-of-school youth and adults aimed at developing skills and understandings necessary to pass High School Level Tests of General Educational Development.

Satisfactory scores on such tests are necessary before an equivalency diploma can be received.

The program to be initiated will be designed to measure the specific skills which high school students are expected to possess in reading, English usage and mathematics. There will be no cost for the individualized program, which students can enter at any time.

Further information about the program and enrollment procedures can be obtained by calling the Continuing Education Office between 9 a.m. and noon and between 1 and 3:30 p.m.

ERDA Report Criticized

By Carl Graham

KINGSTON
The Ulster County Planning Board Wednesday night deferred voting on the master plan recently released by the Energy Research and Development Agency for development of a nuclear energy generating site in the towns of Lloyd and Esopus.

The board decided to hold up comment to give members more time to study the ERDA plan, acting after Planning Director Herbert Hekler said he was disturbed about certain aspects of the report.

Hekler noted that ERDA had published voluminous studies of the ecological, meteorological, biological and aquatic effects of the proposed nuclear site, but had done little or nothing about the economic and social aspects.

"ERDA published only a small memorandum on the economic and social effects but they made several profound judgments," Hekler told planners. "I do not feel that they have substantiated them."

Hekler said that ERDA had ignored the board's suggestions for full consideration of the economic and social aspects of the nuclear site.

Economic, social aspects played down says County Planning Director Herbert Hekler.

"These recommendations have been ignored except for superficial and possibly misleading conclusions made without any of the careful study given to the other aspects of the study program," he noted.

"Without facts to support their conclusions, we find it hard to believe that 1,500 workers who will be employed for more than 13 months will not have a significant impact on the housing market in New Paltz, where college students already have difficulty in finding decent and affordable accommodations, or that an influx of mobile homes will not occur, that cost of other construction in the county will not be affected, or that no more than 200 new families would relocate to Ulster County. These impacts are very important for local communities but were unsubstantiated in the ERDA study."

The board approved a statement on the proposal to develop Stewart Field at Newburgh into a regional airport, saying it saw no undue noise or environmental impact on Ulster County. The board said that the airport would be a convenience and could aid future industrial development as well as provide employment.

On the negative side, the board noted that the state still had no master plan under which the plan could be evaluated, and noted that the $50 million cost could possibly affect such other state financed projects as development of facilities at the State University College at New Paltz, development of Minnewaska State Park, or construction of new sections of Route 209.

"We believe it is imperative to know what the costs and benefits are in a total capital budget before we can either recommend or advise against this project," the board's statement said.

The board, with only one dissenting vote, disapproved a proposal by the Rochester Planning Board to rezone most of Route 209 within the town for business use and to extend depth of the business zone from the present 300 feet to 600 feet. The proposal would make 6.3 of the 8 miles of Route 209 within the town into a business zone.

Board members felt that such a proposal would have an adverse effect on existing business areas in Accord and just across the Wawarsing town line in Kerhonkson. The Rochester Planning Board, if it tries to overrule the county planners' decision, must now muster a majority plus one instead of a simple majority vote.

The board, acting on the recommendation of the two Kingston hospitals, the Ulster County Board of Health and the Ulster County Medical Society, voted to favor the Hudson Valley Health System Agency Task Force over the Northern Metropolitan Health Planning Council as the administrative agency for federal health funds in Orange, Dutchess, Putnam, Sullivan, Ulster and Westchester Counties.

Dyson Favors PCB Compromise

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State Commerce Commissioner John S. Dyson says state officials should compromise rather than take such a hard line against chemical discharges from two General Electric plants that they close.

The Environmental Conservation Department is seeking to force the company to completely end the discharge of polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCB's, into the Hudson from plants at Fort Edward and Hudson Falls by Sept. 30.

En Con Commissioner Ogden R. Reid has charged that the emissions were "a hazard to human health" and "likely to cause irreparable damage to the Hudson."

"It's time to moderate things a bit," Dyson said Wednesday, adding that if "environmental zealots" insist on the total elimination of the discharges GE says it could be forced to close the plants and eliminate 1,800 jobs.

Dyson, formerly state agriculture commissioner, said he was attempting to persuade Reid to negotiate a settlement rather than continue with formal proceedings against the company.

"I had lunch with him yesterday," Dyson said. "I'm trying to get him to begin negotiations but I haven't succeeded yet. What I think we ought to do — Reid, myself, the federal Environmental Protection Agency and GE — is sit down" to discuss the matter.

An En Con spokesman said Columbia Law School professor Abraham D. Sofaer who conducted hearings last fall in the dispute, was expected to give his report to Reid by the end of the month.

After he receives the report, the spokesman said, Reid will issue a final ruling in the case. In addition to a complete elimination of PCB discharges, En Con is seeking a $2 million performance bond from GE and clean-up of the river. Reid has charged that samples of fish taken from the Hudson show levels of PCB's far above the maximum recommended for human consumption. The chemical is used in manufacturing electric capacitors and transformers.

He said the company has already reduced the discharge of PCB's to a level of about 3 pounds a day, and said the company has indicated it could trim that amount to 3 ounces daily by the end of the year.

"If it's a difference between zero ounces and zero jobs and 3 ounces and 1,800 jobs, this state is in such a state that we're damn well better off with the 1,800 jobs," Dyson said.

While saying he realized the harmful effects PCB discharge may have, Dyson added, "They use 35,000 pounds of PCB's a day. To have only 3 ounces of discharge is not bad. I think that is a pretty good faith effort."

He said GE officials claim substitutes for PCB's are more expensive and less marketable and that discharge below 3 ounces would be nearly impossible to achieve in the immediate future.

"I'm unconvinced that it's technically possible and I'm unconvinced that the company would be able to compete" if forced to end its discharge completely. He said that closing the plants would throw 1,800 workers, about one-third of whom are currently laid off, out of jobs, boosting the unemployment rate in Warren and Washington counties from 12 to 15 per cent.

Earlier Wednesday Dyson received a petition from workers at the plant who were seeking a compromise in the dispute.

Watch Out For That Ice Cap!

This graphic depiction of weather conditions in our region of the globe offers its testimony at the corner of Clifton and Highland Avenues, Kingston. Freeman photographer Alan Carey summed up his impression as "North Pole." While George Sands may worry about the snows of yesteryear, more snow for this year is forecast for Friday in the Hudson Valley, with lows tonight projected at 0-10 degrees and high temperatures seen for tomorrow in the 30s.

Mother Is Fighting Onteora Busing Policy

By Jon Powers

SHOKAN

The mother of a five-year-old kindergarten student has threatened to withhold her child from the Woodstock Elementary School unless the Onteora Central School District revises its policy that requires the boy to walk three-tenths of a mile from his home to the nearest busstop.

But a spokesman for the Onteora Board of Education says that financial factors make it impossible to alter, or ignore, the rule.

Mrs. Russell Oakes of Boice Road in Glenford has been fighting since September to persuade the school district to have a bus pick up her son, Robert, in front of the Oakes home. As matters now stand, Robert is required to walk from his home to a busstop on the Wittenberg-Glenford Road, three-tenths of a mile away.

It's apparently not so much the distance involved that bothers Mr. and Mrs. Oakes, but rather that the area is heavily wooded, that the road is narrow and twisting, and that there are no sidewalks in that neighborhood.

"I'd be scared to death to send him to the busstop alone," Mrs. Oakes told the Freeman. "I'd have no way of knowing if he got there safely."

Her husband is currently unemployed, so he has lately been escorting the child to the busstop, a practice that may be slightly inconvenient, but at least eliminates the family's concern for their son's safety. Oakes, however, has enrolled in Spring courses at Ulster County Community College, and his tentative schedule doesn't coincide with the daily

12:20 p.m. arrival of Robert's school bus.

That leaves Mrs. Oakes. Earlier this year, when her husband was working, she accompanied Robert, on foot, to the busstop. But she gave birth to another child in September, and now isn't about to carry her baby to and from the busstop in the middle of winter along an icy, hilly road. She dismisses one school district suggestion that she hire a baby sitter for a half-hour every afternoon as economically prohibitive.

So, when her husband is unavailable, Mrs. Oakes simply refuses to send Robert to school, a decision her son neither understands or enjoys. So far, he's missed 13 days of school since September, and Mrs. Oakes says she'll continue the practice until she gets some satisfaction from the school board.

In her quest for some action, Mrs. Oakes has touched just about every base. She first approached the principal of the Woodstock School, as well as Carlton Buley, the district's transportation supervisor. Neither, however, had the authority to change the policy.

She then contacted Superintendent of Schools Dr. Frank M. Marlow. He was suspended by the board of education a short time later. She next called Acting Superintendent Carl T. Brown, who examined the site personally and, according to Mrs. Oakes, seemed optimistic that something could be done. But Brown was replaced in late November and Dr. John Keough was appointed new acting superintendent.

So Mrs. Oakes called Keough, who suggested she contact John Mower, vice-president of the school board. She did.

Mower told the Freeman that the board is sympathetic, but that district policy expressly prohibits bus transportation for elementary students who live within one-half mile of the nearest bus-stop. To make an exception in the Oakes case, he said, would morally obligate the district to make exceptions for other families as well.

"This is a matter that comes up all the time," said Mower. "I know of four families on Trevor Road who are in the same situation. We're not talking about one little bus for Mrs. Oakes' child, we're talking about a lot of little buses all over the school district."

Mower also noted that the state minimum is currently two miles, in other words, the state has said that any elementary student who lives less than two miles from school or busstop need not be given transportation. Apparently believing that minimum to be unreasonable, Onteora set its own minimum at one-half mile.

There is another point the district feels it must consider. If the minimum is lowered to, say, three-tenths of a mile, the people who fall just short of that level could ask for special treatment. Either establish a minimum and stick to it, said Mower, or provide full transportation for every student in the district. For a district that covers 400 square miles, that second alternative would mean financial suicide.

Right now, Mrs. Oakes is only concerned with her own family's peculiar hardship, and she says she will seek the services of an attorney to file suit against the district.

THE SENATOR AND MARION JAVITS

'I See Nothing Wrong'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., says he sees nothing wrong in his wife's working as a foreign agent for Iran.

Javits, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was commenting on a story appearing in Wednesday's Village Voice newspaper which pegged his wife Marion as a registered agent for the oil-rich country.

Javits said, "In our private lives, we are husband and wife. But when it comes to our professional obligations, we pursue independent lives and make independent judgments."

"That's the way it has been for most of 28 years, and that's the way it will continue to be."

Marvin Frankel, president of Ruder & Finn International where Mrs. Javits works, confirmed she was registered as a foreign agent for Iran in connection with her $67,500 a year job.

Persons representing foreign governments, corporations or individuals in the United States are required to register with the federal government under the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938.

Frankel said the 50-year-old wife of New York's senior senator has worked on a promotional campaign for Iran Air since September. He said the Iran Air project currently was her only account.

She previously had been employed as a consultant for the firm, primarily in the arts field, Frankel said.

According to Frankel, Mrs. Javits registered six months ago as a foreign agent.

Iran, second largest oil-producing nation in the Middle East, is a Moslem nation, but its people are not Arabs. Iran has sold oil to Israel.

KINGSTON
Richard L. Treat, publisher of the Daily Freeman, announced today that this paper will act as sponsor of the world famous Dale Carnegie Course soon to begin in Kingston.

"We are bringing the course again to our community because we feel it is in the interest of public service," Treat said.

entitled "I Will Prepare Myself."

The organization of this class will be under the direction of Paul Jernigan, class manager for Dale Carnegie Institute of Albany.

"The Dale Carnegie Course, for more than a half century, has been helping men and women to live happier, richer and more successful lives through the discovery and development of their hidden talents and potential abilities," said Jernigan, "such as the development of greater self confidence, a keen memory and more effective powers of communication." He added that many people take the course primarily because they want a broader understanding of human relations. They want to know how to get along even more graciously with people whether it be in a business or social situation or at home.

Jernigan reported that during its 65 years of operation, the course has graduated more than a million men and women and is offered in 50 states and in many foreign countries. Those interested in more information may write or call the Daily Freeman, 331-5000.

Vatican Code on Sex

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican said today premarital sex, homosexual relations and masturbation are sins that can never be condoned, but only God can judge the degree of guilt of each sinner.

An unprecedented contemporary sexual code for Roman Catholics condemned modern society's "unbridled exaltation of sex" and said there was no acceptable sexual activity outside marriage.

The document, published today, said some present-day theologians erred in saying there could be no mortal sin in sex.

NATO Steps Into Dispute

REYKJAVIK, Iceland—The Secretary General of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization planned a meeting today with the Icelandic cabinet in an effort to solve a fishing rights dispute that threatens diplomatic relations between Iceland and Britain.

Secretary General Joseph Luns was scheduled to meet Prime Minister Geir Hall-Gremsson's cabinet at an unspecified morning session, and government officials said he would have later talks with opposition party leaders.

Luns stepped in to try to find an acceptable formula to end what he called "this deplorable conflict" after Iceland threatened to sever relations with its NATO ally if British warships did not leave Icelandic waters immediately.

Death Bogs Down Probe

NEW YORK — A grand jury investigation of Bronx politicians by special anti-corruption prosecutor Maurice Nadjari has bogged down temporarily due to the death of State Supreme Court Justice John M. Murtagh.

The judge had been expected to rule this week on motions by Democratic State Chairman Patrick J. Cunningham and three other Bronx politicians seeking to quash Nadjari subpoenas.

Aides to Gov. Hugh Carey spent Wednesday conferring on Murtagh's successor and other legal issues involved in the case.

Assault Stepped Up

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Moslem and Palestinian forces shelled Christian positions south of Beirut today and pushed north through the capital to cut off supply routes to beleaguered Christians in the seaside hotel district.

Initial reports from the Christian stronghold of Damour, 25 miles south of the capital, said casualties among the 15,000 residents were running high and the wounded were being evacuated by sea.

The stepped-up assault was in retaliation for the seizure of a Palestinian refugee camp in the fiercest fighting of the nine-month-old civil war.

Bomb Blast in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO — A powerful bomb meant for the Iranian consulate exploded in a downtown highrise office building Wednesday night, injuring two persons and causing $200,000 damage.

A message from the underground Red Guerrilla Family was received by United Press International two hours after the blast. It said the explosion was "in support of the Iranian people's struggle to rid themselves of the CIA-backed Shah." The consulate, located on the 13th floor of the 41-story Embarcadero Center, was only slightly damaged but the nearby offices of a chemical firm suffered extensive damage.

County Pupil $$ Below Average

ALBANY An audit of the financial operations of New York State school districts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1974, showed Ulster County per-pupil spending 16 per cent below the statewide average of $1,767.

The report from State Comptroller Arthur Levitt showed that neighboring counties were all below the statewide average, with Dutchess County 12 per cent under, Greene County 23 per cent under, Orange County 15 per cent under and Sullivan County 12 per cent under.

A closer look at statistics from Levitt's office shows that spending in this area might not be as much out of line as indicated from the above figures. Only New York City and five counties are above the statewide average, with a sixth (Suffolk) almost exactly on the average. The counties include Nassau, Westchester, Rockland and Putnam, all in the New York metropolitan orbit, above the statewide average, with rural Hamilton County in central New York the only upstate county with a spending figure above the average. The other 51 counties in the state are all below.

Removing New York City alone, with its $1,996 per-pupil expenditure, would lower the statewide average considerably and put the figures for Ulster County and its neighbors considerably nearer the average.

School tax rates per $1,000 of full value showed a much wider range with Ulster County three per cent below the state wide average, ranking 21st highest in the table of 57 counties and New York City. Dutchess County was 12 per cent above, ranking sixth; Greene County 21 per cent below (53rd), Orange County two per cent above (15th) and Sullivan County eight per cent below (32nd).

An examination of school district expenditures as a percentage of all local government expenditures showed Ulster County with 52.8 per cent, higher than the statewide average of slightly more than 45 per cent. A different picture emerges when New York City, with its low 20.5 per cent is included, brings the statewide average down to 33 per cent.

Other figures show that Dutchess County school expenditures were 54.3 per cent of all local government spending. The corresponding percentages for other neighboring counties were: Greene, 40.1; Orange, 50.3; and Sullivan, 39. Statewide, percentages varied from Hamilton County's low of 31.5 to Tioga County's high of 66.6.

Figures for 1974 show Ulster County receiving one per cent less than the statewide average of $758 per pupil in state aid. Other county figures: Dutchess, 7 per cent above; Greene, two per cent below; Orange, 13 per cent above, and Sullivan, 14 per cent below.

Across the state, real property taxes continued as the main financial support of schools, having furnished 50 per cent of revenues for 1974, with state aid providing 38 per cent, federal aid six per cent, and charges for services (summer school and adult education fees, tuition charges, etc.) interest on deposits, rentals, athletic receipts, delinquent tax collections, sales of surplus materials and property and other miscellaneous items making up the remaining six per cent.

A breakdown of the nine school districts in Ulster County shows a wide variation in real property school taxes as a percentage of full value, ranging from Highland's top 2.588 per cent down to Marlboro's low of 1.221 per cent. The Marlboro figure, substantially below other districts, reflects the presence of the Danskammer and Roseton Point electrical generating plants of Central Hudson within its borders, properties that contribute substantially to the district's tax receipts. Other figures include Kingston, 2.197 per cent; Ellenville, 1.192 per cent; New Paltz, 2.329 per cent; Onteora, 1.873 per cent; Rondout Valley, 1.883 per cent; Saugerties, 1.809 per cent; and Wallkill, 2.218 per cent.

Wallkill 'Family' Plan Nears

ALBANY State officials in the Department of Corrections are placing the finishing touches on the family visitation pilot program now scheduled to begin at Wallkill Correctional Facility in mid-March.

That new target date (the one announced last September was the beginning of this year) was arrived at Wednesday during a top level executive staff meeting in Albany.

The holdup now is simply a matter of setting up criteria for selection of prisoners to participate in the visitation program in five new mobile homes on the Wallkill grounds and deciding on details of that operation.

The primary background information source for prison visitation programs is the California state system, in operation for about eight years, according to Albany spokesmen.

The California system, in use at all state prisons including maximum security, gives the prisoner the choice in his or her application of a 19 or 43-hour visitation. It was explained that some inmates have difficulty in dealing with their wives and families for too long a period at first.

Part of the choice, of course, of participants is based on their record of behavior and the visitation thus takes on some of the characteristics of reward, or possibly punishment.

In order to give the most inmates possible a chance to meet with their families and hopefully be stimulated more toward "reintegration" with society (to use psychological jargon), the California system carries on continuously through the week.

The Wallkill program has been held up slightly behind the mechanical work of hooking up water and sewerage lines to the five mobile homes and getting them physically ready for occupancy.

The family itself may receive some aid from the Department of Corrections in the New York program, according to the ministerial service, which will maintain a component of the chaplain's staff in New York City for liaison work. The largest number of inmates at Wallkill come from the metropolitan area.

Ridge Man Sentenced

KINGSTON A young Stone Ridge man who previously pleaded guilty to first degree burglary in connection with a Town of Ulster break-in last June was sentenced Wednesday by County Judge Raymond J. Mono to a prison term with a maximum of six years.

Jeffrey Brown, 21, of Atwood Road, Stone Ridge, had entered the guilty plea during a court appearance last month.

Brown was arrested last June after allegedly breaking into the home of James Price of Vista Drive, Town of Ulster. At the time authorities said Price arrived home and was confronted by Brown, who was carrying a knife. Ulster County Sheriff's deputies said Price was able to keep Brown in the house until their arrival.

In a plea for leniency, defense attorney Charles Saccoman said Brown's problems stemmed from his involvement with drugs and noted that incarceration was "not really the answer to this problem."

Judge Mino, noting that a prison term was mandated by law on the charge, which is a Class B felony, handed out the six year sentence. Brown faced a possible maximum sentence of 25 years on the charge. Brown was additionally sentenced to a concurrent prison term with a maximum of two years on a previous drug possession charge.

Assistant District Attorney John Modjeska represented the People during sentencing.

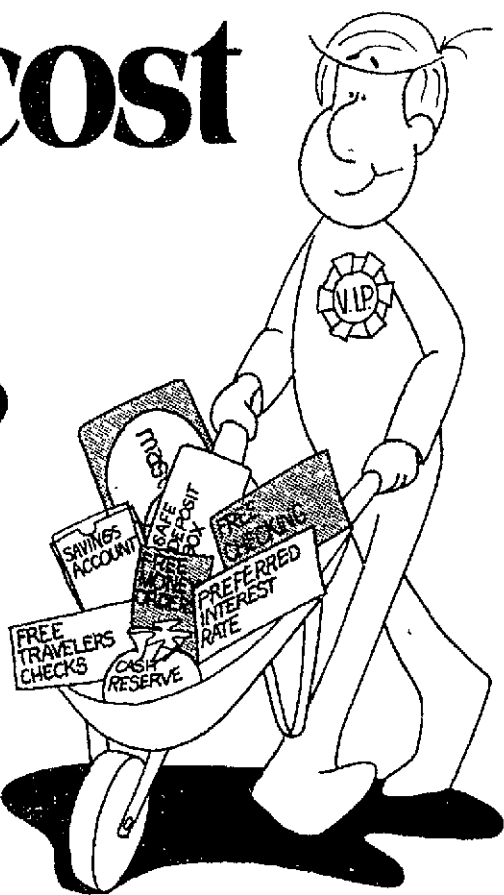

Also in county court on Wednesday, Daniel Green, 35, pleaded guilty to one count of second degree grand larceny. Green had allegedly defrauded five area residents out of more than $8,000, police said after returning him from Portland, Ore., last October.

Green had been indicted on five counts of second degree grand larceny and one count of second degree forgery in connection with the case.

During Green's court appearance Wednesday it was noted that the district attorney's office had previously agreed to a stipulation that Green would receive a maximum one-year jail sentence on the charge assuming he has not prior felony convictions and if he makes restitution.

Sentencing of Green, who was represented by Attorney William Pretsch, was put over until a later date.

Big Strides in Quake Alerts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The late Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai viewed the devastation of a great earthquake that killed tens of thousands of people near Hsing'ai in 1966 and said: "We must predict earthquakes."

China thus gave high priority to earthquake research and, after a five-year interruption from the Cultural Revolution, has made major strides in developing the science of predicting when and where tremors will occur.

The Chinese claim to have predicted 11 earthquakes so far and it is believed that one forecast warned the residents of Liaoning Province in time to avoid widespread deaths from a destructive tremor that struck Feb. 4, 1975.

"There can be no doubt that China's program is significant and merits international attention," said a team of American geophysicists who spent a month visiting major Chinese research institutes and field stations in late 1974. "Their program in terms of commitment and technology ranks with the best," the 13 U.S. scientists said in a report published in a recent issue of EOS, the journal of the American Geophysical Union.

"To the Chinese, earthquake prediction manifests the concept of science for the people," the report said. "Like the elimination of disease, protecting the people from the great scourge of earthquakes that has afflicted them for centuries is seen as an appropriate concern of the state."

China has a long history of catastrophic earthquakes. Closer to a million people died in the Huashin quake of 1556 and 180,000 were killed in the 1920 Kansu earthquake.

Because housing in rural areas of China is so susceptible to earthquake damage, the report said the nation's best strategy is to develop accurate ways of predicting imminent tremors to evacuate the people rather than attempt to strengthen the present housing.

Several hundred scientists and thousands of technicians are now involved in the Chinese program. There are 250 seismic stations in the vast nation and 5,000 observation points.

The report said the Chinese program suffers from the lack of modern computers and lacks some of the sophisticated instruments in use in the United States.

But Chinese scientists have considerable numbers of modern instruments. The report said when the Chinese were rebuffed from buying some sophisticated magnetometers from the United States, they built the instruments themselves.

"Their recent progress is amazing and bodes well for the future," said Dr. Frank Press, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in an introductory section of the report.

Press said "considerable benefit might be derived if the Chinese and the Americans were to launch a cooperative earthquake research effort."

"If a pooling of the knowledge and expertise of international scientific communities could be accomplished, there is little doubt that accurate earthquake prediction would become a reality in the foreseeable future."

Bad Egg Word for Some

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Family-sized egg producing farms eventually may be driven out of business by factory-type operators unless they are willing to accept lower returns, an Agriculture Department study warns.

The agency's Farmer Cooperative Service said in the study that some experts have suggested farmers could compete with the integrated "egg complexes" by setting up cooperatives to coordinate production and marketing. But, even this may not be enough, the FCS said.

An economic analysis of hypothetical units turning out 21 million dozen eggs annually showed production costs for a co-op owned by family farmers would be 1.6 cents a dozen higher than costs for an owner-integrated complex, officials said.

Experts said a farmer-owned co-op could compete with egg factories if it could develop greater efficiencies than the owner-integrated unit. If the co-op is no more efficient than the owner-operated factory, however, its survival would depend on what returns the farmer-members would accept.

"If it (a co-op) is to be viable, the participants...probably will have to accept somewhat lower returns on their resources than owner-integrators would receive," the report said.

Experts estimated, for example, that if a 21 million dozen-a-year complex owned by an individual or single company earned 15 per cent on its investment, a similar-sized coop would be paying its members only 9.9 per cent if they also allowed themselves $3 an hour for their labor.

If the producers allotted $5 an hour for their own labor, their investment return under the same circumstances would be down to 7 per cent. At a labor allocation of $7 an hour, capital returns would be 4.1 per cent for the co-op compared to 15 per cent for the owner-operated complex.

Economists said integration of production and marketing has not gone as far yet in egg production as in the broiler industry where nearly all chickens are produced by integrated firms using "contract growers" to raise their birds.

But, integration of egg production has been making rapid strides in recent years. One recently constructed new facility at Bethune, S.C., the report noted, includes under single ownership a feed mill, brooding and rearing facilities for hens, 16 laying houses for 1.1 million birds and an egg processing plant.

Just a Slight Change of Script

LONDON (UPI) — Upstairs was the lovely Countess of Carrick, wife of the Earl of Carrick, mother of his two children and mistress of his mansion.

Downstairs was Roy Holder, the chauffeur who drove the family Rolls Royce, married to a working housewife with a job in a government department.

In the Edwardian England in which the television series "Upstairs, Downstairs" was set, the upper and lower classes never mingled socially.

But this is a different era and the Countess of Carrick and the chauffeur fell in love.

Last September the Earl, a distinguished businessman, returned from one of his frequent trips abroad to find his wife had left home and was living in a small apartment with his chauffeur.

Throughout the affair which stirred British society — but was not nearly the sensation it might have been in less liberated days — he maintained he would be content with whatever made his 44-year-old wife happy.

Three days after the Earl obtained his divorce, the Countess and Holder, 44, made their first appearance in public since they left their homes to move in together four months ago.

They were recognized drinking beer and munching potato chips at a pub in Hanscombe, Surrey, not far from the great Carrick country house where they met. The Earl sold the mansion after his wife left.

Holder and the Countess said their affair had stood "the test of love."

"We are lovers," said the chauffeur, "with the misfortune of a title, the difference between a servant and the gentry and a wide gap in our social backgrounds."

"All sorts of things have been said about us, particularly about me, and how I was supposed to have made a pass at the lady in the back seat. The truth is that Belinda preferred me to her husband and I wanted her more than my wife. That's how the affair began and now we are together."

Railroad Town Target of Angola Push

LUSO, Angola (UPI) — Soviet-backed troops supported by heavy artillery and front-line Cuban soldiers headed toward Angola's eastern front today to capture this railroad town from pro-Western rivals, a military spokesman reported.

Col. Samuel Chiwale, army commander of the pro-Western National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, said the rival Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola and its support units numbered at least 1,000 and included Russian advisers and Cuban troops.

Earlier this week, the force bombarded National Union positions with long-range artillery about 60 miles north of Lusso, paving the way for an imminent assault.

This reporter, on a visit to the front, saw South African troop movements in the immediate rear area, strongly suggesting they were aiding National Union troops in this sector near the Zaire border for the first time.

Chiwale said he was confident his forces could withstand any Popular Movement attack but would not discuss possible counter-offensives by the National Union and its ally, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola.

National Union president Jonas Savimbi toured the eastern front Wednesday on his return from the Organization of African Unity meeting in Ethiopia.

The OAU emergency summit failed to find a peace formula for the ravaged nation, leading to predictions an all-out civil war would engulf the former Portuguese colony.

National Union officials said the war would be settled on the battlefield and not at a conference table.

Lusso is a railroad town straddling the Benguela line, which slices across Angola from east to west and is a vital pipeline for Zambian and Zaire copper exports to the railroad harbor, Benguela, on the Atlantic coast.

Most of the line is already in National Union hands except for Teixeira de Sousa, on the Zaire border, which pro-Western sources said they expected to take soon.

The pro-Western forces have received severe setbacks in the north, where the Popular Movement overran the National Front strongholds of Ambriz, Ambrizete and the Toto airbase.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has warned continued Soviet action in Angola could undermine detente, but said he would visit Moscow Jan. 20-23 to clarify U.S.-Soviet exchanges on Angola and to try to break a deadlock on strategic arms limitation negotiations.

During his first news conference of the new year Kissinger tied Angola and the SALT talks together and said Soviet actions in Angola were "incompatible with a genuine relaxation of tensions."

"I am saying that Soviet actions in Angola, if continued, are bound to affect the general relationship with the United States, (and) that a substantial deterioration of that relationship can also over time affect the strategic arms talks," Kissinger said.

Kissinger said Moscow had "sent close to $200 million worth of military equipment to Angola in the last nine months, which equals the total amount of all military equipment sent to all the rest of sub-Saharan Africa by all other countries."

"So that is not a minor infusion of military force."

Claiming 7,000 Cuban troops are in Angola, Kissinger said: "The fighting in the northern front in Angola is conducted almost entirely by Cuban forces and without even a pretense of any significant MPLA participation."

The MPLA is the Soviet-backed Communist Angolan faction.

He added, "We believe that this is a wholly unnecessary setback to the constructive trends in U.S.-Soviet relations which we cannot believe is ultimately in the Soviet or the world interest."

Judy: JFK, Sam Lovers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Judith Campbell Exner says she maintained sexual relationships with both President John Kennedy and the Chicago Mafia leader Sam Giancana during the early 1960s but insists she did not discuss government or crime with her lovers.

In an outline of her forthcoming book, Mrs. Exner also said Kennedy told her his marriage was in bad shape and she had intended to divorce him, but the Kennedy family made Jackie realize "that a divorced Catholic from Boston stood small chance of gaining the nomination, let alone the presidency."

Mrs. Exner, 41, said she was introduced to both Kennedy and Giancana by Frank Sinatra, with whom she earlier had an affair.

Scott Meredith, Mrs. Exner's literary agent, said Wednesday he expected her ghost written book, to be published in about three months, to "earn upwards of $2 million worldwide."

The outline, submitted to several publishers for bids, said Mrs. Exner began her affair with Kennedy in March, 1960, with a four-day tryst at the Plaza Hotel in New York. She said Sinatra introduced her to Kennedy Feb. 7, 1960, at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas and she took "an immediate liking to Jack Kennedy" who asked her to lunch

the next day. She said Ted Kennedy, who also was in Las Vegas, asked her to accompany him on a campaign trip to Denver the next day, but she refused.

Mrs. Exner said her sexual liaison with Kennedy continued through the fall of 1962 and included about 20 meetings in the White House in mid-1961.

She said they parted on a friendly basis because it "simply had become too difficult to maintain the relationship with the constant need for secrecy and the pressures and demands Kennedy had to meet."

About two weeks after she began her affair with Kennedy, the outline said, she was introduced to Giancana by Sinatra at the Fountainbleu Hotel in Miami Beach and they, too, became lovers.

The outline said, "Judith has absolutely no knowledge of having been used as a connection between the Mafia and the White House." She said neither Kennedy nor Giancana discussed business with her.

Mrs. Exner's relationship became public when she was subpoenaed before a Senate committee investigating alleged ties between the CIA and the Mafia in connection with a reported plot to assassinate Cuban premier Fidel Castro. Her testimony has not been made public.

Giancana also was sub-

A Call For Jobs Marks King Date

Charging the Nixon and Ford administrations with forcing the poor to bear the brunt of inflation, Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. issued a call today for full employment in one of many ceremonies around the nation marking the 47th anniversary of her late husband's birth.

"The poor, minorities, and average working people have been deliberately chosen by the immediate past and current administration to bear the brunt of our economic policy," said Mrs. King in Atlanta.

A massive march from Ebenezer Baptist Church, where the slain civil rights leader preached, to the Federal Reserve Bank in downtown Atlanta was held to dramatize the need for jobs.

Mrs. King also planned to place a wreath at the King gravesite.

A petition asking Congress to investigate the King slaying was signed by 888 persons, circulated in Milwaukee and sent to Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis.

In a letter to Mrs. King, President Ford pledged renewed dedication to the achievement of equality for all Americans, citing King's "eloquent commitment to the cause of civil rights" and his forceful leadership.

Observances also were planned in other cities. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference sponsored a march in Louisville, Ky., designed to counter strong anti-busing sentiment in the area stemming from a court-ordered school desegregation plan.

The Skala Censure

In a previous editorial, the Freeman supported Kingston School Consolidated Board of Education member Richard Skala after he was censured by the board.

An article submitted by WHITA earlier in the week supported Mr. Skala, despite the censure. That same WHITA article also disclosed an attack by Skala on School Superintendent Salzmann and school board members for a trip to Dallas, Tex.

Skala said that the school system would have been just as well served had only two representatives attended the convention instead of six.

The Freeman's editorial was in error. We reported that Mr. Skala was censured for criticizing the board about the Texas junket.

Actually, the board's action in censuring Mr. Skala was justified. He attempted to stop Mr. Salzmann from speaking on board matters at a public meeting on Dec. 11. Mr. Skala took exception to those statements made by Mr. Salzmann.

The Superintendent of Schools, has, by law, the right to speak on any public matter concerning the board.

We disagree with Mr. Skala's attempt to silence Mr. Salzmann. His action could be misinterpreted by some as a personal attack on Mr. Salzmann.

We hope never to see the day when officials cannot openly discuss issues concerning our community.

The Freeman apologizes to school board members for the previous editorial.

As for the Texas junket, however, we still would like the board to explain why six representatives were sent to an out-of-state meeting half way across the country.

Impartial Board Sought

Editor, The Freeman:

(Open Letter to the Ontario Board of Education)

I am quite concerned with both recent and pending actions of the Board of Education. These concerns relate not to the guilt or innocence of Dr. Marlow or the published charges against him, but rather the effects of the Board's actions on both the schools and the taxpayer.

At the October 21 special meeting of the Board, Mr. Lawson stated that $5000 had been set aside for legal expenses in conjunction with the charges against Dr. Marlow and "Mr. Matthews knows that is the limit he has to work with." When Mrs. Motrie asked—"suppose it isn't resolved within the $5000 limit"—it was reiterated by Mr. Lawson that $5000 was the limit.

At the December meeting, the Board affirmed that the $5000 maximum applied to both attorneys. (After Mr. Donoghue's bill of about $800, Mr. Matthews has the remaining $4200 as his maximum.) I also asked as to the scope of the services to be covered by this maximum:

- drawing of charges,
- drawing of charges plus services at the hearing, or
- both of the above plus any follow-on legal activity.

This question was not answered; however, Mr. Lawson did state that if more money was required than was already allotted, then more money would be appropriated.

This last statement is in direct conflict with the answer Mr. Lawson gave to Mrs. Motrie's question at the October meeting. Evidently Mr. Lawson has now changed his mind. What will the limit be?

In a personal meeting one of the Board members told me that "if the costs exceed the $5000 maximum it will be Dr. Marlow's fault because he chooses to escalate" the issue.

Just what is the potential sequence of events? I believe that as a result of the pending public hearing on the charges, the Board could take any of three actions: dismiss the charges, dismiss Dr. Marlow, or re-structure his job. If he wishes, Dr. Marlow could then appeal to the Commissioner of Education. If either the Board or Dr. Marlow still feels aggrieved, the case could be taken to the courts. This could cost the taxpayers many thousands of dollars. (and has in other districts) and would be Dr. Marlow's "fault" only if the Commissioner upholds the Board and Marlow appeals. Otherwise the "fault" would be squarely with the Board.

As a taxpayer, I do not appreciate my tax money being spent pursuing the type of charges so far presented. It can be spent in much better ways!! Many of the people (including teachers) I come in contact with feel the same way. I propose either that legal action to terminated at the expenditure of $5000 or a public referendum be held before any additional money is appropriated.

In his December 8 request for a public hearing on the charges against him, Dr. Marlow requested that the Board disqualify itself and an impartial arbiter or panel sit in judgement at the hearing.

It is public knowledge that the Board tried to get the superintendent to leave his job and that when he refused, the Board decided to bring charges against him. It is also known that at least one Board member has been active in recruiting people to testify against him. In addition, one of the charges involves a Board member who, it is reasonable to assume, will testify against him.

Under conditions such as these, it is difficult to understand how the Board can sit in fair and impartial judgment in this case. The Board should disqualify itself and arrange for an impartial judge or jury. Anything less will lower the credibility of the Board of Education.

Wants More Answers

Editor, The Freeman:

I went to the recent meeting at Highland High School to obtain information about the question of nuclear power in my town. What happens is Mr. Gifford Beal, moderator and claims manager for Centran Hudson, 'opens' the meeting with a 45 minute introduction, of which I remember only his saying he has lived in the area for many years and on three occasions complimenting ERDA for their openness and honesty in dealing with the community regarding the Lloyd site. If ERDA is so sincere then let their actions speak for themselves. That is not the role of an impartial moderator. I also wonder about Mr. Beal's logic in limiting questions for the first half of the question and answer period to town of Lloyd and Esopus residents only. The scope and range of a nuclear plant certainly involves people in New Paltz and Poughkeepsie. The plant in reality concerns people who would have to be evacuated in case of a major disaster at the Lloyd site. This area covers a forty mile radius from the plant, not the towns of Lloyd and Esopus but Newburgh, Beacon, Millbrook and many, many more towns.

The most disagreeable portion of the evening however, was the attempt by Mr. Robertson of ERDA to prevent questions concerning health and safety features of the intended power plant. There are too many aspects of nuclear power that need to be discussed at open meetings to tell 500 hundred citizens that, no, tonight we will not deal with these aspects of the Lloyd site. Mr. Robertson you are a part of an organization that is attempting to site a nuclear power in our community, yet you shy away from talking about the most important parts of the issue. Are you being as open and honest as Mr. Beal described you at the beginning of your 'informational' meeting?

Not An Engineer

Editor, The Freeman:

Thank you for publication of the problems with Route 28, but there is one error. Any reference to me and highway engineering was over the telephone and there seems to be some misunderstanding. I was NOT a highway engineer, but was in partnership with one (he is now Chief Engineer of the Brazos River Authority in Texas). Our partnership was in operating an airport for the city of Mineral Wells, not building or designing highways. Civil engineering projects that I had design functions were limited to airports. I have had, however, a long time interest in all branches of Civil Engineering.

Friends, such as my partner and Dr. G. W. Clemons, recently retired Chief Scientist for DOT's department of Highways, have educated me in highway design as improvements were incorporated in both projects and designs. Dr. Clemons was generous enough to furnish me with Federal publications as they were released. I do not, however, have a formal civil engineering education, nor have I ever been a highway engineer.

I would appreciate your publicizing these facts.

Yours Truly,

More on the CIA

Have you noticed that although there is a great deal of talk about a new morality that issues from the arrival of a nuclear age, some of the conclusions one would expect from the acceptance of that proposition are resisted? It is easy enough to find a politician or a poet who will tell you that war has become unthinkable in a nuclear age; but almost impossible to find anyone who will suggest that from that proposition, it follows that any extra-conventional step necessary to prevent nuclear war is admissible.

The CIA is in general disrepute primarily because—or so the Senate report informs us—a division of the CIA recommended the assassination of two heads of state, Patrice Lumumba, and Fidel Castro. Concerning Lumumba, I cannot conceive of the reasoning behind the recommendation, and therefore tend to join the critics. Concerning Fidel Castro, one would think that certain points should be meditated.

1. Except for the fact of the nuclear age, the United States would certainly have declared war against Castro's Cuba. The provocations far exceeded those that conventionally precede a declaration of war. Castro had invited our principal enemy into his country, to arm that country with destructive weapons aimed at American population centers; Castro had confiscated the property of American citizens; Castro was sending out platoons of revolutionaries to disturb the peace of the continent; Castro had violated the Monroe Doctrine which was the basis of our hemispheric policy.

2. But Congress did not declare war, any more than it did in Korea, or in Vietnam, and for much the same reason. War suggests the commitment of all your resources; and our resources, in a nuclear age, are sufficient to make the island of Cuba disappear from the face of the earth.

3. Under the circumstances, that which is traditionally unthinkable arises as a possible alternative. If it becomes necessary to remove the threat posed by a single leader who has a handle on nuclear weapons, does one prefer the sniper or a massive amphibious military operation?

During the Japanese war we took great pride in tracking the airplane of Admiral Yamamoto, and blasting it out of the air. That was the equivalent of an assassination, of sorts; though he was not the leader. If we had been able to track the building in which Hitler squatted, we'd have gleefully sent a bomber zeroed in on those august coordinates.

The ethical question becomes: is it hypothetically possible that the sniper can avoid a nuclear devastation? And the answer is not so much that, viewed in retrospect, such a situation didn't obtain in Cuba in 1962 and 1963; but that ethical men might have considered that it obtained and might therefore, in good conscience, have recommended the elimination of a single individual.

I have used the image before, but it is enduringly useful because practically everybody agrees that General Amin is quite mad. Moreover, everyone agrees that the looming threat is of atom bombs in the hands of madmen: science is making the atom bomb a bargain basement item. Most people agree that the fanatical opposition of Amin to Israel could bring him, if he had the necessary equipment, to load an atom bomb into one of his wheezy airplanes and send it over to Israel with instructions to drop it over Tel Aviv. Our CIA finds out about it. Tipping off Israel is one thing; but Israel has no ABM system that is proof against that kind of thing.

Does the Israeli version of the CIA have the right to send a sniper down to Uganda?

The point is that it is all much more difficult than we make it out to be in routine denunciations of assassinations. Murder is a terrible instrument. And tyrannicide is, traditionally, held to be the exclusive prerogative of the indigenously oppressed. But again, the logic of the nuclear age extends these old ethical boundaries, and there is no point in keeping this from ourselves.

The Machiavelli Political Plan

WASHINGTON—The question of whether or not the United States should finance political parties abroad through the CIA doesn't seem to be a problem to the Administration. The only debate is about what parties should receive the money. Rumor has it that the CIA plans to give $6 million to the Christian Democrats in Italy to make sure the Communists don't get elected. But there are some people in Washington who feel that now that the cat is out of the bag, the contribution could be counterproductive. One of them is my friend Giulio Machiavelli who knows the political situation in Italy as well as anybody. "I think we should give money to a political party in Italy only if we're certain it will produce results." "You mean to the Christian Democrats?" I said. "No, I mean to the Italian Communist Party." "Have you gone mad?" I said to Machiavelli. "Why would we give money to the Italian Communist Party?" "It's very simple. If the CIA hands over the funds to the Italian Communist Party, everyone will say the Communists in Italy work for the CIA and the center parties will win the election." "But that's Machiavellian," I told my friend. "The American people would never stand for it." "Neither would the Italians," Machiavelli said. "Look, right now every political party but the Communists are tainted in Italy because it is widely believed their politicians are on the CIA payroll. The only way we can reverse this is by putting the Communists on the payroll and cutting off everyone else." "But you can't cut off non-Communist politicians from CIA funds," I protested. "The Right, the Center and the Non-Communist Left depend on that money for their own personal expenses. They have villas to pay off, new cars to buy, Swiss bank accounts to keep up. You can't take money out of their pockets just

WASHINGTON—Pennsylvania's Gov. Milton Shapp called on us several weeks ago to complain that the Justice Department was hounding him. He was the victim he alleged, of a "political investigation" directed by Assistant Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh. Before Thornburgh came to Washington, he was the U.S. attorney in Pittsburgh. He campaigned against Shapp and accused him of improprieties worse than Watergate. Now Thornburgh is using his new powers in the Justice Department, Shapp charged, to try to make the charges come true.

These were serious allegations coming, as they did, from a powerful governor and presidential contender. At first, Shapp appeared to be the darkest horse in the Democratic presidential race. But in a poll taken at a Democratic convention in the key state of Florida, Shapp placed second to Georgia's ex-Gov. Jimmy Carter and beat out Alabama's Gov. George Wallace.

Therefore, we sent out reporter Marc Smolonsky to Pennsylvania to check into Shapp's complaints. Smolonsky has spent more than a month on the investigation. He has interviewed a host of state officials and government investigators from Harrisburg to Washington. Here are our conclusions:

—We found systematic corruption, including organized crime links throughout the Shapp Administration. During his two terms, 57 state officials have been indicted by grand juries. Except for an allegation of perjury in a complex contracts case, however, no wrongdoing has been attributed directly to the Governor.

—Another grand jury indictment, which should shake up the Shapp Administration, is expected within 10 days. Sources close to the investigation say Edgallio "Gene" Cerilli, chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, will be indicted on federal kickback charges.

Cerilli told us he was unaware of the possible indictment, had no idea what the charges could be based on and, in any event, had taken no kickbacks. Shapp said he couldn't believe Cerilli was guilty of the charges.

—Reliable eyewitnesses have seen state officials sitting at the same restaurant table with Joseph Scalleat who, according to the Pennsylvania Crime Commission, is a Pennsylvania underworld boss. He has a regular table and telephone set up at Lombardo's restaurant near the capitol building in Harrisburg.

Among the high officials who have been spotted at his table are Lt. Gov. Ernest Klein and the Liquor Control Board's chief counsel, Harry Bowytz. Both Klein and Bowytz admitted seeing Scalleat in Lombardo's but denied meeting with him.

—George Greenblat, vice chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, formerly owned an interest in Luv Motors, an American Motors dealership in Allentown, Pa. He also became a paid consultant for American Motors in 1971-74 while he was a turnpike official. During this same period, Pennsylvania suddenly began buying American Motors cars.

Greenblat is also part owner of a Chrysler-Plymouth dealership in Allentown. Curiously enough, the state also began purchasing Chrysler-Plymouth cars after Greenblat became a state official.

Governor Shapp admitted this didn't

look good but expressed confidence in Greenblat. Federal authorities, meanwhile, are investigating. Greenblat denied any conflict of interest.

—The Philadelphia Strike Force is investigating alleged violations of the Pennsylvania liquor code by the Thrifty Beverage Company. The task force is also attempting to untangle some alleged mobster and political ties to the beverage firm.

—Federal investigators are also looking into charges that Pennsylvania's Attorney General Robert Kane wrongly granted immunity to at least one prominent politician who had been accused of taking kickbacks. Since we couldn't reach the politician for comment, we will withhold his name. Kane denied any wrongdoing.

—Shapp himself has been accused of lying to the State Contract Practice Committee on Oct. 8, 1974. His testimony dealt with the complex, controversial sale of a cable television franchise. Shapp was a pioneer in cable television and founded the Williamsport, Pa., Cable TV Company.

This is not the end of the story. We counted at least 21 separate state and federal investigations into the Pennsylvania government. However, the details tend to be repetitious.

OPPRESSION IN PARAGUAY: Paraguay has arrested a famed anthropologist, Prof. Miguel Chase Sardi, who dared to oppose President Alfredo Stroessner's genocide policies against the Ache Indians. Arrested with the professor but released, was Marilyn Renhelfeldt, who also had sought civil rights for the Indians.

In the past, Stroessner actually permitted wealthy Paraguayans and foreign "sportsmen" to hunt the Ache like animals, competent sources have told us. Now the genocide takes the form of slave labor and starvation. The distinguished archaeologist was charged with "subversion," which covers any opposition to veteran despot Stroessner.

munists in Italy are being financed by the Central Intelligence Agency." "How would you publicize something like that?"

"We'd get Director William Colby to brief a congressional watchdog committee in secret session that the CIA was going to give $6 million to the Italian Communist Party. He would make them all swear that they wouldn't reveal a word of it to anyone."

"Five minutes after the briefing was over, every newspaper bureau in Washington would know about it. The day after the story was printed the White House would deny it. As soon as the denial came out, everyone in Italy would believe it was true."

"It's brilliant," I told Machiavelli. "But if the CIA starts supporting Communist parties in other countries, won't it hurt detente?"

to defeat the Communists."

"Ah, but that's just the point," Machiavelli said. "They won't be cut off. When the Soviets find out the CIA is supporting the Communist Party in Italy, the KGB will have no choice but to support the Christian Democrats. If we're to believe our government, the Soviets pour in a lot more money for an election in a foreign country than the Americans do and, therefore, the Christian Democrats will have more funds to salt away for themselves than when they were financed by the CIA."

"It's an interesting proposal," I said. "But what happens if the CIA financing is so successful the Communists win in Italy?"

"There is very little chance of that happening. In almost all cases whichever side the CIA supports in an election loses. But we must make sure that there is a great deal of publicity that the Com-

One GOP Voter in Four Favors 'Independent-Republican' Label

By George Gallup

With surveys showing Republican party affiliation at an all-time low, some GOP leaders have debated the merits of changing the name of the party in an effort to attract new voters.

The Republican party in Minnesota, as a matter of fact, recently officially changed its name to the Independent-Republican party, with the hope of drawing the support of the growing number of independents. The proportion of independent ents, nationwide, in fact, is at an all-time high, now far outnumbering Republicans.

Gallup Poll

When the question of changing the name of the national Republican party to the Independent-Republican party was recently asked of a sample of the nation's GOP voters, one in six voted in favor. The proportion is one in four when only the views of those expressing an opinion are considered.

Of equal significance, a similar proportion of independent voters in the survey believe a name change is in order for the GOP.

Here is the survey question:
"The Republican party in Minnesota has officially changed its name to 'Independent-Republicans of Minnesota.' Do you think it would be a good idea or a poor idea for the national Republican party to add the word 'Independent' to its name, making it the 'Independent-Republican party?'"
Following are the results based on the total sample (including the "no opinion" group):

| | | |
|-------------------|-----------|-----------|
| | Good Idea | Poor Idea |
| Republicans..... | 24 Pct | 76 Pct |
| Independents..... | 26 Pct | 74 Pct |
| Democrats..... | 16 Pct | 84 Pct |
| Nationwide | 22 Pct | 78 Pct |

GOP Label Appeal at Low Point

The latest Gallup Poll study of political party affiliation, based on in-person interviews with 7,789 adults, shows only 21 per cent classifying themselves as Republicans while more than twice as many, 44 per cent, classify themselves as Democrats and 35 per cent place themselves in the ranks of independents. The result on changing the GOP label reported today are based on interviews with 1,543 adults, 18 and older. The sample includes 378 Republicans, 515 independents, 609 Democrats and 41 who indicate other parties. Interviews were conducted in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Dec 5-8.

He Lifted the Bamboo Curtain

By Don Oakley (NEA)

Only the departure of Mao Tse-tung himself to join his ancestors would have generated a greater of more "un-Chinese" outpouring of official mourning and eulogizing than did the death of Chou En-lai.

It was a final remarkable tribute to a remarkable man.

For years it was taken for granted by China-watchers, and presumably by the Chinese themselves, that Chou — premier and No. 2 man in the Chinese Communist hierarchy, who at one time seemed to run China virtually single-handed on a day-to-day basis — would inherit the aging Mao's mantle. Few observers anticipated that he might predecease Mao.

But Chou himself was aging and was, as we now know, stricken by cancer. For the last few years of his life he was continuously hospitalized. Even so, to the outside world Chou continued to represent the semblance of the actuality of power in China. Whatever subtle realignments and shifting of authority his long incapacity must have occasioned remain as yet unclear.

Mao Tse-tung, that semi-mythical, deified figure, now remains alone as the last of the original Chinese communists. All the rest are gone, either through death or defection or purge. The passing of Chou En-lai now makes more obvious than anything else could the great void of leadership that exists between Mao and the masses.

First Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, whose name most Americans never heard until President Ford's trip to China last fall, gives more the impression of being an interim caretaker administrator than the new heir to Mao.

Again unlike most other Chinese Communists, Chou En-lai was well known outside his country long before President Nixon's historic visit in March, 1972 — that dramatic parting of the bamboo curtain for which Chou was so greatly responsible. For nine years before and during World War II, he had been liaison man between the Communists, Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists and Western representatives in Chungking.

He was named premier and foreign minister of the people's republic at its founding in 1949, and was the only premier it has ever had. In 1954, he represented China at the Geneva conference on Vietnam, at which was laid the ground for America's later tragic involvement in that country.

It was in 1972, however, that Chou attained something almost like popularity in the United States as host and toastmaster to the American presidential and press entourage.

The face of China that Chou presented to Americans via satellite television was an attractive one. Surely, one thought, if this urbane, gracious and obviously highly intelligent man was typical of the "new Chinese", there was no reason in the world why our two countries could not resolve their differences, initiate a mutually beneficial trade relationship and cooperated in coming years to preserve the peace in at least half the world.

Not all these great expectations have been realized. But while nothing that can be called warm relations has developed between the United States and China, there has been no relapse into the pre-1972 freeze. The presence of the Russian bear on China's northern border alone insures there will not be.

For his role in making China a world power to be reckoned with and in bringing about a new era in Chinese-American relations, Chou En-lai has earned a unique place in the history of both countries.

Holy Year Great Success

VATICAN CITY
Far from being the flop that everybody had expected — and even the Pope had feared — the Holy Year has turned out to be a roaring success. An estimated 8.4 million pilgrims had clocked in at St. Peter's basilica and three other major Roman churches by midnight on Christmas Eve, when the Pope sealed the special Holy Year bronze door at St. Peter's and thus officially closed this Roman Catholic fixture that has been going on at intervals since 1300.

That was far more than anybody in the Vatican had expected, and more than three times the result in 1950, the last Holy Year, when some 2.5 million people came.

The Pope says that, numbers apart, it will take a long time to evaluate the impact of the Holy Year on the world's 700 million Catholics. It is fairly certain (and not denied in Rome) that a few of these ostensible Catholic pilgrims were in fact staunch Protestant ladies from Britain, Jewish professors from the United States and other non-Catholics, or even non-believers, who took advantage of the many cheap Holy Year charter flights to see the sights of Rome.

Nevertheless, the Vatican is visibly bucked up by the statistics, and especially the fact that a large proportion of the pilgrims were young people. And, whatever its spiritual benefits to the next generation of Catholics, it was certainly welcomed by the Italian tourist industry, which made an estimated extra $630 million this year, a much-needed shot in the arm after a two-year recession.

It looks as if, with papal doubts now dispelled, there will be another Holy Year in 2000.

Is Still on the Market

By Michael J. Conlon
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here's a question from Brownsville, Tex.:

"Whatever happened to Fels Naptha Soap, the yellow bar soap? Maybe some people find the scent of it objectionable, but to me it has a good clean smell — I can remember my grandmother used it."

"I've lived in Brownsville for almost three years now and have never seen it in the stores here. I used to live in Indianapolis, and some stores there had it."

"With all our expensive sprays, etc., that are being sold now, in my opinion nothing is superior for getting rid of stains than Fels Naptha."

The Purex Corp. says the soap still is distributed nationally, but there may be local exceptions.

A company spokesman said it disappeared in some parts of Texas because the A and P stores, which handled the product, closed. Efforts now are being made to get the soap back into distribution there. The spokesman said he will let you know if, and where, it might be available.

The same reader adds this complaint:

"Since so many companies make child-proof medicine bottles, why don't they give some thought to the adults whose eyes are not so good?"

Sometimes I have to get a magnifying glass in order to see the small mark on the bottle where the cap is supposed to be turned in order to open it.

"Also, since I do art work I need to buy gum turpentine to clean my brushes. The cap is secured so tight that I actually had to use pliers in order to open it. This in my opinion makes no sense at all."

"At least the companies should give the consumer an option and if a person prefers to buy a nonchild-proof bottle of medicine or aspirin, etc., then they should be able to."

"Also, in talking to people regarding this problem, many of them laughingly tell me they get their children to open the so-called child-proof bottle."

I also had to use pliers to get the cap off a turpentine can a couple of weeks ago. On the whole, though, tight caps are worth whatever inconvenience they may cause if they help prevent accidental poisonings.

As for the medicine bottles, you might consider transferring their contents to nonchild-proof bottles if you think no children are liable to get into them. Or ask your pharmacist for a bottle with a regular cap.

An opinion from Salem, Mo.:

"I'm a very concerned citizen about the American drinking problem. TV soap operas, as well as the evening shows, are showing the bottle as a consolation or solution to helping face problems, celebrate good news, or as a social way of life."

"Nowadays pre-school children are exposed to all the shows, and they 'catch on' to these things very young, which can lead to lifetime impressions as drinking as a way of life."

"My four and a half year old granddaughter was watching a soap opera with me, and an actress rushed to her bar for a bottle when a family crisis came up. The young granddaughter said 'Look, grandma, she's hitting the bottle.'"

"The Congress, parents, teachers and many organizations are for abolishing so much violence on TV. OK, but what about the drinking?"

My limited exposure to soap operas would seem to indicate that alcohol is one of the lesser evils portrayed, but thanks for raising the point.

He Never Reaped Inspiration's Reward

TAKOMA PARK, Md. (UPI) — Helping his mother sweep out a theater in Chattanooga, Tenn., 45 years ago, Cleavant Derricks found a $6 bill and the inspiration to write one of the nation's most famous gospel songs, "Just a Little Talk With Jesus."

The song has been recorded again and again by at least 300 singers, including Tennessee Ernie Ford and Loretta Lynn.

But Derricks, now 65 and stricken with cancer, never received a cent in royalties.

The $5 he found paid for a music lesson at Chattanooga's Cadek Conservatory of Music, one of the first such Southern schools to admit blacks. He swapped his song for 50 songbooks he sold at churches and gospel meetings for 10 cents each — another $5 at most.

His songs became famous but Derricks was almost forgotten. Still, he is not bitter despite major medical bills and life in a suburban Washington apartment that, while comfortable, is far from the luxury enjoyed by many music stars.

"It was the work of the Devil, but God let it happen," Derricks said. "I'm not responsible for my being known in the gospel music field. Folks stole from me and put me out. I got the exposure that others didn't."

In the Depression South, there were no big record contracts for black musicians. Few blacks received copyrights for their work.

"We didn't know about the laws," said Derricks. Nashville producer Aaron Brown believes the Baptist preacher would have earned up to $250,000 if he had owned the copyrights to "Just a Little Talk With Jesus" and some 325 other songs he wrote. Last January the need for money brought Derricks to Nashville where he hoped to sell a few songs.

"The old man came into my office a year ago and said he hadn't written in many years," Brown said. "He was gunshy about who he was. He said he'd written a famous song. We documented it and it was true."

"He's still a tremendous writer, I signed him and am promoting him," Brown said. Brown's promotion led to a top-selling gospel music album, "The Reverend Cleavant Derricks and Family Singing 'Just a Little Talk With Jesus'" and a spot on an NBC television show, taped in September in Nashville.

Derricks performed with a 106-degree temperature which he thought was a cold. Instead, his illness was diagnosed as cancer of the colon.

Although Derricks' illness is causing a memory loss, he still recalls traveling the gospel road of the 1930s, from black shanty towns in Georgia to Chicago's tenement slums, his companions singers such as Mahalia Jackson and Roberta Martin.

Tired of travel after World War II, Derricks settled in Knoxville, Tenn., gave up his music and became a minister, founding churches throughout the country, never losing his faith in a God he says never allowed him to fall into bitterness.

"You've got to love people in spite of themselves," he said.

Tricks for Signatures

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Robert Colbert, who collects autographs of famous persons by telling them he's named his baby after them, has a new gimmick.

Colbert, of the city's Manayunk section, recently sent a letter to Georgia state Sen. Julian Bond asking him to send a congratulatory letter to his great-grandmother on her 100th birthday.

The letter was signed Mr. and Mrs. Ira Strouse. But that's not what tipped off Bond.

The last line of the note read: "She cannot read typing so would you please handwrite only."

"The grandmother doesn't exist."

"It's just a gimmick to collect some autographs," Colbert said. "No harm."

One of Colbert's earlier endeavors to collect famous signatures had international implications.

He sent a letter to Yasir Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, asking him to send an autograph to his baby. The baby, Colbert wrote, was named after the Arab leader.

Arafat didn't know it at the time, but he was one of many persons who received such a letter.

The baby didn't exist either. The Colberts' son is 13 years old.

A spokesman for the district attorney's office in Philadelphia said a "crime might exist" in Colbert's actions but "the chances of a successful prosecution are slim."

Colbert, an unemployed paper cutter, said he has been collecting autographs for the past eight years and has accumulated several hundred.

Usery Heads List

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Dunlop's resignation as labor secretary leaves a gap in the Cabinet that many labor and government leaders expect to be filled by chief federal mediator W.J. Usery.

Usery's was the primary name mentioned as a likely successor Wednesday after Dunlop announced his decision to quit. But sources said National Mediation Board member George Ives and Labor Undersecretary Robert Aders also were under consideration.

Dunlop, 61, a economist and mediator who intends to return to his Harvard teaching post after Feb. 1, said he resigned because President Ford's veto of a controversial construction industry bill destroyed his hopes for labor-management cooperation in 1976.

He said his departure was not intended as a "protest" of Ford's veto nor as "any reflection over my inner feelings," but motivated by a "sober conclusion" that the veto destroyed the "communications, confidence and trust" needed for cooperation between labor and management.

"Maybe there is somebody else — not me — who can heal the breaches in a short period of time," he said.

At the White House, the Labor Department, AFL-CIO headquarters and on Capitol Hill, the conclusion was that Usery might be that "somebody else."

A strapping, white-haired Georgian, known for his flashy clothes and country manner, Usery is an expert mediator who nonetheless lacks Dunlop's stature as an economist. The onetime welder has been head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service since 1973 and a presidential assistant since 1974.

Usery, who was unavailable for comment, indicated previously he would jump at a change to be labor secretary. Some top labor sources even expect him to resign if he is passed over again, as he was a year ago when Ford tapped Dunlop.

Usery stood with Dunlop in supporting the vetoed bill known as "common situs picketing." The bill, which Ford vetoed under conservative political pressure, would have allowed building trades pickets to shut down an entire construction site in a dispute with one subcontractor.

By UPI

President Ford has come under pressure from the Federal Election Commission and others to remove political adviser Rogers C.B. Morton from the White House staff and the public payroll.

FEC chairman Thomas Curtis, a Ford appointee and former GOP congressman, said Wednesday the President probably acted illegally by putting Morton on the White House payroll as domestic affairs and economics adviser because of Morton's acknowledged side chores as a political adviser.

"I think it's contrary to the law," Curtis said in an interview. "It's dangerous and he is treading on very thin ice with the law — it really is a question of law."

A question of law also concerned Democratic contender George Wallace, who has built a career on battling federal judges. At a news conference Wednesday to announce the state's appeal of a federal court ruling that Alabama must upgrade a "barbaric and inhumane" prison system, the governor said:

"We're living in a society in which thugs and federal judges have just about taken charge ... I don't know but what a good vote for George Wallace might give a political barbed wire enemy to some of these federal judges, and it might be good for the country."

Curtis suggested Ford "voluntarily" move Morton to the campaign payroll and virtually invited a legal challenge.

The White House had no immediate comment but Democratic presidential candidate Fred Harris sent Curtis a telegram asking for a ruling. Democratic party chairman Robert Strauss said he was thinking of doing the same.

Wake Forest Learns How Other Half Lives

Atlantic Coast Conference powers Maryland and North Carolina flexed their muscle Wednesday night, with Wake Forest — for one — learning it might be better to let sleeping giants lay.

Fourth-ranked Maryland and seventh-ranked North Carolina, each knocked from the list of the unbeaten by Wake Forest during the past two weeks, rolled to lopsided victories.

Fifth-ranked Wake Forest paid for its upset two weeks ago of the Tar Heels in the Big Four Tournament, which did not count in the ACC standings, with a 99-74 pounding on North Carolina's homecourt at Chapel Hill.

Maryland, which lost 96-93 at Wake Forest Saturday, bounced back with an impressive 87-69 victory over 14th-ranked North Carolina State at Raleigh.

Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy has seen his team upset UNC, N.C. State and Maryland in the past two weeks, but only the Maryland game counted in the ACC standings so the other victories merely served to forewarn conference rivals about the Deacons, now 11-2.

Still, Tacy is not regarding those upsets as flukes and said after Wednesday's misfortune: "The biggest consolation is that we played a bad game."

"I don't know if we were quite as prepared as we would have like to have been."

North Carolina, now 11-1, often has looked as if only a three-man team this season, devoid of the Tar Heels' traditional bench strength, but the trio of Phil Ford, Walt Davis and Mitch Kupchak was exceptional against the Deacons.

Sophomore guard Ford scored 30 points, Davis added 23 and Kupchak had 18 as the Tar Heels took the lead in the ACC race with a 3-0 record.

Wake Forest, now 1-2 in the ACC, was led by Skip Brown and Rod Griffin, who had 20 points each.

Maryland coach Lefty Driesell, looking to learn from his defeat, had concluded the Terps' three-guard offense could not win against top teams, so he benched Mc Howard in favor of forward Larry Boston.

Howard shot that theory and the Wolfpack defense full of holes as the Maryland senior came off the bench to score 25 points and lead the Terps to their 12th victory in 13 games.

"It was a good comeback win," said Driesell. "When you lose, you don't know what you'll do next time."

Maryland's 6-5 forward Steve Sheppard had 16 points, while guards John Lucas and Brad Davis finished with 15 and 11, respectively, as the Terps evened their ACC record at 1-1.

N.C. State, now 10-2 overall and 0-1 in the ACC, was led by Kenny Carr's 29 points.

Second-ranked Marquette's inside game overpowered 17th-ranked DePaul, 79-72, as the Warriors came up with a big road win. Marquette's front line of Earl Tatum, Bo Ellis and Jerome Whitehead combined for 53 points in the warriors' 10th victory in 11 games.

"Tatum was all over the place," Marquette coach Al McGuire said. "He was unbelievable. Tatum has been getting the garbage baskets and keeping us going."

The 6-6 Tatum finished with 21 points and 15 rebounds, while Ellis added 19 points and 15 rebounds.

DePaul coach Ray Meyer said, "They deserve their rating and we've got no alibi. When you get beaten on the boards, you get beaten. And we got murdered on the boards."

Eleventh-ranked Rutgers, using substitutes nearly half the game, crushed sorrowful Columbia, 94-65, to run its unbeaten record to 12-0. Guard Mike Dabney led the Rutgers scoring with 26 points in 21 minutes of play.

Adrian Dantley scored 33 points to lead 16th-ranked Notre Dame to a 119-78 romp over Ball State. Center Dave Batton added 17 points as the Irish ran their record to 8-3.

In other major games, Harvard won the Beanpot Classic with an 86-70 victory over Boston University; Cincinnati dumped Temple, 79-54; Seton Hall beat Providence, 57-55; St. Bonaventure topped Duquesne, 84-78; Villanova defeated Massachusetts, 87-82; Clemson edged Duke in overtime, 102-96; South Carolina beat The Citadel, 90-74; Virginia Tech routed Virginia, 91-89; Texas A&M defeated SMU, 93-87; TCU topped Houston, 88-70; Texas Tech beat Texas, 67-61, and Utah State downed Colorado State, 72-62.

It's National League's Move

PHOENIX (UPI) — The American League, which twice before tried to settle its problems by expanding, is on the verge of doing it again. And the National League could care less.

American League club owners Friday adopted a recommendation of the combined franchise committee, which is headed by M. Donald Grant of the New York Mets, and voted to expand to 13 teams in 1977 with Seattle its choice. National League owners, busy trying to extricate themselves out of the mess surrounding the San Francisco Giants franchise, left that chestnut alone and there is no certainty that they will discuss it even today at a windup meeting in Phoenix.

"I think there is some sentiment in our league to expand," said Grant, "but whether or not there is enough to put the idea over now, I'm not at liberty to say."

The American League is hoping the N.L. will decide to expand by granting a franchise to Washington, D.C., which twice lost American League teams to other cities. That would give Commissioner Bowie Kuhn his much desired 13-team lineup and hopefully inter-league play.

"I wouldn't go that far. In fact, I wouldn't even discuss it," said one N.L. official. "Expand we may, but inter-league play is out. That's a dead horse, today, tomorrow and the day after that."

The N.L., most of whose owners exude a superior air over the A.L., feels it has more solid franchises than its rival and there is no need to share in its good fortune with a league that now has worked itself into a corner for the third time in the last 15 years.

The A.L. expanded to Anaheim and Washington in 1960 after the Senators pulled out of the nation's capital and surfaced in Minnesota as the Twins. Then, seven years ago, the A.L. expanded to Kansas City and Seattle after first voting to let Charlie Finley move from Kansas City to Oakland, thus eventually putting the entrenched Giants into a financial bind. In between, it also let Bob Short move from Washington to Texas.

Now, the A.L. wants to place an expansion franchise in Seattle next year in settlement of a $32 million suit by the city against the league.

"I don't see why we have to go along with the American League," said another N.L. official. "They got themselves into trouble twice in Washington and once in Kansas City and Seattle. Let them settle their own problems."

However, while the N.L. was considering possible transfer of the Giants to Toronto, Rep. B.F. Sisk of California was busy pressuring for a team in Washington, D.C. To this point he has convinced Kuhn, Grant and the A.L. of the necessity of baseball keeping its word of four years ago and bringing a team into Washington. However, he has made little headway with N.L. owners.

As for the Giants, unless new San Francisco Mayor George Moscone can come up with a solid offer from a local group before next Monday there is a better than 50-50 chance the club will be sold to Labatt Breweries and moved to Toronto.

The Toronto group made a fine presentation before the N.L. owners Wednesday and there was one report the group offered to take care of any litigation resulting from the move to Toronto. That offer, reportedly, got a good hearing from the owners.

"We were warmly received and I remain optimistic," said Donald J. McDougall, 38-year-old president of Labatt's.

The Labatt's offer for the Giants is $13.25 million with $5 million of that total set aside to handle litigation. The Giants have 19 years left on a 35-year Stadium lease in San Francisco and that lease will have to be honored. Moscone said San Francisco will sue if the N.L. votes to transfer the Giants.

However, he said he is optimistic the Giants will stay right where they are.

"I have two different buyers who can match the Toronto offer," said Moscone. "Now I have to get the offers down where the Giants can consider them."

The latest in the running to purchase the Giants and keep them in San Francisco is Marge Everett, the horse racing patron from Los Angeles who once tried to buy the San Diego Padres. Also, there was one report, San Francisco financier Bob Lurie will make one more stab.

While the Giants situation awaits a hearing on an injunction on Monday, the N.L. will continue to pick up the club's tab. That was agreed to on Wednesday, the only concrete decision to come out of the N.L. meeting.

Finley: Catfish Will Return

PHOENIX (UPI) — Charlie Finley said today he is extremely optimistic an appellate court will rule in his favor next month and return pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter to the Oakland A's.

"I was never so certain of anything in my life," said the fast-talking owner of the Oakland A's. "The appellate court in San Francisco is going to hear our case late next month or early March and I am optimistic they will return Catfish to me."

Hunter was declared a free agent after the 1974 season in a salary dispute with Finley and later signed a $3 million, multi-year contract with the New York Yankees, for whom he won 20 games in 1975.

Asked if he would seek damages from the Yankees if the court returns Hunter to him, Finley said, "I'll certainly consider it. Maybe I'll ask them to replay the 1975 season with the Catfish on my side."

There is little love lost between Finley and Gabe Paul, who runs the Yankees. At the current baseball meetings here, Finley needed Paul every chance he got.

"I'm going to get the Catfish back and what do you think of that," Finley taunted Paul at one point.

"I could care less about what you think," replied Paul

Greene Knocks Super Site

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)

— All-Pro defensive tackle Joe Greene of the Pittsburgh Steelers is happy to be back in the Super Bowl again this year. It's just too bad, says Greene, the game has to be played in Miami.

"Miami is too blasé," criticized Greene prior to the Steelers' daily workout Wednesday. "This is where the bluebloods come to have fun, not the average person like me."

"New Orleans is the only place to have a Super Bowl," Greene added, reflecting on Pittsburgh's 16-6 upset over Minnesota last January in Super Bowl IX in New Orleans. "It has atmosphere—it's close together and compact."

Greene's verbal barrage came a short time after Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll informed the press Greene would split playing time in Super Bowl X against the Dallas Cowboys Sunday with Steve Furness. Furness started in Greene's place on pro football's most feared front four when Mean Joe was sent to the bench at mid-season by a pulled groin muscle and a pinched nerve in his neck.

Greene managed to play three series of downs in the Steelers' regular season finale against Los Angeles, sat out Pittsburgh's opening round playoff victory over Baltimore and went almost the entire way in the AFC championship game against Oakland.

"Joe Greene is not 100 per cent yet," said Noll, "but he'll be ready to play. He and Steve will share the playing time. Joe has not played in a long time and his conditioning may not be as good as other players on our club."

"Cold weather provides instant conditioning," added Noll as an explanation why Greene was able to go the entire way against Oakland up in Pittsburgh. "But with warm weather like you have down here, you'd better have some back-up people."

"I have no qualms about it," said Greene of his part-time status. "Conditioning tells more in the heat than the cold. I think we'll play it by ear. I wouldn't put Joe Greene above winning. You've got to go with what you're dealt."

Furness is considered the man on Pittsburgh's front four even though he spent better than half the season as a regular. Before filling in for Greene, Furness situated himself at the other tackle, replacing Ernie Holmes, who was also forced to the sidelines with an injury.

At this time last January, Furness was working out with the No. 1 Steeler defensive unit in preparation for the Vikings. Furness was subbing for end Dwight White, who was hospitalized the entire week leading up to the Super Bowl with viral pneumonia. It was out of the hospital and into the starting lineup Super Bowl Sunday for White, however, and Furness spent most of his day on the bench.

"I'll believe it when I see it," said Furness when told he would split the playing time against Dallas with Greene. "I went through this last year. Nothing could be as frustrating as last year."

While Noll was trying to figure out how to employ five men on a four-man defensive line, the Roward and Dade County Organized Crime Bureau were trying to figure out the origin of 18 counterfeit Super Bowl tickets which turned up Wednesday.

"They were brought in by a private citizen," NFL Executive Director Jim Kensil said. "He paid thirty dollars each and the face value is twenty dollars. He bought the tickets at a commercial establishment in Hallandale, Fla."

Kensil said the tickets, which are lighter in color and weight than the real tickets and easy to smudge, were for non-existent seats, section 14, row 27 and above. There are only 26 rows in the 80,000 seat Orange Bowl.

All was quiet up the road in Fort Lauderdale, where the NFL champ Cowboys were training, except for a little game of cat-and-mouse between Coach Tom Landry and the press on the week's initial media luncheon.

How would you defend the shotgun offense, Landry was asked of his favorite third down offensive play.

"I wouldn't say," he responded.

Why is so much attention being given the flex defense this week, he was asked of his top defensive formation in obvious rushing situations.

"I don't know," he responded, "we've had it since 1963. It's your people (the press) who make it look like something brand new."

What's so good about the flex defense, the questioning continued.

"It got us to the Super Bowl," Landry shot back smugly.

No new injuries were reported by the coaches but Noll said backup linebacker Loren Toews is questionable — making him the only player on either roster unlikely to play in the Super Bowl's 10th edition.

Bitter Homecoming For John Ferguson

John Ferguson's "homecoming" turned out to be a bitter disappointment for the new coach of the New York Rangers. The 37-year old Ferguson, former "enforcer" for the Montreal Canadiens, got off to a fine start as the Rangers won their first two games under his direction. Road games are always tough but Ferguson and his Rangers had a right to think they would make it three in a row Wednesday night when they visited Vancouver, B.C., where Ferguson learned to play hockey as a boy.

Instead, Ferguson and the Rangers got an unexpectedly hot welcome from the closechecking Canucks, who scored a 5-1 triumph, dealing Ferguson his first defeat.

John Gould scored two goals as the Canucks took a 3-1 lead in the first period. Vancouver held the Rangers to three shots on goal in the second period during which the Canucks built their lead to 4-1 and then outshot New York 13-7 in the third period.

Bill Fairbairn scored the Rangers' goal in the first period when New York managed eight shots on goal.

Wings o, Scouts 3

Dan Maloney and Rick Lapointe scored two goals each in the Wings' triumph, which dealt the Scouts their seventh straight loss. The Red Wings took a 3-0 lead in the first period and led 7-1 after two periods. Chuck Arnason scored the Scouts' first goal in the second period. There were 51 minutes in penalties handed out during the game.

Leafs 6, Stars 5

Larry McDonald scored two goals and added two assists, with his second goal at 3:19 of the third period proving to be decisive. Defenseman Ian Turnbull started Toronto's scoring with two goals in just over three minutes in the first period.

Hawks 2, Seals 2

J.P. Bordeleau scored both goals for the Black Hawks, who rallied from a 2-0 deficit. The Seals took a 2-0 lead on goals by Len Frig and Wayne Merrick, but blew a chance for the victory when Dennis Maruk missed a penalty shot. It was the 15th tie of the season for the Hawks.

Knicks Shake It Off

HOUSTON (UPI) — Earl Monroe said there was no second guessing on the New York bench as the Knicks prepared to play an overtime period with the Houston Rockets Wednesday night.

"We tried to get the ball to Spencer (Haywood) for the last shot, and we did," said Monroe. "He just got trapped too far from the basket and had to take a long shot."

Haywood's 25-foot turnaround jumper with two seconds left bounded off the rim, and the Knicks went to the bench disheartened, with the score tied 98-98.

"Instead of feeling real down about it, you know, we got down to business," said Monroe. "Before coming back out, we just said to ourselves, 'We're determined. Let's go and get this one.'"

"So what happens? Kevin Kunert gets the first bucket."

The seven-foot Rockets center put his team ahead 15 seconds into overtime, but Houston's lead vanished amid poor shots and turnovers and the Knicks held the Rockets without a basket in the final 4:45 of overtime to win, 107-103.

Haywood, who earned the right to take that last shot by scoring 23 points in regulation, tied the game 100-100 in overtime on a 15-foot jumper. Then, as the Rockets went cold, Monroe hit a layup, Walt Frazier and Bill Bradley sank 10-footers and Haywood added a free throw.

The win was the Knicks' second in three games over Houston this season.

"I'm happy. We're winning," said Haywood, who has made a big difference in this Knicks team, which was eliminated from the playoffs by the Rockets last season. "We've won four out six, 11 out 16 now. You never know what could happen if you keep doing that."

In addition to Haywood's 26 points and game-high 12 rebounds, the Knicks got 41 points from their backcourt duo of Frazier and Monroe. And Monroe, with some help from Butch Beard in defending Rockets' guard Calvin Murphy, made a big difference.

Murphy, under continual harassment, scored only three points in the first half.

"We have a lot of fun out there," said Monroe of his backcourt battle with Murphy which, at times, looked like a playground one-on-one contest. "We talk to each other back and forth. And try to show each other up."

Murphy, though, came back with 18 second-half points to bring the Rockets from a nine-point halftime deficit. Houston led twice in the fourth period before losing and falling one game below .500.

Coach John Egan said his team had the opportunities. "We had so many open shots, especially toward the end," he said. "We just couldn't get them to fall when we needed them."

Soccer Team Eyes Playmate

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Los Angeles Aztecs got the first pick, but Chicago created the biggest fuss in the North American Soccer League draft Wednesday when the Sting selected this year's Playboy Playmate of the Year on the fourth round.

Marilyn Lange, who may be the most welcome rookie on any team next season, played soccer in Hawaii. A Sting spokesman said, "We're going to try to sign her, and use her in some capacity, playing or promotion or something. Playing if she's good enough."

Steve Ralbovsky, a defender from Brown University and the 1975 collegiate Player of the Year, was chosen by the Aztecs on the first round. A native of Yugoslavia, Ralbovsky, a converted midfielder and two-time All-America, led Brown to the NCAA semifinals last year and was selected the Outstanding Defensive Player of the tournament.

Ralbovsky, who is fluent in six languages and majored in International Relations and Russian Studies, came to the U.S. with his family in 1970 and attended DeWitt Clinton High School in New York. He will apply for U.S. citizenship in February.

Los Angeles obtained the top draft rights as part of a seven-player trade with San Antonio in 1975.

Hartford followed Los Angeles by selecting Bridgeport's Hugh O'Neill, a two-time All-American striker.

Quincy University (Ill.) was the only school to have more than one player picked on the initial round, with Rochester, the third team to choose, taking Jim Pollihan, who scored 53 goals during his career, and Minnesota grabbing Sam Bick, a defender.

San Jose, picking fourth, selected the only goalkeeper on the first round—Terry Weeks of the University of Santa Clara.

In all there were eight defenders, six forwards, four midfielders and one goalkeeper chosen by the 20 teams. Toronto did not participate in the draft.

'Field In Bad Shape'

MIAMI (UPI) — The field on which the Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys will square off in Super Bowl X is "in terrible shape" when it's dry "and once it gets wet, forget it," according to Miami Dolphins wide receiver Nat Moore.

Moore inspected the Orange Bowl's worn-out Poly-turf surface and wrote of his findings Wednesday in the Miami News. He's played close to 20 games on the artificial turf in his two years with the Dolphins and he was far from complimentary.

"There are bumps and rips, patches and dropoffs and seams that have been worn through to the concrete," he said. "If you're not careful, you might catch a cleat in one of those seams or rips and turn an ankle."

Moore was especially critical of the surface after it rains, particularly the area inside the 20-yard lines at both ends.

"Since the field is set up to drain that way, the water settles in those areas and makes firm footing nearly impossible," he wrote.

In case of rain, Moore said his colleagues at wide receiver will tend to be more worried about footing than pass routes, which would result in more dropped passes.

"Once it gets wet, forget it," he said, adding that a wet field would favor a team that has a strong running game with a lot of straight-ahead plays.

However, a dry field isn't much better than a wet field, according to Moore.

"When the field is dry, it's still in terrible shape," he said.

In a diagram prepared for the newspaper Moore indicated two matted areas toward the sideline on each 10-yard line, plus matted areas between the 20 and 30 on each end of the field. He also noted a badly worn seam along the 10-yard line on the East side of the field.

The Dolphin wide receiver also warned about an 18-inch crown in the center of the field, which he said teams might "find a little frustrating."

"If your quarterback isn't used to throwing off an 18-inch hill you might find him overthrowing the receivers on sideline patterns or long routes," he said.

The Super Bowl will be the final game on the much-criticized Poly-turf. The Miami City Commission has recommended the artificial turf be replaced with natural grass by the beginning of next season.

NEAL WALK WITH A HOOK
... over Kevin Kunnert

into a first place Atlantic Division tie with the Boston Celtics.

Collins, the sparkplug of the 76ers, and Maravich, the Pistol in New Orleans' run-and-gun offense, are among the best young guards in pro basketball, certainly the best white guards to play since Jerry West. Next month, the pair could be teammates on the NBA Eastern Conference All-Star squad.

Collins, 6-6, and Maravich, 6-5, are both tall for backcourtmen, though just as lean as West was at 6-4. Each has a deadly jump shot, quick legs, excellent passing ability, flashy moves and a propensity toward injury. When they meet, however, there's more than just a game at stake. Their reputations are on the line.

Wednesday night's round went to Collins, who scored 24 points while holding Maravich to 17, six less than his average. As Philadelphia halted New Orleans' five-game winning streak, 100-95.

"When I play 'Pistol' (Maravich), I front him and try to make him shoot long jump shots," said Collins, who, along with Steve Mix and Joe Bryant combined for seven foul shots in the last nine seconds of play to clinch the game.

"He makes the jump shots as well as anybody in the game," Collins said. "He's a very positive force for this team. They have won six out of seven since his return."

Mix, who had 20 points, had given the Sixers a 97-92 lead with nine seconds to play, but Ron Behagen of the Jazz scored and was fouled by George McGinnis. He made the foul shot and the Jazz trailed by only two points.

On the inbound play, Collins was fouled away from the basket and sank both free throws. Bryant added one more for the final score.

The Sixers stretched their lead to as many as 15 points in the third quarter, but the Jazz came back to tie the game, 71-71, going into the final period.

Bud Stallworth led the Jazz scoring with 20 points. Elsewhere in the NBA, Washington beat Cleveland, 92-88; Seattle edged Atlanta, 121-110, and Kansas City stopped Boston 106-101.

In the ABA, Indiana whipped Virginia, 115-99, and Kentucky topped San Antonio, 121-115.

cap a 20-point performance. Washington's Phil Chenier returned to action after being sidelined with an ankle injury, but was ejected late in the second quarter when assessed with his second technical foul for arguing with official Paul Mihalak.

Sonics 112, Hawks 110
Fred Brown scored 33 points to help Seattle hand Atlanta its fourth straight loss despite 39 points by John Drew, who started for the first time this season.

Kings 106, Celtics 101
Nate Archibald scored 29 points and Scott Wedman added 25 to lead Kansas City. Sam Lacey scored 14 points and grabbed 19 rebounds. Boston's Dave Cowens committed his sixth foul with 2:04 to play and the score tied at 99-99. Lacey hit a free throw and Ollie Johnson contributed a driving layup to give the Kings to a 102-99 advantage. Paul Silas dropped two free throws to make it 102-101, but Wedman hit a 12-foot jumper with 29 seconds left to take Kansas City out of danger. Lacey added two free throws for the final count.

Pacers 115, Squires 99
Billy Keller scored 22 points, including five three-point field goals, to lead the Pacers to their 10th straight win over Virginia. Mike Jackson paced the Squires with a game-high 30 points.

Colonels 121, Spurs 115
Marv Roberts scored 25 points, 15 of them in a third quarter Kentucky blitz, to spark the Colonels to a come-from-behind win.

Ilie Enters

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Ilie Nastase, seventh-ranked in the world by the Association of Tennis Professionals, will compete in next week's $50,000 Baltimore International Indoor Tennis Championships, it was confirmed Wednesday.

Nastase, 29, filled a vacancy left by the withdrawal of Karl Meiler from the 16-man field of international tennis stars.

Nastase, known for his showmanship and temperament, is the top-ranked player in the Jan. 21-25 tournament. He won it in 1972, its first year.

Other competitors include Cliff Richey, Marty Riessen, Jaime Fillo, Eddie Dibbs, Harold Solomon, Dick Stockton, Bob Lutz, Brian Gottfried, Allan Stone, Ross Case, Phil Dent, Andrew Pattison, Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan.

Singles and doubles competition will be featured every evening of the five-day tournament.

Lise Marie Morerod Wins World Cup Giant Slalom

LES GETS, France (UPI) — Lise Marie Morerod of Switzerland won the women's World Cup giant slalom today by more than two seconds.

The Swiss girl displayed the form that has made her a firm favorite for the Innsbruck Olympics by sweeping through the 47 gates in one minute and 8.40 seconds.

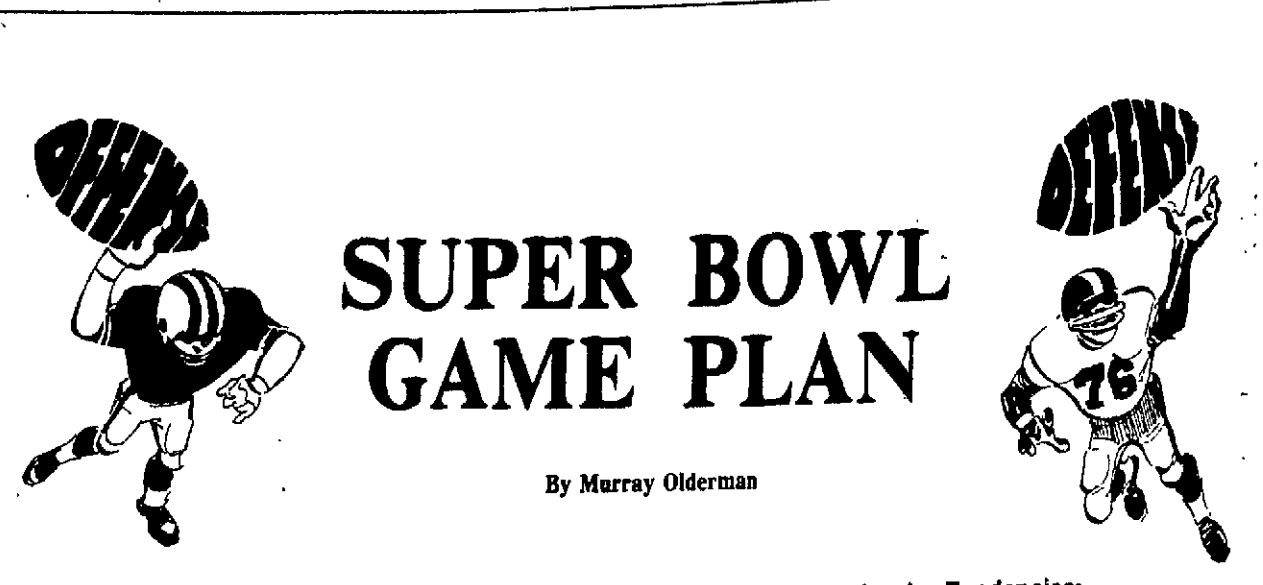

West Germany's Rosi Mittermaier stretched her lead at the top of the World Cup cumulative standings by taking second place in 1:10.56, while Austria's Monika Kaserer took third in 1:10.74.

The biggest upset of the race was provided by Mary Seaton from Hancock, Mich., who started from 42nd spot when the track was well rutted, but managed 1:11.12 for sixth place behind French girl Patricia Emonet. It was the best performance of the American's career.

The high placing was important for Miss Seaton, who now will get a higher starting place at Innsbruck in three weeks time.

It was Miss Morerod's second giant slalom victory of the season and she dominated the 1,300-meter course, setting the best intermediate time of 36.31 seconds and then increasing her lead on the steeper second half.

Her flat-out style has brought her four victories this season and falls in all her other races, as in Wednesday's slalom.

You Can Cure Your Own Porkless 'Hams'

Can you substitute a lean meat for the traditional ham or bacon entree in your breakfast each morning and not lose that tremendous country ham flavor? Sure — and chances are you may not even be able to tell the difference.

Mother reader Ken Joens, and his family needed a way to satisfy their taste buds and still stick to lean meat. After a lot of experimentation, he's devised a way to make "smoked ham" — from venison!

Joens claims the end product is ham-like, but far superior to the real thing. It resembles Canadian bacon in texture, and the flavor, he says, will fool the majority of hard-core pork eaters.

This "ham" is perfect for those who are forbidden to eat pork or who want an alternative to the usual fatty ham. His process is based on venison, but you might want to substitute any good lean meat. Here's how he did it:

The hindquarters and backstrap — about 50 per cent of the animal — is all that can be cured. All bone and fat is removed. The end result is lean strips of backstrap and chunks of leg muscle from three to five inches in diameter.

A brine solution is prepared in a container large enough to allow the immersion of all the meat. Special attention must be paid to how the solution is mixed. You should add water, very slowly to the salt in the container. Float a fresh egg on top of the solution, and keep adding water and stirring until the egg sinks slowly and barely makes it back to the top.

Why the hocus pocus? The "egg" method will tell you when the solution is at the proper density. Don't reverse the procedure; if you add varying amounts of salt to water in the container and stop when the egg floats at the top, the solution will be far too salty. Though the egg will float, there will be a layer of undissolved salt at the bottom, ready to make trouble later on. With the first method, you're more likely to get an even distribution.

Completely immerse the venison in the brine and let it soak in a cool place for 48 to 60 hours, depending upon desired flavor. The longer the stay, the saltier the taste.

After soaking, immerse each piece in boiling water just long enough to cause a whitish tinge to form on the surface. Then hang the chunks in the smoker until they're thoroughly dry — from three to five days depending on the intensity of the smoke and the temperature in the smokehouse.

It's the smoking that gives the "ham" its fine flavor, and the results will be tremendous if three things are taken into consideration:

(a) Only wood of good quality should be burned in the firebox of the smokehouse.

Don't use softwood scraps from a lumberyard unless you like the taste of pine tar.

(b) The objective is smoke, not heat. Too high a temperature will bake the meat before it can be properly cured.

(c) The meat must be kept constantly surrounded by smoke. Smokeless intervals will show up as pale rings interspersed through the meat.

Joens made his smoker from a discarded water tank by cutting a door in the front and suspending racks from the top. These racks hold the mop handles from which he hangs the meat. A six-inch hole in the side allows the entrance of a stovepipe which, in turn, runs six feet away to a firebox made from an old washtub. A damper in the pipe further controls the smoke and heat.

Operation of the smoker is quite simple. When a good blaze is going, the firebox is covered, and the damper is opened to allow smoke to flow into the water tank. Every eight hours or so, a new chunk of firewood is added to the blaze and the tub is covered again. The firebox and pipe become hot during the process, but the smokehouse remains just slightly warm so the ham cures without baking.

hunters might do well to give his idea a try.

By Joanne Koch

"Suddenly one cold night in January I awoke to find myself all alone. I had no friends or neighbors. No car, no phone, and thanks to a good old-fashioned welfare screwup, no money or food for my kids. I lay down on my bed and cried like a baby and could feel what must be insanity coming on and decided I was better off dead."

So said Freda, one of the millions of separated or divorced women who suddenly found she had to fend for herself with little money, experience, or moral support. Fortunately, Freda was able to overcome the enormous odds against her by choosing anger instead of guilt, action instead of self-pity, collective support instead of isolation. Her story is one of the hundreds of pieces of personal testimony, poetry, and above all factual survival information which comprise a new feminist handbook on separation and divorce called "Women in Transition" (Scribner's, $6.95 paperback, $12.95 hardbound).

Is this book always fair, balanced and profound? No. When you're filled with guilt and a sense of failure, what you need is not fairness but a way to save face. What you need is not balance but an outlet to get rid of bitterness that paralyzes the mind and spirit. A woman who is trying to cope with disappointed children and insufficient income doesn't need continued pressure to keep seeing the other guy's point of view.

She feels she's been forced to think of her husband's and children's welfare before her own all her life. Now she wants to put her own needs first.

So don't look to this feminist handbook for reasons not to get a divorce. Look to it to find out how to get the most money from a divorce action. Don't expect to find a balanced discussion of the importance of the mother's presence to the young child. Expect to find information on day care centers and a positive discussion of giving over custody to the father so that mother can do her own thing.

Publications like "Women in Transition" do for the lonely, helpless woman what Norman Vincent Peale's Positive Thinking and W. Clement Stone's Positive Mental Attitude has done for thousands of self-styled losers. They provide a powerful dose of optimism. They tell people who are down, "Don't give up; there are golden opportunities waiting for you."

They don't tell the total, many-sided truths about human nature — male and female. They don't include the dark side of feminism, divorce, giving up the custody of one's children. Did Stone include the latest unemployment statistics? Does Peale dwell on failure? Feminist handbooks, of which "Women in Transition" is an excellent example, are expedient and useful. They give women deep in the slough of despair a new lease on life.

Freda sums up the feminist version of positive mental attitude best: "... Something happened. It wasn't a ray of light like in the movies. It was pure anger. Anger at the way life treated me, anger at the welfare system but most of all, anger at myself for lying there and letting it happen and not doing anything about it. Now you can ask, what could you do in that situation? And the answer is only one thing. Change your whole attitude and make something worthwhile living for. As you slowly move up you'll feel a tremendous sense of satisfaction and self-worth 'cause you've done it on your own and you know you must be 'some kind of great' to be making it with the odds stacked against you."

Let the disgruntled males and the anti-equality forces debate the merits of the aggressive female, the importance of fairness and balance. Mean-time the power of positive feminist thinking gets results like these.

Dear Abby

Wife Sick of Bad Hospital Jokes

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has had a lot of back surgery, which required several long stays in the hospital. While there, a couple we were friendly with sent him get-well cards regularly, which we both appreciated, but all their cards had the same theme: "The male patient was fooling around with his nurses."

After my husband came home, this couple visited him, and their conversation was full of teasing about the nurses giving him massages, backrubs and baths. I was even asked point blank if I wasn't afraid my husband would run off with a pretty young nurse.

Whenever we are with this couple now, they get back on the pretty young nurse subject until I am sick of hearing it.

Perhaps because I am neither young nor pretty and have such a meager quotient of self-esteem. I'm depressed for days about these remarks, especially when they are made in the presence of others, which is often the case.

My husband never stands up for me, which may indicate that he enjoys the talk. What can I do to put an end to this? I've tried to avoid being with this couple, but I can't do that forever.

HURT
DEAR HURT: Bring your feelings out in the open and tell them exactly what you've told me. After that they wouldn't dare "kid" you in that vein again.

DEAR ABBY: This problem has me upset. My husband and I must attend classes one evening a week, and we have one child who is deaf.

A young woman who lives in our apartment building has two small children, and she is willing to babysit for us, but she refuses to take any money.

Her husband is unemployed, and I know they could use the money, but I gave her a check once, and she tore it up.

Things would be okay if I could sit with her kids in return, but they can't afford to go any place.

I threatened to find another sitter, but she looked so hurt. Should I accept it as a blessing in disguise?

Any suggestions will be appreciated.

BEWILDERED
DEAR BE: Put a ribbon on a basket and fill it with fresh fruit, canned foods and other goodies, and present it to your generous, hard-to-repay neighbor.

DEAR ABBY: In a column, some time ago, you said that some airlines offered a course designed to help persons overcome their fear of flying.

I have a daughter-in-law who is terrified of flying, so I immediately telephoned American Airlines, TWA and United, and none of these airlines could help me.

Where do I go from here? NEEDS HELP IN L.A.
DEAR NEEDS: My researchers advise me that such programs did at one time exist, but they seem to have disappeared into thin air. However, if someone out there knows of a course available in the Los Angeles area, please let me know.

In the meantime, phobias are best treated by psychologists and psychiatrists. For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26c) envelope.

Dress Up Denims With Rickrack

By Joanne Schreiber

Looking for a new look for your denims? Take the western trail and embroider bands of rickrack to your shirts and jeans.

This is the easiest original needlework you'll ever do. The points of the rickrack are your guide for needle placement, so your stitches are always evenly spaced. Use embroidery floss or yarn and pick the wildest colors you can find.

To make a shirt design baste the rickrack in place across the yoke and down the sleeves, pick bright colors and turn the ends of the rickrack under.

Use only four embroidery stitches for the shirt: the diagonal overcast, the heringbone, the French knot and the lattice stitch.

Take the easy way to denim-decor and add pattern and color with embroidered rickrack.

Perfect Vacation For a Weekend Sailor

Up a Lazy River — in Britain

KINGSTON The mighty Hudson River affords Ulster residents a chance to indulge the 'salt' that dwells in many of us. In summer, the waterway buzzes with activity, both power and sail.

A vacation that would make these weekend sailors feel at home while away is offered by Britain canals.

Britain's 18th and 19th century freight canals still exist — to transport the vacationer through magnificent country far from the din of traffic, provide an unhurried view of historic towns and time for relaxing in the summer sun.

The 2,000 mile network of canals in England, Scotland and Wales was built to carry coal and heavy machinery. Nowadays, it rarely does that. Instead the canals transport happy travelers.

They link the Thames, Severn, Avon and other rivers with towns, cities. Hundreds of miles of shipping canals have been restored for boating, fishing, tow-path walking, and lackadaisical study of waterway architecture and engineering.

In the city of Birmingham, 120 miles of canals form an intricate, network more extensive than those of Venice. A row of 18th century canal cottages has been refurbished and converted into small shops and private homes. There's also a pub where boaters can have a pint on balconies overlooking the waterway.

Another project is trans-huge water-sport park for sailing, canoeing and waterskiing.

Canal and river boating can provide a pleasant break of a few days or a week. You can rent a canoe, punt, skiff, cruiser or converted narrow-boat.

The narrow-boats are the traditional craft of the canals, built long and narrow to enable them to slide through locks ten feet wide or less. They are a wild splash of color, liberally decorated with paintings of castles and wreaths of flowers, a form of folk-art said to go back to the days when gypsies crewed such boats. Though it's possible to rent a narrow-boat and do your own skipping, most vacationers prefer the ease of a floating "hotel" — two narrow-boats in tandem offering amenities such as a bar, dining salon, library and private cabins. Cost of such a cruise runs about $80 a week per person.

Self-drive cruisers, accommodating from two to ten persons, are popular. They come fully equipped, including "fridge," stove, dishes, blankets and frequently, even linens and towels. You pay for your fuel and canal tolls, in addition to the cruiser rental. That may range from about $20 to $50 a person per week, in season. Rates are lower in forming 30 miles of the River Lea, north of London, into a

the spring and fall.

A variety of companies rent such craft. If you're not much of a sailor, they will teach you how to run the boat, suggest a route and supply you with maps. One advantage for the beginner is that water traffic, unlike traffic on British roads, keeps to the right.

Choosing a route may be more difficult than deciding on the right boat. One route promises to be more spectacular than the next. The Welsh section of the Shropshire Union Canal, has been called the most beautiful canal in Britain. It passes through the Ellesmere Lake District and the Vale of Llangollen and over two great viaducts. One of them has a span of 1,000 feet and is 121 feet high. From that height you get a lofty view of rolling countryside, from a boat. That's not an everyday occurrence.

The Mersey Canal takes you through green valleys and wooded hills — through a tunnel a mile and a half long. The Crick Tunnel, which forms part of the Grand Union Canal, is said to be haunted. The master engineers who built these canals had a penchant for elaboration. On one stretch of the Macclesfield Canal there are 118 bridges, all of different design.

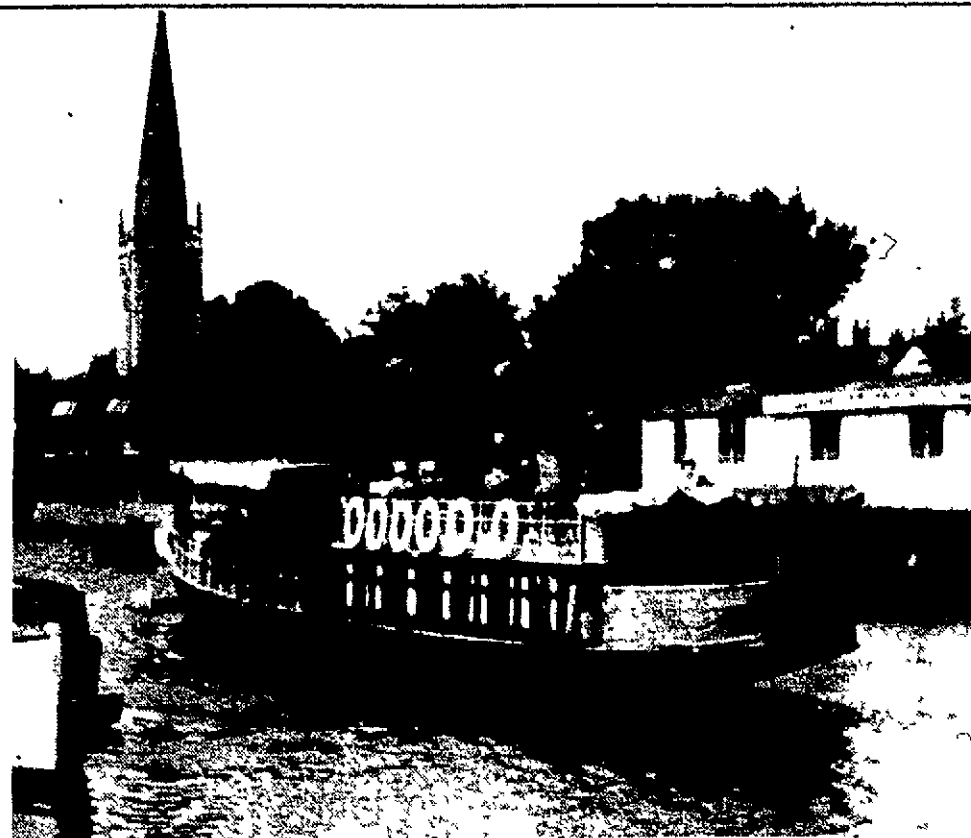

You can take a relaxing 125-mile trip on the Thames. At Oxford, where the river is known as the Isis, you may see the ornately carved College barges moored off Christ church Meadows. Many towns worth a days visit — such as Henley (of Regatta fame) and Dorchester with its fine Abbey — are found along this route. Excellent old inns, like the Kings Arms at Cookham and the Compleat Angler at Marlow, offer the weary sailor good food and drink.

The 60-mile Caledonian Canal joins two coasts of Northern Scotland and runs through spectacular scenery in the Highlands. Loch Ness, home of the fabled monster, is connected to this waterway. The Caledonian has 29 locks, arranged in steps, but all easy to navigate.

The most inexpensive boats to rent are the canoe and the punt, a shell that's propelled by means of a pole. A punt that accommodates four persons rents for about $25 a week. Gaining in popularity are lightweight boats that can be carried on the roof of your car, ready to be popped into the first inviting canal or river you come to. Rental for such a boat with capacity for four comes to about $40 a week — and that includes an outboard motor.

Britain's waterways are a prime attraction. Last year more than two million people took to Britain's fens, rivers and canals to spend their vacation.

Lazy cruising along Britain's 2,000 miles of canals is the kind of vacation that would appeal to weekend sailors of the Hudson Valley. The picture above was taken at Abingdon Berkshire on the Thames where boats can tie up for a night of sightseeing.

ATHENS (UPI) — Nearly three million tourists visited Greece in the first 10 months of 1975, bringing more than $500 million of foreign exchange into the country, according to the statistical service.

American tourists headed the list with 409,747 arrivals, followed by 376,851 West Germans. The figures marked an increase of 43 per cent over 1974, the year of the Cyprus crisis.

Peter Vlachos to Serve on Colby Project

HIGH FALLS Dreyfus Leverage Fund President Peter A. Vlachos of High Falls has been named to a special task force to help Colby College, Waterville, Me., raise $4.5 million for new science facilities.

Colby President Robert E.L. Strider announced in December that after three years of study the college was beginning a campaign "to strengthen an already vigorous program in the sciences through the provision of vastly improved facilities." The project includes construction of a new building and renovation of two existing buildings.

A 1956 Colby graduate,

Vlachos is a trustee of Outward Bound. The local resident is a visiting lecturer at Yale University on organization and management. He will also serve as chairman of the New York task force which will augment the central campaign committee.

The central campaign task force, chaired by motel owner Robert Sage of Newton, Mass., also includes Colby Board of Trustees Chairman Albert C. Palmer, '30, of Stoneham, Mass.; Gordon B. Jones, '40, Needham, Mass.; Thomas J. Watson III, '69, Medfield, Mass.; Robert S. Lee, '51, Beverly Farms, Mass.; Mrs. Michael Szostak, '72,

Woonsocket, R.I.; Prof. Miriam Bennett of Waterville, chairman of the college's biology department; and Mrs. Frederic E. Camp, East Blue Hill.

Mrs. Briggs to be Honored by Dutchess Planned Parenthood

POUGHKEEPSIE A special tribute to Mrs. Lois Briggs, who retired recently from her position as affiliate supervisor of Planned Parenthood League of Dutchess County, Inc. will be paid to her Friday, Jan. 16 at 6 p.m. at the Hellenic Center in Poughkeepsie, by the league's board of directors and membership.

The annual meeting, at which she will be honored, is being arranged by Mrs. Beverly Wick who said that while Mrs. Briggs has retired as supervisor, she will continue to remain on the staff as a clinic nurse.

It is expected that the organization will undergo a name change at the meeting, acquiring the corporate designation of Planned Parenthood of Dutchess-Ulster Inc. The clinics presently operate in Poughkeepsie, Amenia, Beacon and Rhinebeck in Dutchess County and New Paltz and Kingston in Ulster County. They offer medical contraceptive services as well as education, counseling and referral for other family planning related matters.

Kingston Trust Awards $80 Grant For Laurel Garden Club Planting

KINGSTON The Laurel Garden Club was awarded an $80 grant from the Kingston Trust Company's "We The People" program for the club's Bicentennial project of planting trees and shrubs at the entrance to and along the Col. Chandler Drive leading into Kingston.

The grant helped with the purchase of pink and white flowering crabapples, white dogwood and a hedge of dwarf-winged Euonymus. Since Kingston is one of the gateways to the Catskills as well as to the Mid-Hudson River, this area is sure to see an influx of visitors, as well as increased use by residents, not only in 1976 but in the years to come. The Laurel Garden Club felt that to beautify one of the boulevards leading into the historic area of Kingston would be a Bicentennial gift of lasting value.

The Regional Landscape Architects of the New York State Department of Transportation under Ed Newhard's direction drew up the detailed plans for the site. Jim Pierson, resident engineer of the Ulster County Division of the N.Y.S. Transportation Dept., co-ordinated the site preparations and the planting.

As a part of its civic beautification program, the Laurel Garden Club also plants and maintains the North Front Street Mini-Park in uptown Kingston.

Local Council Hear VFW State Commander

KINGSTON James Kinsella of Staten Island, state commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars, paid an official visit to the January meeting of Hudson Valley Counties Council (Ulster County) which took place at Joyce-Schirck Post 1386 in Kingston. He was welcomed

by Albert T. DeLuca, County Council commander.

Commander Kinsella stressed the importance of being well informed about what is taking place in the nation at all levels: "On this our 200th anniversary, freedom is under attack from both within and without our country. We, as veterans, have a grave responsibility to see that the freedom we know is passed on to future generations."

Also attending the meeting were Joseph Straub, District 2, VFW, membership chairman; James Longendyke, District 2 chief of staff; commanders from all the Posts and their delegates.

Carey Budget Reflects '75 Crises

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The $79.9 million deficiency budget submitted by Gov. Hugh L. Carey's office reflects the fiscal crises with which lawmakers and the state government have had to deal in the last year.

One item of $558,000 would pay for the legislature's expenses in emergency sessions. Other appropriations forwarded to the lawmakers Wednesday would pay for the effects of a depressed economy, including the higher cost of state borrowing, added fuel and energy costs, additional funds for tuition assistance programs and ballooning costs of state worker fringe benefits.

The deficiency budget is a catch-all measure to cover any spending since approval of the supplemental and general state budgets which were approved during the regular 1975 session.

million appropriation approved last year.

The increased cost of borrowing — in light of the upheaval of money markets by the threatened default by New York City and several state agencies — was reflected by a $19.8 million increase for interest on tax anticipation notes.

That interest expense was offset by a $6.1 million reduction in interest on bond anticipation notes so that the total increase needed for debt service was $13.6 million.

A major chunk of the total, $10.6 million, would go to the State University for operating aid to community colleges required because of unanticipated increases in enrollments at the two-year institutions.

Also under local assistance funds is a $13.6 million boost in the appropriation to the Department of Mental Hygiene, including $11.8 million for the state's share of community mental health program expenses and $2 million to provide 100 per cent reimbursement for local services provided to former inpatients at state institutions.

Coupled with the increase in college registrations is the need for a $7.4 million appropriation for the Higher Education Services Corp. Of that total, $5.4 million would cover increased tuition assistance.

The corporation asked for $1.4 million to make good to lending institutions on student loans on which the recipients defaulted.

Two $100,000 items would go to the attorney general's office to fund investigations ordered by the governor.

— The investigation by Alfred J. Scotti into the handling of the Attica prison riot investigation, and, — A special probe of alleged illegal acts by members of the Suffolk County Police Department and the district attorney's office which revolves around a partisan struggle in that Long Island county.

A major item not included in the $79.9 million figure was an appropriation for debt service on notes to help New York City through its fiscal woes. The city is to repay this "first instance" appropriation to the state within the fiscal year.

Connected with the state's efforts to avoid default by New York City and Yonkers is the request for $650,000 for the Department of Audit and Control, including $500,000 for the expenses of a special deputy comptroller and a staff of 50 for New York's Emergency Financial Control Board and $150,000 to cover a similar overseas operation for Yonkers.

A special $4.3 million first instance appropriation would permit the financially troubled Dormitory Authority to replace an advance from the Health Income Fund, which now needs the money for departmental operating purposes.

The extra $558,000 for the legislature, on top of the approximately $40 million spent for lawmaking during the regular session, includes $108,000 extra for the Senate and $270,000 for the Assembly to pay for additional travel and the $40-per-day expense allowances for members during the lengthy special session which ended just before Christmas, a spokesman for the legislature said.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An awkward situation may pit you with outsiders against your loved ones. Don't forget, what happens today is fleeting. Your family is with you always.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your strong opinion may reflect the minority viewpoint today. The problem is temporary. Don't aggravate friends by arguing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is not a good time to assume cumbersome obligations. Weigh your wants against your means.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your desires and aims today are likely to conflict with those whose support is essential. Some tactful maneuvering is necessary.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's wonderful to help others to lighten their burdens, but be careful not to add too greatly to your own load.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you know is a super salesman, but he has a poor track record in the quality of things he promotes. Don't let him sell you a pig in a poke today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you're willing to weigh another's point of view. Today, you'll be a bit too insistent that things be done your way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be wary today. Don't try to sell something of which you have very little knowledge to one who's an expert.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're still on very shaky

ground businesswise. Don't make any substantial commitments you haven't really checked out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Dealings with close associates may be sensitive today. Don't impose your opinion. At least listen to the other guy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guard against overindulgence today, whether it be in eating, drinking, working or just having fun.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may find you have some very extravagant whims to wrestle with today. For future peace of mind, pin them to the mat.

Friends may bring you a great number of propositions this coming year. There may be some gold nuggets in all that sand, but they must be sifted carefully.

Jean Adams
TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

REFORMED: (Q.) Bob goes to reform school. Since he has been there he has changed. He has more respect for his parents and their rules.

My parents, when they found out about his having to go to reform school, blew up and said I could never see him again. Well, I love him, and I love my parents too. I don't want to go behind their backs. But Bob is getting out next month and wants to go back with me. What do you think? My mom says she will go along with what you say—16 in Pennsylvania.

(A.) Our system is based upon the belief that if a person does wrong and then pays for it, he should be accepted by society again. This applies to Bob.

If he loves you and respects you, and also respects the laws and other institutions of your community and does not cause further trouble, then he should be a good boy friend.

WRONG?: (Q.) How old do I have to be before I know when I'm in love? I'm 13 and have been going with Phil more than six months. He is 15. I have never felt this way about anyone before.

My mother knows I love him, because I have told her, but she just won't believe at 13 I can really love somebody. She tells me I'm wasting all the years I'm supposed to have fun in. She puts him down without knowing him.

What am I supposed to do, stop loving him just because she can't understand us? I know we're young and I realize we may not always love each other. But are we doing anything wrong by simply loving each other for now?—Having Fun, Honestly, in Indiana

(A.) You know you are young and you know this love may not last forever. As long as you keep these facts in mind and keep your eyes open and have fun being with Phil, I cannot see that you are wasting your time.

Your mother should get to know Phil. Take him home with you. Give them a chance to talk to each other and get accustomed to each other. This will help.

When you use the Jacoby transfer bid you don't have any normal use for responses of three diamonds, hearts or spades to a notrump opening. We recommend that the three-heart and spade response show good hands with bad suits, but where you don't mind being declarer.

South had a perfect hand for a three-spade response. North raised to four spades and South took over with Blackwood.

When North showed all four kings by his six-club call (the bid shows zero or four and there was no way for North to have 16 high card points

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt, 26th and 32nd presidents of the United States respectively, were cousins. An ancestor of both men, Claes Martenszen van Rosenvelt, came to New Amsterdam from Holland about 1650. The World Almanac notes Claes' son Nicholas, a New York alderman in 1700 and 1715, had a son Johannes, from whom Theodore Roosevelt was descended, and a son Jacobus, from whom F. D. R. was descended.

'75 Bridge Traffic Reaches Record Level

KINGSTON Traffic on the five spans operated by the New York State Bridge Authority — including the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge — reached record levels in 1975.

According to figures released by the authority, traffic on all five spans was about five per cent higher in 1975 than 1974. For the year, 23.6 million vehicles crossed the five spans, compared to 22.4 million in 1974.

The Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge experienced a 4.47 per cent increase in traffic in 1975. More than 2,750,000 vehicles used the bridge last year, compared to 2,640,000 in 1974.

The busiest of the five Mid-Hudson spans was the Newburgh-Beacon Bridge, which experienced more than nine million crossings in 1975, a six per cent jump over 1974. The Rip Van Winkle Bridge was last in traffic with 2,300,000 crossings, although that figure was still six per cent higher than 1974.

Revenues also increased in 1975. The five bridges generated $6.9 million in revenues during the year compared to $6.6 million in 1974. That was an increase of $227,000, or about four per cent.

The Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge accounted for almost $712,000 of that revenue total, a three per cent increase over 1974 revenues of $690,000. The Newburgh-Beacon Bridge accounted for about 33 per cent of total revenues for all five bridges.

Those 12-month increases in bridge traffic and revenues were accomplished despite declines experienced in December. Traffic on the five spans totaled 1.8 million in December, about 10,000 less than December, 1974 traffic totals.

The statistics show that 882 fewer vehicles crossed the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge in December, 1975 as compared to December, 1974. A spokesman for the bridge authority attributed that decline to the fact that IBM was closed on Dec. 26 last year, and that the last day of the Thanksgiving weekend, traditionally a heavy traffic day, fell in December in 1975, in November in 1974.

Although overall traffic declined in December, total revenues for the five spans showed a two per cent increase. The Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge showed a $569 revenue dip from December, 1974.

'A Call to Arms'

KINGSTON King George III is in big trouble now. The Kingston Bicentennial Commission has called for volunteers to serve in the local militia of the Continental Army.

The "call to arms" has gone out to all Kingston-area residents. Openings are available for associators, militia members, captains, majors and colonels. Enlistments will begin early in the spring.

Each enlistee will receive an appropriate, limited-edition memento commemorating his (or her) dedication to the principles of independence. Mementos will range from blazer buttons to an authentically styled replica of a flintlock rifle, depending upon the rank to which one aspires.

Each enlistment must be accompanied by a cash donation, which will help finance the local Bicentennial celebration.

Social Security Record

KINGSTON A record $6.33 billion in social security benefits was paid out to New York State residents during 1975, according to George Habernig, Kingston social security district manager.

The record payments were about $600 million higher than payments in 1974, an increased number of people on the social security rolls and benefits paid based on high-average earnings all contributed to the increase.

Of the social security benefits paid to New Yorkers, more than $4 billion went to retired workers and their dependents and more than $1 billion went to survivors of workers who died.

Nationally, social security benefits in 1975 totaled $67 billion, about $8.4 billion higher than in the previous year. At the end of December 1975, about 32 million persons were receiving monthly social security benefits. Retired workers and their dependents account for about 64 per cent of all those receiving payments.

School Program

KINGSTON In an effort to aid persons who wish to obtain New York State High School Equivalency Diploma, the Continuing Education Department of Kingston City Schools will be offering a program for out-of-school youth and adults aimed at developing skills and understandings necessary to pass High School Level Tests of General Educational Development.

Satisfactory scores on such tests are necessary before an equivalency diploma can be received.

The program, to be initiated will be designed to measure the specific skills which high school students are expected to possess in reading, English usage and mathematics. There will be no cost for the individualized program, which students can enter at any time.

Further information about the program and enrollment procedures can be obtained by calling the Continuing Education Office between 9 a.m. and noon and between 1 and 3:30 p.m.

In the true spirit of democracy, the militia places no restrictions on sex, age or size. The Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps will sponsor a revolutionary drum corps "pow wow" on July 2 and 3 in Kingston. Thirty corps from throughout the colonies have already signed up to participate.
